Early Crop Seeding Evident Across All Of Minnesota

Spring fieldwork continued advancing toward record-early completion, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics service. An average of 6.5 days were suitable for fieldwork during the past week; a year ago, conditions were altogether different, as less than one day was suitable for fieldwork during the week ending May 4. Topsoil moisture as of May 1 was rated 30 per cent very short, 50 per cent short and 20 per cent adequate.

Dry topsoil conditions have spread and intensified since a week ago. As northern soils have warmed, the top layer has been drying out as it already had further south. Light to moderate rains during the week were helpful but not substantial enough to make up the current deficit. Spring rains have been near normal only in the southeast tip of the state.

Across the state, subsoil moisture reserves remain good to excellent. However, the top two inches of soil are generally reported dry; moist soil is several inches farther down in field that have been worked more than once this spring. Recent plantings of all types of crops have shown uneven emergence because of dryness in the seeding zone. Soybean growers are now hesitant about planting beans in dry soil and many will wait a week or so to see if they can get some rain.

Other effects of the topsoil dryness continue to be reported. Effective weed control is difficult since moisture is insufficient to activate herbicides. Wind erosion has damaged fields of small grains and sugarbeets, necessitating some replanting. Also, some tree plantings on conservation acres have failed or had to be cancelled.

Spring wheat has been planted on an estimated 90 per cent of the expected acreage, a 23-point increase from a week ago. Only 10 per cent was planted as of the same date a year ago; the five-year average for this date is 42 per cent. Emergence at 49 per cent contrasts with last year at two per cent and 11 per cent for the five-year average. Oats is 92 per cent planted versus 33 per cent a year ago and 51 per cent for the five-year average. Emergence of oats has reached 66 per cent compared with last year's 17 per cent and the five-year average of 16 per cent. Barley is 87 per cent planted and 32 per cent emerged; five-year averages are 34 per cent and seven per cent, respectively.

Field corn ground for 1987 planting is 83 per cent prepared compared with 13 per cent last year and 27 per cent for the five-year average. Planting advanced 46 points during the week to 63 per cent complete; this is the greatest percentage of corn seeded this early in the season in records dating from 1956; the next-earliest spring, by this measure, was 1976, when the comparable progress was 39 per cent. By comparison, only three per cent was planted a year ago and the five-year average is 11 per cent.

Soybean ground is 49 per cent prepared versus three per cent last year and nine per cent for the five-year average. Soybean planting is ready to proceed full-scale; so far, eight per cent of the acreage has been planted, highest for this date of any year on record; less than half of one per cent of soybeans were planted a year ago and for the five-year average.

Sunflowers are 13 per cent planted compared with none a year ago and one per cent for the five-year average. Sugarbeets are 97 per cent planted versus only three per cent last year and 39 per cent for the five-year average. This progress is the greatest for this date since 1977.

Potatoes are 31 per cent planted compared with four per cent a year ago and 10 per cent for the five-year average. Flaxseed is 14 per cent planted versus four per cent for the five-year average. Sweet corn and green peas for processing are planted on 22 per cent and 67 per cent of their expected acreages, respectively; five-year averages are four per cent for sweet corn and 31 per cent for peas.

Fall-seeded small grain condition is rated eight per cent poor, 44 per cent fair, 45 per cent good and three per cent excellent. Hay fields are rated 12 per cent poor, 46 per cent fair, 39 per cent good and three per cent excellent. Pastures are rated 16 per cent poor, 46 per cent fair, 35 per cent good and three per cent excellent. Rapid warming of the ground has allowed hay and pasture to break dormancy very early, but lack of rain is limiting growth.

Arthritis Group Boosts Research At University

Minnesota chapter of the Arthritis foundation has donated $500,000 to the Minnesota Medical foundation at the University of Minnesota medical school to create an endowed chair in rheumatology research.

The gift will be matched with funds from the Permanent University Fund to create a $1 million endowment to guarantee perpetual support of research into the causes of treatment of the more than 100 rheumatic diseases commonly known as arthritis. The gift is part of the university's Minnesota Campaign, a three-year, $300 million fund-raising effort. The chair holder will be named later.

About 37 million Americans have some type of arthritis, which costs the economy $8.5 billion annually in lost wages and medical bills and is the second leading cause of disability payments.

One Minnesotan in seven has arthritis, making the disease one of the state's major public health problems, according to Dr. Maren L. Mahowald, a member of the Minnesota chapter of the Arthritis foundation board.

"The hope for patients dealing with the crippling effects of diseases such as arthritis lies in the research being done into the causes and cures," Mahowald said. "By endowing a chair at the University of Minnesota, the Minnesota chapter has provided the springboard for continous advances in understanding these diseases of the joint."

In addition to its gift to the university, the Minnesota chapter is working on a similar chair at the Mayo clinic in Rochester.

"If both chairs are funded, rheumatology research in Minnesota will be changed dramatically," Mahowald said.

The gift to the university was made through the Minnesota Medical foundation, a non-profit organization that raises and disburses funds for medical education and research at the university's medical schools in Minneapolis and Duluth.

Jeff Milender Is Award Winner In NSDU Engineering

Jeff Milender of Thief River Falls, a senior in electrical engineering at North Dakota state university, Fargo, recently won second place in the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineering (IEEE) student chapter regional paper competition. He was honored April 3 at a professional chapter meeting of the IEEE in Minneapolis.

Milender's paper, "Electronic Draw and Level Detectors for Tournament Archery," also won first place in the NDSU competition March 19 with a prize of a $150 calculator. In the regional competition, Milender won $150 and a free trip to Minneapolis.

Using infrared light emissions, Milender's device can be used in tournament archery to monitor draw-pull to be used on bow, and level of bow in relation to ground. The light-interceptor system basically passes light through a small monitoring device when the draw pull is right and the bow level is appropriate.

Now building a more refined unit, Milender indicated he has been urged to patent the device. An archer since he was a freshman in high school, Milender said the device has helped his shooting and will make a particularly good teaching device.

Milender is the son of Steven and Janet Milender, rural Thief River Falls.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

THE Constitution

Following comments are by Douglas Jeffrey, director of scholarship at Claremont Institute for the Study of Statesmanship and Political Philosophy in California:

This year we Americans will celebrate the centennial of our constitution. The occasion provides us with a special opportunity to recall what unites us as a people; what the noblest among us have fought and died to protect — from Yorktown to the Mekong Delta; and what others will be called on to defend similarly in years to come.

A constitution is a way of life. Traditionally it was something unwritten: if you wanted to know a people's constitution, you simply looked at how they lived. But in America — for the first time — a constitution became the Constitution. That it was written symbolized its status as fundamental law. As such it set limits to what the government could do in a new and significant way. And in America, where the government is of we the people, to limit government is to limit ourselves.

To say that what unites us as a people is an acknowledgement of our own limitations, is to say that what unites us is a common agreement on what is politically and morally right. This agreement was born with the pledge of dedication to certain principles in 1776.

The principles of political and moral right, set forth in the Declaration of Independence, are therein held to be right by nature, or to be right always and everywhere. Only if there is that sort of standard of justice would it be proper for us to have a written constitution, or a fundamental and restrictive law.

That America's great adversary in modern times is the Soviet Union, reflects the fact that communist ideology explicitly and absolutely denies what is most essential to American constitutionalism. Marxist doctrine's denial of God's existence is but one facet of its denial that there is any unchanging law — divine or natural — which restricts what a man or a people can do at any given time. Rather than being guided by an absolute standard, communists look to a future ideal which justifies for them the treatment by some human beings of other human beings as if those others were beasts. While the Marxists speak in terms of a master class rather than (as did the Nazis) in terms of a master race, Marxists and Nazis are essentially similar: both have denied a higher law which governs all men equally.

What constitutes us as a people, what so many Americans have given their lives defending, and what we should commemorate not only this year, but each and every year, is exactly what distinguishes us so radically from Communist and Nazi tyrannies. It is not simply that we are a democracy. After all, just as a free individual can choose to become a drug merchant or a drug addict, so can a democratic majority choose, unjustly, to have slaves or to enslave themselves. No, what we truly celebrate is that we were constituted to be a people enlightened by a knowledge of what is politically and morally just.

We celebrate a living Constitution — no less beautiful or just than it was 200 years ago — which demands that we remain a self-governing people, who are in turn governed by a higher law. We celebrate that we are constituted as a people whose fulfillment of our patriotic duty — whether at peace or at war — has a uniquely religious character. We celebrate that we are a people who can, if we are true to the example set by Americans who have gone before us in our nation's "finest hours," honestly speak of pledging our sacred honor, to the support of one another and to the support of our institutions and our laws.

There is no more fitting time than ours for the reflection on our heritage which the current Bicentennial calls forth. Perhaps through such reflection we might clear our minds, bridge the divisions that exist among us, and re-dedicate ourselves as a people aware of the nature of our birthright, which is, as Lincoln called it in remarks to the 166th Ohio Regiment in 1864, "an inestimable jewel."

Tax Freedom Day

Following information was provided by the Minnesota Taxpayers association:

Taxpayers in Minnesota were cautioned not to celebrate Tax Freedom Day on May 4 with the typical U.S. taxpayer, but to wait five days until May 9. Due to a higher state and local tax burden, Minnesotans must remain on the job for five more days to meet their tax obligations, the Minnesota Taxpayers Association reported.

Tax Freedom Day is the day when the typical worker would owe no more taxes if, from January 1, every dollar of income earned was used to pay all federal, state, and local taxes. After this date, workers are free to spend their remaining income as they choose.

Tax Freedom Day represents one method of dramatizing the impact of the amount of taxes an individual must pay. The national date is calculated each year by economists at the Tax Foundation, a nationally recognized research organization. This year they point out that federal tax legislation has pushed back Tax Freedom Day nationally. This represents the impact of higher federal taxes on businesses, payroll tax hikes, and increased excise taxes on cigarettes and gasoline. The end result if that Tax Freedom Day is back to where it was in 1981, prior to the major federal income tax cuts. In earlier years Tax Freedom Day has been celebrated quite a bit earlier: In 1930 the day was on February 13, and it was not until 1950 that it became an April celebration. Since 1984 the date has been getting later. It has been pushed back six days in the last three years.

According to Don Paterick, Executive Director of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, the typical Minnesotan must work even longer to pay their taxes. "Historically we have had to delay Tax Freedom Day because Minnesota's state and local tax burden has been higher than the U.S. average. The latest data from the U.S. Census Bureau indicates that Minnesota's per capita tax burden is about 12% higher than the national average. Minnesotans, therefore, must work an additional five days to pay our taxes," Paterick said.

"Although the additional days of work are a serious burden for Minnesotans, our situation has improved. As recently as 1985 Minnesota's Tax Freedom Day fell ten days after the national date. The removal of the surtax and the 1985 income tax cut have moved us from ten days later to five days behind the nation," Paterick said. "However, this improvement will not continue as the Governor and Legislature are currently proposing substantial tax increases for Minnesotans. The tax increases being proposed range from over $600 million to one billion dollars."

Another way to view the Tax Freedom Day concept is from the perspective of an average worker's day. According to MTA calculations, Minnesota taxpayers are working for the federal government for one hour and 46 minutes, and for state and local governments for another hour and four minutes.

"Average workers don't start working for themselves until lunch time. Nearly the same amount of work time is spent earning money to pay taxes is spent to pay for the three basic necessities of life — food, clothing, and shelter. Only 21 minutes are spent working to enjoy the fruits of labor," Paterick concluded.

The eight hour work day breaks down as follows: Federal Taxes, 1 hour 46 minutes; State and Local Taxes, 1 hour and 4 minutes; Housing, 1 hour 27 minutes; Food and Tobacco, 1 hour; Transportation, 42 minutes; Medical Care, 39 minutes; Clothing, 23 minutes; Recreation, 21 minutes; and All other, 38 minutes.

Hail To Our State Song

Yes, indeed, "Hail! Minnesota" is the official state song of the state of Minnesota. In 1945, at the suggestion of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs, the Legislature adopeted a joint resolution establishing the state song.

Truman E. Richard, a 1904 graduate of the University of Minnesota, wrote the music and two stanzas as a class song. The second stanza changed a year later when Cyrus Northrop, president of the university, asked a young poet named Arthur Upson, to write a new second stanza.

University of Minnesota Alumni association held a copyright on the song until 1945 when the association gave the state permission to use the words and music as the state song. How many people are familiar with more than the first line, however? Probably not very many. So that you might be better informed, here are the words to both stanzas:

HAIL! MINNESOTA

Minnesota, hail to thee!
Hail to thee, our state so dear!
Thy light shall ever be
A beacon bright and clear;
Thy sons and daughters true
Will proclaim thee near and far;
They shall guard thy fame
And adore thy name;
Thou shalt be their Northern Star.

Like the stream that bends to the sea,
Like the pine that seeks the blue,
Minnesota, still for thee,
Thy sons are strong and true.
From thy woods and waters fair,
From thy prairies waving far,
At thy call they throng,
With their shout and song,
Hailing thee their Northern Star.

YOUR TIMES

by Jon Ronstad, President
Minnesota Professional
Insurance Agents

Congress is considering legislation to repeal the McCarran Ferguson act. If this legislation passes, Minnesota would lose many of its small companies either from closure or merger, creating a less competitive insurance market. Minnesota would lose to federal government its authority to regulate insurance in this state. Minnesotans would lose jobs, and Minnesotans would find insurance less available and less affordable.

The McCarran Ferguson act provides insurance companies with an antitrust exemption which has been very narrowly defined by decisions of the U.S Supreme Court. The antitrust exemption allows insurance companies to engage in three cooperative activities: the pooling and analysis of statistical data necessary for rate making purposes, the joint underwriting of risks that no single insurer prudently could assume, and the development of standardized insurance policy forms that make a complicated product more understandable to consumers.

The act also gives states the authroity to regulate insurance and the antitrust immunity it provides is available only if state governments actively regulate the insurance industry. There is no antitrust immunity for insurance companies that engage in boycott, coercion or intimidation.

Of the three cooperative activities the act allows, the first one mentioned is the most important to assure a stable and competitive insurance market. Permitting the joint collection and sharing of loss data and other information is vital to predicting future losses and product pricing so as to protect company solvency.

Unlike other industries, which can evaluate costs first and then price products accordingly, insurance companies never know the true cost of their product until all claims are resolved. They have to price before knowing all the costs involved. To price their products, insurance companies must make educated projections based on predicted losses, economoic factors, legal standards and other variables, and they must often wait for years to find out if their projections were correct.

Because of this, many insurers act jointly through statistical agencies to gather every scrap of data available in order to make accurate projections. Large insurance companies by their very nature have written many policies and therefore have a sufficient amount of loss experience data from which to make accurate cost and pricing projections. They also have the actuarial talent and the computer technology needed to analyze the data and make those projections.

On the other hand, small to mid-sized companies don't have a large spread of risk to provide raw data, and they don't usually have the talent nor can they afford the technology to process large amounts of data. These smaller companies must rely on reports from statistical data gathering agencies, which have the talent and technology needed to analyze large amounts of loss data, so that they can make the accurate projections needed to adequately price their products and avoid insolvency.

Because these smaller companies do not have the expense of analyzing large amounts of data, they can direct their talent and resources toward designing innovative insurance products and providing service. They can also offer their products at lower premiums because their cost of doing business is lower.

Members of the Minnesota Professional Insurance agents (which represents a vast majority of independent agents throughout the state of Minnesota), like myself, represent severl companies so that we can provide the best product to meet the individual needs of our clients at the best price. Many of the companies we represent are small Minnesota-based companies which would likely be put out of business or merged into larger out-of-state companies if the McCarran Ferguson act is repealed.

Repeal of act will hurt all independent insurance agents doing business in Minnesota, but will hurt Minnesota more. It will mean fewer jobs for local agents and the thousands of staff they hire. Secondly, companies may be forced to begin cutting their own staff if this act is passed. Finally, and most importantly, it will mean less competition and insurance will be less available and more expensive to the consumer of Minnesota.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am a resident of Thief River Falls and have lived other places along the river in past years.

The letters written by Dayle Thompson express my feelings also. More has to be done, I feel. I would be the first sign a petition when it comes around for well water. Also the news media should be contacted to alert everyone just what they are drinking, and to tell others who may have planned to move here.

I have seen a pig and cow at the dam, rolling over and over hitting the dam, skinning the pig all up. Ish! A friend of mine has seen dogs floating down the river.

The cost of the chemicals used to treat the water is ridiculous. They also can't be healthy for us. I can't believe that they take out everything in the river, such as the algae, bacteria, insecticides, fertilizers plus the dead animals and the dead fish.

This is and will be a town for retired farmers of this area. Most of them here now go to their farms or other places for water. This gets to be a job to haul pails, jugs or whatever to last for a while.

It is very disgusting to pay for water we can't consume. Those of us on Social Security have just so much for bills; is it fair to charge us for water we can't drink unless it's boiled first?

Let's get well water and forget adding a $4.5 million addition onto the water treatment plant. It is time to act, you members of the council.

-s- Inga Rodahl

To The Editor:

Why can't Win Borden get it straight?

He is saying that the House has passed a billion dollar tax bill. In fact, the House proposal calls for $490 million in new taxes. This is $50 million less than Borden himself calls for.

He is saying that if no laws were changed, the state would have over $500 million in new taxes to spend. In fact, if no laws were changed, the state would be $800 million in the hole and would have no rainy day reserve fund. That's how they do it in Washington. That's not how we do it here in Minnesota.

Mr. Borden claims he is concerned for Minnesota. We asked him to come to the Legislature and assist us in responding to the $800 million deficit. Mr. Borden refused to identify one single area to cut. In a budget of over $11 billion, Mr. Borden was unable to come up with a single item to cut.

Fortunately, other members of the business community and of the community at large have been helpful. The budget prepared by the House is balanced and it is reasonable. It maintains our commitment to quality education, property tax relief and care for the elderly. It is also restrained. It represents the lowest growth budget in over 20 years. All of this was achieved despite the diversionary efforts of Mr. Borden.

To The Editor:

A letter in response to Karla A. Nelson's open letter to the Zehlian group: (May 4, 1987).

As newcomers who moved here from Winona, MN, my husband and I really missed the walkway that went around Lake Winona. Many evenings we joined other people from Winona to walk around the lake on the pathway, enjoying the scenery and outdoors. We had commented that it was too bad that Thief River Falls didn't take advantage of its greatest natural resource — the rivers — and have a pathway system. So you can imagine our pleasant surprise when we heard of the Zehlians' project.

Yes, we have noticed that some sections of sidewalks in older areas of the town need replacing and newer areas need sidewalks. But I really feel that the Zehlians are not the proper group to address this issue to.

Yes, rivers do fill in with mud and litter. The latter problem is best dealt with by individuals being better citizens and not littering. But, again, these two problems would be better dealt with by contacting the right agency.

Let's give a big "Hurrah" to the Zehlians for their efforts to beautify the city and create a recreational area that can be enjoyed by all. And let's also give them our support.

Sincerely,
-s- Pat Mofjeld

To The Editor:

You suggested recently in a Times editorial that the American Dairy association should promote an American-made rather than a foreign-made car in its national cheese sweepstakes contest — just as it promotes sales of domestic dairy products.

First, I'd like to explain to your readers that the Nissan donated for the contest was actually built here in the U.S. by American workers.

In addition, the contest organizers originally contacted the big three U.S. auto makers to obtain free grand-prize vehicles in exchange for product publicity. They were turned down. To make the story short, the Nissan makers, when contacted later, agreed to the joint promotion. But the American cars were the American Dairy association's first choice.

The Lincoln division of the Ford Motor company has since indicated an interest in providing autos for future contests. So we're optimistic and pleased we'll now be able to offer American vehicles as prize incentives.

Thank you for the opportunity to clarify the issue raised in your interesting editorial.

Sincerely,
-s- John Gundale
Communications Director
American Dairy Association of Minnesota

Law Enforcement Torch Run Helps Special Olympics

More than 500 law enforcement officers from across the state of Minnesota will join forces on May 30 to begin their second annual "Torch Run" for Minnesota Special Olympics. Two separate legs originating in Duluth and Rochester, will traverse northern, central and southeastern Minnesota and converge in Moorhead on June 2 for the opening ceremonies of the 1987 Minnesota Special Olympics summer games.

The law enforcement torch run is a series of runs which take place in the spring and summer each year in conjunction with state and national Special Olympics games. In 1986, torch runs in 44 states raised in excess of $1 million for Special Olympics. All 50 states, the District of Columbia and several countries will be organizing torch runs this year.

Minnesota Association of Professional Insurance Agents members will be "adopting" Law enforcement runners from their communities by collecting contributions on their behalf from the community-at-large.

The Olympic Flame will be carried 500 miles enroute to Moorhead. The southern leg will originate in Rochester and pass through the communities of Owatonna, Faribault, Northfield, the Twin Cities, Anoka, Elk River, St. Cloud and Little Falls to Brainerd. The northern leg will originate in Duluth and follow Highways 61 and 210 via Aitkin enroute to Brainerd. From Brainerd, the run will follow Highways 210 and 10 to Moorhead via Wadena and Detroit Lakes.

Scheduled to take place on June 2-4 on the campus of Moorhead state university, the summer games are the culminating event for Special Olympians who have trained and competed in their local communities. More than 1,800 athletes with mental retardation from around the state will compete in track and field, bowling, soccer, volleyball, equestrian and wheelchair events. More than 1,000 volunteers will give of their time to help.

Americans consume 20 to 25 times more sodium than they need, and sodium can contribute to high blood pressure in sensitive individuals says the American Heart association.

Spuds Edge Prowlers For Sports Boosters Net Title

Thief River Falls came up with three individual championship efforts, but the team title eluded the Prowlers Thursday at the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Invitational boys high school tennis tournament.

A couple of close-match losses came back to haunt the Prowlers as Moorhead won the five-team event with 21 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 19, Crookston 15, East Grand Forks 11, and Park Rapids 4.

Moorhead's championship performance, which included four wins in seven head-to-head match-ups with Thief River Falls, snapped a string of five straight winning outings for the Prowlers, who won two multiple-team events and three dual meets during a productive two-week span.

"We could have won," offered Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, "but I guess it just wasn't meant to be on that particular day. We took three champions, and most of the time that would be enough to win the title for you. Our big concern coming into the tournament was Moorhead, and they beat us by winning four close matches."

Individually, the Prowlers received title-winning efforts from Kent Holmes at No. 2 singles; Kevin Holmes and Jay Opdahl at No. 2 doubles; and from Troy Peterson and Tom Brouse at No. 3 doubles.

"Kent played very well for us," reported Olson, who also cited Kevin Holmes and Opdahl for their continued winning ways in second doubles. "We call them A.P. — automatic points," quipped Olson. "They played well, again."

Peterson and Brouse emerged with the first-place medals through a three-way tie-breaking procedure in third doubles, where the Prowlers, Pirates and Spuds entries all went 3-1 for three points. First step was using the fewest number of games lost, eliminating Moorhead with 27, but leaving Thief River Falls and Crookston still deadlocked with 20 apiece. Peterson and Brouse were winners, though, on Step 2 — head to head competition. They beat the Pirates' Matt Derosier and Troy Fischer 10-6 during the day.

Olson also said the Prowlers' John Dondelinger and Troy Hanestad performed well at No. 1 doubles with a runner-up finish behind Moorhead's Brian Peterson and Larry Patnaude. "They played their best tennis of the year without a doubt," Olson said.

Crookston's Cory Sondrol and Jon Olson were winners at No. 3 and No. 4 singles, respectively, and Moorhead seventh grader Paul Jeffries took the top prize at No. 1 singles, a bracket that included a number of empty nets because of forfeits and defaults by Crookston's Todd Kreibich and Park Rapids' Dirk Ulrich due to injuries.

TRF Hosts No. 1 Bemidji

Thief River Falls snapped a three-game losing streak Saturday with a 3-1 high school baseball win over International Falls, but the Prowlers face a major challenge Tuesday when they host Bemidji, the No. 1-rated team in the state Class AA polls.

Bemidji shut out Thief River Falls 10-0 last Monday. The Lumberjacks ran their record to 10-0 Thursday with a 15-4 win at Crookston. Bemidji came up with 14 stolen bases that afternoon, four of them by Corey Boyer.

The Lumberjacks, who visit International Falls today (Monday) before coming to Thief River Falls, came up with a big 7-3 win last week over Greenway-Coleraine in a match-up of the state's No. 1 rated Class AA and Class A teams. A five-run third inning highlighted the Bemidji attack and backed the pitching of Tim Knudson, who struck out seven and walked three. It was the first loss in 10 starts for the Raiders, the defending Class A state champions.

Bemidji is the defending Region 8AA champion. The Lumberjacks will be heavily favored to be the No. 1 seed and the host team for the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA tournament semifinals and finals Wednesday, May 27. In opening round post-season play, the No. 5 seeded team will be at the site of the No. 4 seed on Tuesday, May 26.

It'll be a busy week for the Prowlers. After meeting Bemidji, Thief River Falls has games Thursday in Crookston, Friday at home against Roseau and Saturday at home against Lake of the Woods. They also host Crookston Monday.

Thief River Falls is 5-3 for the year, 1-1 against North Sub-Region 8AA competition after earlier beating Moorhead 4-2 in the first round of the Spuds' May 2 Invitational. Bemidji and Moorhead are the only North Sub-Region 8AA foes on the Thief River Falls schedule. The Prowlers don't play Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls.

Talafous, Bergland Will Address TRF Hockey Banquet Wednesday

Talafous

Bergland

Two representatives from the University of Minnesota hockey program — assistant coach Dean Talafous and Thief River Falls native Tim Bergland — will be the guest speakers Wednesday at the annual Lincoln High School hockey team banquet at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln cafeteria.

A limited number of tickets are available to the general public at TG Sporting Goods. The $5.50 tickets must be purchased in advance.

Bergland was a four-year letter winner with the Gophers, who served as team co-captain during his 1986-87 senior season when the 6-2, 190-pound wing scored 18 goals and collected 17 assists for 35 points. The former Prowler standout saw spot duty early in his freshman year for the Gophers, but won a starting berth later that winter and was a fixture in the Minnesota line-up from that point on, earning recognition as a checker and a playmaker.

A native of Hastings, Talafous went on to earn All-America honors with the University of Wisconsin hockey team, and had a National Hockey League career with the Atlanta Flames, Minnesota North Stars and New York Rangers before suffering a neck injury. He began as an assistant coach with the Gophers in 1982-83 and 1983-84 seasons before leaving to coach the Minnesota Junior A. Stars in 1984-85. He returned to the Gophers in 1985-86 under Doug Woog.

SHAYNE ANDERSON of Thief River Falls was the first runner across the finish line of the 2.1 mile portion of Saturday's Thief River Falls Health In The Long Run, but he wasn't officially registered for the fourth annual event, meaning first place was awarded to Russell Sorenson of Plummer, who came across right behind Anderson in 13:10.

Baseball Team Beats International Falls

Dean DuChamp and Chris Nelson combined on a three-hit pitching performance and they were backed by an errorless defense Saturday afternoon as Thief River Falls decisioned International Falls 3-1 in a high school baseball game at the fairgrounds diamond here.

DuChamp went the first five innings for the win, pitching shutout ball. Nelson worked the final two innings on the mound. Art Leseman was the losing pitcher. He gave up only five hits, but the Broncos were charged with four errors.

"Pitching and defensively we did all right," reported Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff, "but we're still not doing the job at the plate."

All three Thief River Falls runs came across the plate in the third inning as Kurt DuPree singled, moved to third on an error and scored on a wild pitch. Jared Erickson and Chris Bjorgaard both walked and both scored. Erickson scored on a fielder's choice ball hit by Nelson, and Bjorgaard came home on an error.

A hit-batsman, wild pitch and single gave the International Falls a seventh inning run.

Thief River Falls climbed to 5-3 with the win. It was listed as a Saturday afternoon doubleheader, but wound up being just a single game because the Broncos, in asking for a pair of games here, meant a varsity-junior varsity combination, not a varsity twinbill.

START OF fourth annual Thief River Falls Health In The Long Run Saturday featured nearly 350 runners, joggers and walkers heading down LaBree Avenue from Northwest Medical Center.

Prowlers Second In TRF Invitational

A home course setting helped the host Prowlers to their highest place finish of the 1987 season Saturday — a tie for second in the annual Thief River Falls Invitational boys high school golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club.

Crookston, led by medalist Scott Corbin's 74, won the wind-swept 13-team event with a 488. Thief River Falls and Bemidji shared second at 491, followed by East Grand Forks with a 495, Fosston 502, Roseau 521, Warren 536, Detroit Lakes 538, Moorhead 543, Bagley and the Thief River Falls junior varsity 567, Red Lake Falls 570, and East Grand Forks 597.

Middle-of-the-pact finishes were commonplace for the Thief River Falls golfers in five earlier multiple-team events, but familiarity with the local course gave coach Dick Tyler's Prowlers a boost of confidence Friday.

Steve Jung led the Prowlers with a 77, good for a runner-up finish behind Corbin in the medal standings. Jung had rounds of 41-36.

Rest of the Thief River Falls scores included Jason Peterson 40-39, 79; Bob Geatz 43-38, 81; Paul Borchert 38-43, 81; Jim Breiland 43-42, 85; and Paul Antonenko 49-42, 91.

Jason Tangquist led the Thief River Falls junior varsity with a 46-40, 86; Roger Anderson shot 45-42, 87; Gene Leppala 42-51, 93; Wade Jorde 50-47, 97; Todd Stewart 53-49, 102; and Paul Hjelik 52-50, 102.

Thief River Falls was also in action Saturday at the Roseau Invitational, finishing in a third place tie with Crookston.

Bemidji was the winner with a 304, followed by East Grand Forks with a 314, Crookston and Thief River Falls 325, Roseau 327, Greenbush, Warren and Bagley all at 329, Warroad 340, Walker 345, Lake of the Woods 369, and Stephen 370.

Rick Grand was medalist with a 74. Russ Simenson of Bemidji and Scott Eggers of East Grand Forks both had 75.

For the Prowlers, Breiland carded an 80, Jung 81, Peterson 82, Borchert 82, Geatz 85, and Tangquist 85.

Fosston Girls Win At Crookston

Fosston, led by medalist Lisa Hanson, won the Crookston Invitational girls high school golf tournament Thursday.

The Greyhounds had a 389 first place score, followed by Roseau at 392, East Grand Forks 403, Crookston 409, Thief River Falls 415, Norman County West 510, and Red Lake Falls 528.

Cathy Smerud of Crookston was the runner-up in the medal standings with a 94.

Two Thief River Falls girls broke the 100 barrier for the day as Kelly Cornell turned in a 98 and Nancy Tofte had a 99, while Jill Olson shot a 108 and Karin Tyler had a 110.

Thief River Falls girls were scheduled to compete in the Mahnomen Invitational this morning (Monday). They'll be at the Alexandria Invitational Thursday.

THE WIND was whipping the flag around as Thief River Falls senior Bob Geatz chipped on to the No. 4 green during Friday's breezy Thief River Falls Invitational high school golf tournament.

UMC Women Sweep NCC

A three-run game-winning home run in the bottom of the seventh inning in the opener set the stage for a University of Minnesota-Crookston doubleheader sweep over visiting Northland Community College Wednesday in a Minnesota Community College Conference softball match-up.

Northland carried a 7-5 lead into the last half inning in Game 1, but watched the Trojans win it on the homer over a short outfield fence.

University of Minnesota-Crookston then used that momentum to win the nightcap 13-5.

"We had a hard time recovering from that first game," acknowledged Northland coach Patty Chiodo.

Becky Knutson homered for the Pioneers in the opener, while Connie Geatz, Cherie Deihl and Cheryl Otto all had a pair of hits in a well-played defensive game.

Janelle Lorsung, Shari Larson, Sheila Jaeger and Knutson all had two hits in the second game. "We got people on base, but we couldn't get the hits we needed to score them," explained Chiodo.

1987 Moose Season License Applications Are Available

A total of 5,200 hunters will be able to participate in Minnesota's 1987 moose season, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced.

As in previous seasons, applications for permits must be made in hunting parties of four and a computerized drawing will select 1,300 hunting parties for this year's season.

Those who were issued licenses for the 1987 season, or any season since that year, may not apply for this year's hunt; however, hunters who took part in the 1971, 1973 and 1975 hunts will be eligible to enter the drawing. The restriction is based on a 1982 low requiring successful applicants to sit out five seasons.

Anyone planning to apply for the moose hunt who does not have a driver's license should apply immediately for an identification card from the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, which issues driver's licenses. A driver's license number or the Minnesota Identification number is required on moose hunt applications, just as it is for bear and antlerless deer permits.

Application forms and instructions on how to apply for the drawing are expected to be available from county auditor's offices and most license agents in early May. A $4 application fee must accompany each application of four hunters.

Applications will also be available from the DNR's License Center at 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, the central headquarters of the Department.

Other sources include section of wildlife field offices and the six Department regional headquarters — Brainerd, Bemidji, Grand Rapids, New Ulm, Rochester and 1200 Warner Road, St. Paul (fish hatchery building).

Deadline to apply for the drawing is June 15. Only Minnesota residents are eligible. Applicants must be 16 years of age prior to Oct. 10, 1987 to be eligible for the computer drawing.

Wildlife officials said applicants for the drawing should read the instructions carefully because improperly completed applications will be rejected from the drawing without notice.

Particular attention should be paid to the various dates and special restrictions that apply in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness (BWCAW) hunt zones and the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge.

Moose hunting zones are located in two areas, one in northwestern Minnesota and the other in the northeast. All zones will be open to hunting on Oct. 10 except Zone 2 (Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge) which opens Dec. 5.

By law, 20 per cent of the permits will be allotted to owners or operators on agricultural or grazing lands in the northwestern hunting zones.

License fee is $200 per party of four.

TRF 12-7 JV Winner Saturday Against International Falls

A six-run inning Saturday carried the Thief River Falls junior varsity to a 12-7 high school baseball win over visiting International Falls.

The scheduled doubleheader was reduced to a single afternoon contest, putting Thief River Falls at 8-3 for the year.

Todd Brandon was 3-for-3 to lead a 10-hit Thief River Falls attack. Hunter Boldt was 2-for-3 and John Azure was 2-for-4 for the winners.

Boldt pitched the first five innings for the win. Jason Kempert pitched the final two frames. They scattered seven hits.

Thief River Falls had two errors; International Falls had three.

The Dan Willoughby-coached junior varsity will host Bemidji Tuesday at 2:30 p.m., visit Crookston Thursday, host Roseau Friday in 4:30 p.m. games, then entertain Lake of the Woods Saturday at 1 p.m. for a busy week of action.

TRF Boys JV Golf Team Participates In Pair Of Meets

A 9:30 a.m. Thief River Falls Invitational was scheduled today (Monday), with the Thief River Falls team also competing at East Grand Forks Thursday at 4 p.m.

KEVIN HOLMES, shown here returning a shot during a first round morning match, and Jay Opdahl formed an all-freshman combination at No. 2 doubles for the Prowlers as they hosted Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead, and Park Rapids in the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Invitational high school tennis tournament.

Pioneers End Schedule 13-9

Regular season schedule was completed Saturday when the Northland Community College softball team competed in the Rainy River Invitational at International Falls.

The Pioneers lost two of three starts in the double-elimination event to finish 13-9. They'll be in Ely for the 1987 MCCC state tournament Thursday and Friday.

Northland out-scored Vermilion 14-9 in an opening round game Saturday as Sheila Jaeger went 4-for-5 at the plate, Janelle Lorsung collected three hits and Becky Knutson, Tricia Armstrong and Annette Kofstad all had two hits.

But for the second time in four days, the Pioneers fell victim to a last-inning University of Minnesota-Crookston rally in a 7-5 second-round loss. Jaeger had another productive game at the plate with a 3-for-3 effort, and was a standout defensively as a rover, explained Northland coach Patty Chiodo. Armstrong homered and singled, and Lorsung had a pair of singles.

Vermilion bounced back to eliminate Northland 10-3 in a loser's bracket rematch.

It wasn't a strong finish, acknowledged Chiodo, but she was happy with the Pioneers' overall regular season showing. "They've done an excellent job," she said. "They've worked really hard. I'm pretty satisfied with what they've accomplished."

UMC will be the No. 1 seed for the six-team state tournament field; Northland will be No. 2.

Hayes Lake Park Ready For State Fishing Opener

Opening of fishing on Minnesota inland waters for northern and walleye is Saturday, May 16. Going to Hayes Lake, located within Hayes Lake State Park, proved last year to be a good opening day outing, advised park officials, who said good catches of northern and crappie were taken.

Hayes Lake is a 200-acre reservoir on the Roseau River, located nine miles east of Wannaska. The lake has been stocked over the last few years by Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, fisheries officials. For the first time in many years, catches of walleye were taken last season.

For more information concerning the park, the lake or fishing, people may call the park office at 425-7504.

Electric motors only are allowed on the lake.

Chippewa National Forest Campground Ready For Anglers

Imagine spending time on a warm sunny beach, hiking a forest trail . . . fresh walleye, loons calling, a sunset, and northern lights. All this can be yours in almost any Chippewa National Forest Campground, note Forest officials.

Nineteen of the Forest's 26 campgrounds will be operating for opening fishing weekend; the remainder available by Memorial Day weekend. Most of the campgrounds near Deer River and Lake Winnibigoshish open early — on May 8. Northstar Campground, south of Marcell, is reopening after two years of closure, with a $1 camping fee discount until June 30.

Fees range from $3 to $7 at each campground, depending on facilities. The campgrounds vary from the more primitive with hand pumps and vault toilets, to those with running water, flush toilets and showers. Fees collected are used to help maintain National Forest campgrounds. A fourth of all campground fees are returned to local counties to support schools and roads.

Campstamps are available for the second year. By purchasing the campstamps at District Offices, individuals can save 15 per cent on their camping fee. So come spend some time in the northwoods, invite Forest officials.

For more information contact the following district offices: Blackduck Ranger District, Blackduck, MN 56630, 835-4291—4292; Cass Lake Ranger District, Route 3, Box 219, Cass Lake, MN 56633, 335-2283; Deer River Ranger District, Box 308, Deer River, MN 56636, 246-2123; Marcell Ranger District, Box 127, Marcell, MN 56657, 832-3161; and Walker Ranger District, HCR 73, Box 15, Walker, MN 56484, 547-1044.

Outdoor News

American chameleons are providing clues to the origin of Caribbean islands. According to National Wildlife magazine, these tropical lizards have been around since the first islands were formed. By studying the tiny creatures, scientists have concluded that many of the islands are far older than previously thought, dating back as far as 100 million years. They also believe the lizards weren't washed ashore from elsewhere, as has been suggested, but were descended from common ancestors that were present when the islands spread apart from larger land masses.

First base hit by a member of the Minnesota Twins was Harmon Killebrew's single to center field off New York's Whitey Ford to start the top of the fourth inning in Yankee Stadium April 11, 1961.

Northland Golfers . . .

Pioneers Close Out Schedule

Stops Thursday at Fergus Falls and Friday at Brainerd completed the 1987 regular season schedule for coach Deb Jacobson's Northland Community College golf team.

Northland will be in Rochester later this week for the combination Minnesota Community College Conference state meet and the National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13 meet Thursday and Friday.

It was a case of the home course advantage prevailing last week as Fergus Falls and Brainerd won on their home courses.

At the Fergus Falls Invitational Thursday on the Pebble Lake Golf Course, the Spartans won top honors with a 334, followed by Rochester with a 342, Brainerd 349, Northland 358, and Willmar 370.

Jeff Nygaard of Fergus Falls was meet medalist with a 40-39, 79 on the par-72 lay-out.

Northland's Dave Onkka was a third place finisher with an 82 on rounds of 46-36. Grant Grabanski covered the course in 45-40 for a 85 and Rich Bendickson went 44-44 for an 88. The Pioneers' regular No. 4 and No. 5 golfers missed the trip, putting Jon Peterson (49-54, 103) and Duane Tougas (59-50, 109) into the meet-counting category.

At the Brainerd Country Club Friday, Brainerd Red won the team title with a 315, followed by Rochester at 335, Willmar 336, Fergus Falls 338, Normandale 353, Northland 359, and Brainerd White 367.

Eric Brotvold of Rochester (36-41) and Jason Schultz of Brainerd (41-36) were the top finishers with 77's on a par 71 course.

Onkka led Onkka with an 87 on rounds of 46-41, while Bendickson went 47-42 for an 89, Peterson 43-50 for a 93, Grabanski 52-45 for a 97, and Tougas 55-52 for a 107.

Jacobson looks for Onkka, a freshman from Thief River Falls, to have a shot at qualifying for the NJCAA national tournament during the state-region competition at Rochester this week. "He has a pretty good chance," said Jacobson. The championship team, plus the top five non-championship team golfers, will advance.

Pioneers Sweep UMC Trojans

Northland will complete its 1987 home schedule this week with a pair of Northern Division doubleheaders Wednesday vs. Fergus Falls and Saturday vs. Hibbing.

Wednesday's twinbill starts at 1 p.m. Saturday's games start at 12-noon. The Pioneers close out their spring season Wednesday, May 20, with a nonconference doubleheader at Brainerd.

Kevin Nelson pitched a three-hitter in Game 1, walking just one batter in the route-going performance. "Kevin pitched very well," reported Northland coach Rick Nelson. "He was in control most of the way."

He was backed by a seven-hit attack that included a three-run first inning home run by Deon Schmidt and a two-run double by Al Soreum that sparked a three-run fourth inning. The seven hits came from seven different Pioneers.

Shawn Naas was the losing pitcher. Northland had just one error; UMC had two.

Northland started Game 2 with another three-run first inning, but gave up four runs in the second and another in the third on a home run by Jeff Larson before coming back to win it on a three-run burst in the bottom of the third on four hits and a walk. Steve Landsem had a key two-out, two-run single in the frame.

Tim Borgen was the winner; Brian Johnson was the losing pitcher. The hits were even at seven-apiece, and the errors were even at two-apiece.

Northland Community College baseball team doubled its win total of the 1987 season Wednesday with a 7-1, 6-5 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division sweep over the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

The Pioneers are 4-13 for the year, and all four wins have come against the winless Trojans, including a 16-4, 7-4 doubleheader sweep in Crookston a week earlier.

Freshmen Girls Run In EGF Track Meet On Saturday

Thief River Falls THE TIMES

Volume 76, Number 38 | Wednesday, May 13, 1987 | 324 Main Avenue North; Thief River Falls, MN 56701 | Twenty-Five Cents

Digi-Key Corporation has been awarded business of the year. A committee of Thief River Falls residents selected Digi-Key to receive the award which qualify's the company for the annual Governor's entrepreneurship award.

Ron Stordahl of Digi-Key said he was pleased and honored to accept the award. Digi-Key began with the sale of its first Digital-Key kit, marketed through magazine advertising aimed at amateur radio enthusiast. The small company eventually grew and now sells a large volume of electronic parts nationally and internationally.

The presentation highlighted a week set aside to recognize the contributions of small business. President Ronald Reagan proclaimed national Small Business week for May 10 through 16. The theme of the week is "Small Business, America's growth industry."

Although the first key kit was moderately successful, it clearly did not offer the sales potential Stordahl had anticipated. But rather then liquidate the business and turn to other endeavors, Ron elected instead to draw from this experience and in so doing, lay the groundwork for what is today an extremely successful and rapidly growing mail order distributor of electronic components.

Strodahl said, in negotiating the purchase of parts for the keyer kits he had seen the price spread between large and small volume purchases. And in selling the keyer he had gotten a glimpse of the potential offered by direct marketing to a national market.

Ron coupled these two factors as the basis for Digi-Key's restart and ultimate success. He determined that if he was willing to make the necessary commitment for large volume purchase of electronic parts he could profitably resell them to small users at a competitive price. He knew the key to success would be the effectiveness of his direct marketing program, in terms of magazine and catalog advertising, and extremely efficient order processing.

Stordahl said the key to his success and Digi-Key's success has been a good customer oriented business and good products. Stordahl said there was no master plan for growth, it just happened. There isn't a plan for future growth either, he said, but he predicts Digi-Key will continue to grow.

The business opened in Thief River Falls in 1972 in a 400 square foot area in the back room of a television and electronic repair shop. Larger facilities were soon needed and the company now owns a 60,000 square foot facility. In December of 1972, the first employee was hired. Digi-Key currently employees 75 people, with total staff in 1987 expected to close at twice that of 1983. Less than 10 per cent of its business is done within the state of Minnesota.

Although the business got off to a slow start and incurred losses for several years, sales increased steadily. And as soon as the business could afford the investment, Ron purchased a computer to automate the paper-flow and handle inventory control. Lack of suitable software packages at the time forced the development of software in-house. Although this required a very substantial investment, the ability to customize computer programs to the needs of the business has provided unique efficiencies and the capture of information that has given Digi-Key a real competitive edge in serving the commercial market.

Today, nearly 96 per cent of orders placed with Digi-Key are processed within 24 hours. And their sophisticated inventory control system allows projected usage, anticipating customer needs to the extent that 95 per cent of the product ordered by Digi-Key customers is shipped from stock — a fact that is particularly remarkable in a business where lead-times often run up to 14 weeks.

These factors coupled with the fair treatment extended all customers

RON STORDAHL of Digi-Key was presented with the first award presentation of business of the year. The award presentation highlights a week of activities during national small business week. The award qualifies Digi-Key to be selected from a field of nominees for the Governor's entreprenuership award. Pictured from left are: Jan Hoff, Small Business coordinator, Ron Stordahl, and Deb Zak, member of the committee making the selection.

SHANNON MADDY is one of the many Franklin Middle school students to participate in "Teen II: The Competition", the school's spring musical. The musical will be 7:30 p.m. May 14 and 15 in the Franklin Middle school gym. Performers will include the eighth, seventh and sixth grade chorus. The musical is under the direction of Marcia M. Knuttila.

Council Motion Favors City Walkway Project

Thief River Falls city council Tuesday night passed a motion to blacktop an area and provide black dirt for a project to be considered as support for the Zehlian's proposed walkway along the river in Thief River Falls.

An area from Sioux street Northeast to the dam will be blacktopped and another part of the area covered with black dirt and seeded. The council passed a motion to pay $2,100 for the project Tuesday night.

Council Milan Borsheim who requested the project said he was only trying to follow through with the completion of a project started by the City of Thief River Falls. The project began as a safety project. A wire barrier and dirt pathway now exists at the location. To finish it would require the walkway, approximately 400 feet in length, to be blacktopped and the surrounding area covered with black dirt and seeded to grass.

Councilmen referred to the project as Borsheim's park, but despite the good-nature joking, the council passed the motion and decided it should be considered as support for the Zehlian's project. In another related development, the council decided to establish an account for the club. The decision mirrors that of other requests from projects deemed beneficial to the community.

Thief River Falls city council recognized receipt of a letter from the Northwest regional development commission, which was sent to the council in response to charges that the council was not informed that other cities belonging to a revolving loan fund, paid funds into the fund on project by project basis. The council contends that it was made to believe other cities had made contributions to the fund, when they had only made commitments.

Jay Brunner, executive director of the regional development commission, wrote, "I have recently been made aware of several concerns, raised by the Thief River Falls city council, regarding the revolving loan fund (RLF) operated by the Northwest Regionl development commission. I will preface my comments to you by stating I was not involved in the origination of the RLF but I have been involved in its subsequent operation."

Those government organizations involved in the RLF include Crookston, East Grand Forks, Polk county, Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls. Thief River Falls contributed $25,000 to the fund and is assured of $50,000.

Brunner states again in his letter that the method of payment from jurisdiction to jurisdiction has varied. Thief River Falls paid into the fund a single payment of $25,000, while other jurisdictions asked to be billed on a per project basis.

Brunner noted that the entire $50,000 targeted for Thief River Falls remains available for project approval by the revolving loan fund committee. He also noted that two jurisdictions contributed a combined sum of $6,287 to pay for the administration of the loan funds until such time that the fund is fully self

She is also allowed to participate in a work release program. Dave Olin was the prosecuting attorney and James Buening was the defense attorney.

Andrew J. Holmgren, Thief River Falls, was found guilty of fleeing a peace officer by a jury in a court case presided over by Judge Russell A. Anderson. Holmgren was sentenced to one year in jail and fined $1,500 plus a $150 surcharge and $7.50 in law library fees and $500 to the defender fund.

"CHARLIE AND ALGERNON" is the name of the Middle River high school musical and also happens to be the names of these two main characters. Charlie is played by Brent Peterson (above) and his pet mouse Algernon is played by the white mouse in the above photo. The musicl is the story of a mentally handicapped boy who becomes brilliant for a period of time. Kaydell Super directs the high school drama department's production which will be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the former Hardware Hank store building in Middle River. Admission will be $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and 50 cents for pre-school youngsters. And, yes, folks, that is a real live mouse.

Digi-Key In TRF Named Business Of The Year

has contributed to the strong commitment to Digi-Key from the sophisticated electronic hobbyist as well as the commercial customer that now represents 80 per cent of Digi-Key's sales.

Digi-Key has expanded the product it offers from what was initially only several hundred integrated circuits to over 13,000 different electronic parts. It mails over 3,500,000 catalogs throughout the United States, Canada, and Mexico. Its marketing efforts generate over 250,000 telephone transactions a year in addition to an incredible amount of mail.

Community involvement for Digi-Key Corporation is probably best exemplified by its participation in the United Way. As a result of their better than $1-for-$1 match with employee contributions, Digi-Key and its employees accounted for nearly nine per cent of the total dollars pledged to the Thief River Falls United Way.

Digi-Key has also demonstrated high levels of support to the recreational skating program and the Kidney Foundation. Management has encouraged its employees to become involved in leadership roles in community service organizations, such as the United Way Board and the local Economic Development Corporation.

The committee said in presenting the award, "We believe that Ronald Stordahl, through Digi-Key Corporation, has shown the type of creative and innovative approach to business exemplified by the Governor's Entrepreneurship award."

When others may have quit, he modified his approach and restarted, utilizing unique marketing techniques and state-of-the-art computer technology so that Digi-Key could thrive in a highly competitive business."

Council Motion Supports City Walkway Project

sustaining.

City council members were not totally satisfied and many openly criticized the individuals who made the initial presentation to the council. Many said it amounts to city funds being used to secure other funds without having to make any commitment.

An application for a program to provide residential care and treatment services for 15 chemically dependent males, ages 18 to 65 years, in a residential area of Thief River Falls promises to have a lot of opposition.

Don Stewart, community development director, and co-city attorney Paul Ihle informed the council that a public meeting for residents, councilmen and concerned citizens will be held soon to discuss the proposed application for a facility located at 621 North LaBree in Thief River Falls. No specific date or time has been set at this time.

Milan Borsheim said he doesn't mind coming out against the project from the start. He said citizens in the site area, located in his ward, have objected to it.

Is Future Fuel open or closed? Councilman Borsheim asked the question last night after discovering that the city has not been able to deliver garbage to the plant for the past two weeks. Borsheim said while he doesn't want to go to the county with a negative attitude, he would like to find out whether the company plans to continue its operations. He said the cost of sending city garbage to a landfill in Grafton, ND, is cheaper, but harder on equipment. He said he has not received any satisfaction from the county on this matter. He was aware, he said, that county commissioners, the Nordhagens and consultants held strategy sessions this week during a lunch break.

Black and Veotch engineering firm, will give a visual presentation on ground water supplies near Thief River Falls at the next city council meeting. Alderman Kenneth Murphy said the public is invited to attend the session which will hopefully lay to rest any questions about finding adequate and economically feasible ground water supplies near Thief River Falls.

Members of the Pennington county historical society appeared before the council to request a contribution from the city. The city has made contributions before, which totaled over $3,000, but the funds came from revenue sharing funds. The city does not receive revenue sharing funds any more.

Inga Geving and Ellsworth Jorgenson described the functions of the Pioneer village and what its needs are to keep operating. Geving noted that 700 people toured the facility last year, which is operated mostly by volunteers. She said the visitation figure does not take groups into account. The county makes a contribution of $6,000 per year to the village. The city council referred the matter to the finance committee.

A proposed project to bring Thief River Falls into compliance with the 1984 pay equity act was adopted by the council. The council accepted a proposal from Arthur Young's Human Resources Consulting group. The firm agrees to conduct the study according to a work plan provided to the council for a fee not to exceed $7,000 and expenses not to exceed $2,000. The time frame for the study should not exceed 16 to 18 weeks.

In other business, the council: decided to refer the matter of replacing Richard Olson, custodian and meter reader, who is retiring, for further study; decided to terminate employment of Mitchell Hinden, sanitation department employee who has been on medical leave of absence due to an injury in May of 1984; granted a request for free use of Floyd B. Olson park for dairy day on June 9; rejected all bids on compressors at the sports arena on grounds that they discovered certain information which could significantly lower the cost of purchasing the compressors.

The council also received the presentation of the 1986 audit by Anderson, Poissant, & Kays. The audit did not reveal any irregularities.

NCC Advisory Board Hears Reports At Meeting Tuesday

Clearwater community college region president Dr. Alex Easton called enrollment in the three-campus region "phenomenal" as he made his report to the Northland community college advisory board Tuesday evening at Lon's restaurant in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Easton said enrollments are up 14 to 18 per cent overall for the region which includes Northland, Brainerd and Fergus Falls campuses. "When the region was formed there was concern about the possible closing of some campuses," he said. "We just don't hear that kind of talk anymore."

The president said he had spent some time in legislative committee meetings recently and that he believes the $3,710,000 bonding request for construction and remodeling at Northland looks good at this time. A supplemental request for another $500,000 project is not expected to fare as well as the community college system has adhered strictly to its original priority list.

Provost Dr. Allen Nichols said that the Northland campus enrollment for the spring quarter is nearly 900 students with a full-time equivalency of 509. He said that instructional space is extremely tight during the major 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. schedule and that a considerable amount of scheduling has had to be done for off-hour classes.

There are 191 students eligible for graduation at ceremonies to be conducted May 29 at 3 p.m. in the college gymnasium, following the capping ceremonies for the nursing class at 12:30 p.m. Students receiving associate degrees will be wearing red gowns and other participants will be formally attired this year, Dr. Nichols said.

Orin Green, vice chairman of the Northland Foundation, reported on activities of that organization. He reviewed the reorganization accomplished during the past year at which a 12-member board was completed with four members' terms to expire each year. Scholarship system employed by the foundation was reviewed and it was noted that 14 freshman scholarships and eight sophomore scholarships were awarded by the foundation last year. The scholarship amounts ranged from $300 to $500, based on the academic average of the students.

Marvin Lundin, vice chairman of the advisory board, reported on the delegate conference conducted in Minneapolis late in March.

Vice Provost Jim Haviland reviewed the summer session which will have six courses over two summer session sections. He reported that a computer camp will be offered to students in sixth through ninth grades with an instructor from Michigan. The two-week camp will be open to 30 students and has a cost of $96. He also gave a brief review of the curriculum for the law enforcement program which will leave the final of six quarters open for internship or four-year degree preparation.

The six summer session offerings will be "Fundamentals of Speech," "Golf," "Human Relations," "General Psychology," "Developmental Psychology" and "Microbiology."

A special attraction during the summer will be a program June 8-10 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. entitled "Living In Two Cultures." John "Pete" Humphrey, who traces his ancestry to the Indian tribes of Canada, will present the program on Indian folk lore, traditions, beliefs and challenges of living in a contemporary society while adhering to the beliefs of prior years. A resident of Brainerd he is a former faculty member at Brainerd community college.

Rider Training Helps To Reduce Cycle Accidents

A comprehensive motorcycle safety program that includes rider training has been helping to reduce motorcycle accidents in Minnesota for four years, according to public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

"The program, funded through motorcycle license fees, has been very successful in helping reduce the number of motorcyclist fatalities and injuries in our state. Fatalities dropped 14 per cent last year alone," said Tschida, "but in light of several recent tragic motorcycle accidents, we'd like to again stress the importance of taking rider skills training."

Lack of riding skill and inexperience are major factors contributing to motorcycle accidents, according to public safety statistics, even though high quality rider training is available throughout the state in over 87 communities and within a 25-mile radius of most Minnesotans.

The Minnesota motorcycle safety program offers both beginning and advanced motorcycle rider training. Motorcycles are provided in the beginning class, but riders must furnish their own in the advanced course. Motorcyclists can call the program's toll free number, 1-800-247-1303, to find out course locations and times.

Although we strongly recommend it, the state does not legally require adults 18 and older to take either a driver training or motorcycle training course," said Tschida. "However, legislators can change those requirements."

Riders under 18 years old are legally required to enroll in a training course before they are issued a permit to ride a motorcycle. The permit is valid for 45 days and may be renewed once. Riders under 18 must show proof that they have completed a training course before they are allowed to renew their permit. All riders must pass a motorcycle safety knowledge test to receive a permit.

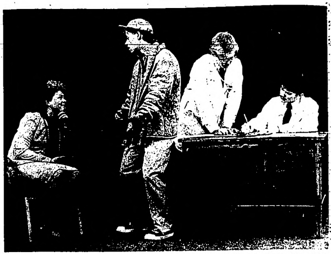
Riders with a permit must also observe some restrictions: They cannot ride at night, on freeways or carry passengers. They are required to wear a helmet, regardless of their age.

To receive the permanent motorcycle endorsement on their driver license, riders must pass a tough riding skills test developed nationally by the Motorcycle Safety foundation. Once they obtain the endorsement, only riders under 18 are legally required to wear a helmet.

The state's motorcycle program also mounts annual safety campaigns to inform and educate both riders and other drivers. This year's campaign, which includes television and radio public service announcements, billboards and bus posters, encourages riders to wear their helmets. Past campaigns encouraged riders to take training, reminded riders to use their front brake and warned other drivers to start seeing motorcycles.

"We strongly urge all riders to protect themselves by taking training to improve their skills and in-traffic techniques, wearing a helmet and other protective clothing, and not riding after drinking," said Tschida.

"We also want to caution drivers of other vehicles to make a special effort to watch out for the less visible cyclists and to give them the same courtesy, room and consideration that you give other drivers."



PLEADING with his teacher to let him have an experimental psycho surgery that could improve his mentality, Charlie (Brent Peterson) tries to convince Alice Kinnian (Tammy Strandberg) that it would be the thing to do. Also discussing the case are Nathan Dyrud (standing) as Dr. Nemur and Jay Wappula as Dr.S. Strauss. The scene is from the Middle River high school musical "Charlie and Algernon" to be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the former Hardware Hank store in downtown Middle River. Tickets will be available at the door for $2.50 (adults), $1.50 (students) and 50 cents for pre-school children. The musical will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Previous musicals at Middle River have been "How the West was Fun" and "Give My Regards to Broadway".

Buy Only Nursery Stock That Has Had Proper Care

Tips for the proper methods to store and display commercial plant items were released today by officials of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Art Mason, director of the Minnesota department of agriculture plant industry division, advised Minnesotans to purchase only nursery stock that has been well cared for.

"Packaged nursery stock should be stored and displayed in areas protected from extremes of heat and light," Mason said. "Plastic-wrapped plants need special care because sunlight can raise temperatures within the package and damage or kill the roots."

Mason added that bare-root nursery stock; plants that do not have their roots potted in soil, need to have roots completely covered with moisture retaining material at all times to keep their roots moist and cool. If bare-root nursery stock is displayed outside, the plants should be placed in a shaded area and protected from wind, he said.

"Exposed roots dry out rapidly," Mason stressed. "This can lead to a weakened plant that may not transplant well."

Mark Schreiber, supervisor of the regulatory services program, said Minnesota law requires balled and burlapped nursery stock to be kept in sawdust, peat or other moisture holding material.

"This material must completely cover and protect the root ball and should be kept moist at all times," Schreiber said.

Schreiber added that consumers would be wise to purchase locally-grown nursery stock. Stock grown in Minnesota is much more likely to adapt to our winters than stock brought in from other states, he said.

Itinerant Plant Vendors Need MN Certification

With the home landscaping season underway, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture Jim Nichols today advised Minnesota plant buyers to watch for the fraudulent sale of poor-quality nursery stock by uncertified vendors.

"Every year it seems someone loads the back end of a truck with trees dug from a nearby wooded area and tries to sell them door-to-door," Nichols said. "The probability of these plants surviving is not high, and the person selling the plants is in violation of several state laws."

Minnnesota department of agriculture officials are concerned that the purchase of these products increases the possibility of widespread dissemination of plant pests throughout Minnesota.

Art Mason, director of the Minnesota department of agriculture plant industry division, said it is unlawful to sell nursery stock that has not been inspected during the previous 12 months. He warned that purchase of uninspected plants may cause harm to nearby healthy plants.

"Anyone selling nursery stock must have a current dealer's certificate displayed in a prominent manner," Mason said. "This certificate will insure the plant you purchase should be of high quality."

Mason advised that anyone approached by a nursery stock vendor should request to see the current dealer's certificate for verification. Valid certificates run from November of 1986 to November of 1987. Often, door-to-door solicitors just claim to have purchased the stock from a certified agent, Mason said.

If the vendor does not show a valid certificate, Mason said the incident should be reported to local authorities and the Minnesota department of agriculture plant industry division, Mark Schreiber, supervisor, regulatory services program, at (612) 296-8507.

State Education Board To Study Attendance Law

President Marjorie Johnson of the state board of education has announced she will ask the board to conduct a major study of possible changes in current state law requiring students to attend public school only in the school district in which they live.

Johnson says the purpose of the study would be to build a legislative recommendation for presentation to the 1988 Minnesota legislature.

Johnson said the state board of education has been concerned about this issue for some time.

"The state board has the authority in certain very limited circumstances to allow students to attend school outside the district in which they live," she said. "The board has approved recent requests which have been permissible under law, but in many other cases the board would have liked to approve a request but was unable to do so because statutory authority did not permit that action.

"In the vast majority of cases, we cannot grant permission for students to attend school outside of the home district even if it is clearly in the best educational interest of the student," she added.

In preparation for the 1987 session, the board appproved and recommended a legislative proposal to give students more flexibility on choice of a school. In that proposal, the board recommended that a student who moves from one district to another be allowed to finish his or her education in the district wher he or she started school.

"I am aware that this legislation, as well as other proposals, is pending before the 1987 legislature, but I believe a complete solution to this problem will require a thorough study," Johnson said.

"The state board of education is in a unique position to bring together the entire education community — local school boards, teachers, administrators, and most important, parents and students themselves — to thoroughly examine all options and hopefully develop a consensus among those consulted on the best course of action to be recommended to the legislature.

"The time is right for looking carefully at this issue. Growing public awareness and increasing frustration with the lack of options under current state law have combined to bring this issue into the spotlight," she said.

Johnson, who made her proposal at the Tuesday meeting of the board, concluded: "As a former school board member and a past president of the Minnesota School Boards association, I am very aware of the need for some type of an organized school attendance system which allows local boards of edcuation to plan the delivery of instruction. However, the state board of education has, as its primary responsibility, the development of policy recommendations to the legislature which are in the best interest of Minnesota students. In my view, we need to look at the need for change in state law which might serve those interests."

Legion Poppy Days Will Be May 21 And 22 In TRF

May 21 and 22, Thief River Falls American Legion auxiliary volunteers will distribute familiar red, handcrafted poppies on sidewalks and in shopping areas in Thief River Falls to honor America's war dead. These days have been designated as Poppy Days by Ecklund-Holmstrom unit 117. Poppy Days are held to remind America-at-peace of the price of war and the sacrifice of millions of lives. At the same time, Poppy Days honors the veterans of America's four wars.

Planned to coincide with the Memorial Day holiday, the annual event pays tribute to veterans who died in the last 70 years. It also honors the millions of Americans who have willingly served their country in seven decades. All proceeds from Poppy Days are distributed in local programs for the benefit of veterans and their families.

The Poppy Day program began after veterans with shattered bodies and minds returned from France following World War I. The program was an effort of veterans to "take care of their own" and to remind the public of the debt owed to those who served and died. The practice continues today, honoring war dead from World War I, World War II, Korea and Viet Nam.

Each nine-piece poppy is made by veterans for veterans in auxiliary-sponsored Poppy Shops that supplement physical and psychological therapy needed by hospitalized and disabled veterans. The auxiliary provides the materials and the volunteer helpers. Veterans make the poppies and are paid a small amount for each flower. For some veterans, poppy-making is their only income.

No matter what the cost of maintaining and supplying the Poppy Shops, the memorial poppy is neve sold, but given in exchange for contribution.

The poppy program has been par of auxiliary programming for mor than 65 years. It has been estimate that approximately 25 millio Americans wear the poppy to hono America's war dead and he veterans, contributing nearly $ million for rehabilitation and welfar programs. The American Legio auxiliary is a million-member aide t the 2.7 million-member America Legion.

Legion Poppy Days Will Be May 21 And 22 In TRF

May 21 and 22, Thief River Falls American Legion auxiliary volunteers will distribute familiar red, handcrafted poppies on sidewalks and in shopping areas in Thief River Falls to honor America's war dead. These days have been designated as Poppy Days by Ecklund-Holmstrom unit 117. Poppy Days are held to remind America-at-peace of the price of war and the sacrifice of millions of lives. At the same time, Poppy Days honors the veterans of America's four wars.

Planned to coincide with the Memorial Day holiday, the annual event pays tribute to veterans who died in the last 70 years. It also honors the millions of Americans who have willingly served their country in seven decades. All proceeds from Poppy Days are distributed in local programs for the benefit of veterans and their families.

The Poppy Day program began after veterans with shattered bodies and minds returned from France following World War I. The program was an effort of veterans to "take care of their own" and to remind the public of the debt owed to those who served and died. The practice continues today, honoring war dead from World War I, World War II, Korea and Viet Nam.

Each nine-piece poppy is made by veterans for veterans in auxiliary-sponsored Poppy Shops that supplement physical and psychological therapy needed by hospitalized and disabled veterans. The auxiliary provides the materials and the volunteer helpers. Veterans make the poppies and are paid a small amount for each flower. For some veterans, poppy-making is their only income.

No matter what the cost of maintaining and supplying the Poppy Shops, the memorial poppy is never sold, but given in exchange for a contribution.

The poppy program has been part of auxiliary programming for more than 65 years. It has been estimated that approximately 25 million Americans wear the poppy to honor America's war dead and her veterans, contributing nearly $2 million for rehabilitation and welfare programs. The American Legion auxiliary is a million-member aide to the 2.7 million-member American Legion.

A copy of the book has been donated to the Thief River Falls public library. Mrs. Wilmot, a 196[illegible] graduate of Lincoln high school and a graduate of the University of Minnesota, lives in Angel's Camp, CA.

A review of the book notes that "To graphically demonstrate the author's findings, numerous charming line drawings fill the book, depicting the animals in various stages of communication. Judy Wilmot, the artist working in collaboration with the author, did extensive research into each type of animal shown in the book. Each illustration, and there are over 60 in the book, needed to demonstrate some form of communication.

"Judy spent over one and one half years researching and drawing the animals. She is a highly skilled and talented professional artist and illustrator . . . One of her specialties is the painting and drawing of wildlife. Many of her works may be seen on display in California galleries and private collections."

Dry Topsoil Concern Of Farmers Across All Of Minnesota

Farmers' concerns about dryness increased over the past week as the long run of unseasonably warm, sunny weather continued, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Topsoil moisture as of May 8 was rated 51 per cent very short, 42 per cent short, and seven per cent adequate. Topsoil moisture was generally regarded as adequate only in a small portion of the southeastern corner of the state. Days suitable for fieldwork averaged 6.5 during the week. Spotty, mostly very light rains were just enough to settle the dust in many areas, but weren't much help for the several inches of dry topsoil.

Small grains and other crops which were planted early, and are up and growing, are tapping good subsoil moisture reserves. Fields planted more recently tend to have some uneven emergence. Farmers planting corn are generally finding more moisture in reduced-tillage fields than in fields worked conventionally. Despite widespread dryness, some soybean growers are going full-speed ahead with planting, while others are planning to wait awhile longer for some rain.

The dryness and warmth of the current spring has led to record-breaking figures for early fieldwork and crop development. An estimated 98 per cent of spring wheat acreage has been planted versus 26 per cent a year ago and 64 per cent for the five-year average. Emergence at 73 per cent compares with last year's 11 per cent and the five-year average of 25 per cent. Spring wheat conditions as of May 8 was rated three per cent very poor, 10 per cent poor, 38 per cent fair, 47 per cent good and two per cent excellent.

Oats are 98 per cent planted compared with 56 per cent last year and 74 per cent for the five-year average. Emergence has reached 83 per cent versus 31 per cent for this date in 1986 and 35 per cent for the five-year average. Barley is 97 per cent planted compared with 17 per cent a year ago and 56 per cent for the five-year average. An estimated 68 per cent emerged this year compared with only seven per cent and 21 per cent for the five-year average.

Field corn ground preparation is 95 per cent complete compared with the five-year average of 57 per cent. An estimated 86 per cent of this year's acreage has been planted, in contrast with last year's 30 per cent and five-year average of 34 per cent. One-quarter of the acreage has emerged compared with none a year ago and three per cent for the five-year average.

Soybean ground is 73 per cent prepared compared with five-year average progress of 24 per cent. An estimated 34 per cent of the acreage has been planted, up from two per cent for this date in 1986 and five per cent for the five-year average for this date.

Sunflowers are 38 per cent planted versus none last year and four per cent for the five-year average. Sugarbeets are 99 per cent planted compared with 16 per cent last year and 68 per cent for the five-year average. Potato planting at 62 per cent complete contrasts with last year's 10 per cent and the five-year

Flaxseed is 38 per cent planted versus 11 per cent for the five-year average. Dry edible beans are 24 per cent planted compared with the five-year average of four per cent. Sweet corn and green peas for processing are 43 per cent and 80 per cent planted respectively; five-year averages are 16 per cent for sweet corn and 52 per cent for peas.

Existing hayfields were short and thin due to lack of spring rainfall. New seedings were germinating unevenly due to lack of moisture. Pasture was generally growing slowly and has begun to turn brown in lighter-soil areas.

Dinoseb Pesticide Indemnification Procedure Given

U.S. Environmental Protection agency (EPA) is accepting claims for indemnification and requests for disposal of suspended and cancelled dinoseb-containing pesticides. All claims must be filed with the agency by July 14, 1987.

In addition to seeking information on suspended and cancelled dinoseb stocks, EPA is also requesting all current holders of dinoseb stocks not eligible for indemnification to voluntarily provide the agency with the quantity and location of these stocks.

In the "Federal Register" notice issued April 15, 1987, EPA lists the registration numbers and product names of the dinoseb products that are eligible for indemnification and disposal. Also listed are those products that have been suspended but not cancelled and are not eligible for indemnification and disposal at this time.

On Oct. 7, 1987, EPA suspended the sale, distribution and use of dinoseb products and issued a notice of intent to cancel all dinoseb pesticide product registrations. These actions were based upon laboratory animal studies which showed that exposure to dinoseb products from field application posed unreasonable risks of birth defects to unborn children of pregnant women and significant risk of sterility to mail workers.

Under the federal insecticide, fungicide and rodenticide act, persons who suffer economic loss by reason of suspension and cancellation of a pesticide product are entitled to federal indemnification (compensation for loss) and disposal for stocks in their possession. Loss is limited to the direct cost of the product at the time of the suspension and cancellation action and does not include such items as transport or storage costs.

"EPA needs to know how much stock of dinoseb-containing pesticides there is to secure appropriate funding to make indemnification payments and provide federal disposal of dinoseb products," said William Sanders, director of EPA's regional environmental services division. "While we believe that considerable dinoseb stocks were being held by such users as farmers or commercial applicators at the time of our suspension and cancellation, we have learned that many registrants, manufacturers, and dealers have recalled existing stocks.

"Because of the corrosive nature of this chemical and because we believe that registrants and manufacturers generally have more appropriate storage facilities and more knowledge about safe storage, we strongly encourage the continuation of this practice."

EPA recommends that dinoseb materials be stored on pallets or similar raised platforms in a dry, well-ventilated separate room, building or covered area with a concrete floor where fire prevention is provided. Movement or handling should be kept to an absolute minimum.

Until EPA accepts the suspended and cancelled products for disposal, proper storage of these products is the responsibility of the party holding them. More details on appropriate storage will be provided with the claim forms.

EPA is currently in the process of obtaining a contractor to dispose of dinoseb.

"The proposed cancellation of some dinoseb products is being contested in a hearing and therefore these products are not eligible for indemnification or disposal at this time. Nevertheless, the agency is planning for the ultimate indemnification and disposal of these products should the hearing result in a decision to cancel them," Sanders said.

In order to be considered, all claims for indemnification and requests for disposal should be mailed to: Special Review Branch (TS-767C), Office of Pesticide Programs, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, 401 M. St., SW, Washington, DC 20460.

Claim forms can be obtained from the above address or from the Regional pesticide office in Chicago. Write to Richard Wunrow, EPA, 230 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, IL 60604, or call (312) 353-2192.

Leadership Key To Pet Behavior, Veterinarian Says

According to Robert K. Anderson, DVM of the University of Minnesota, unwanted behavior on the part of a dog or a cat usually signals a need for more leadership by owners in their relationship with pets. Ideally, the best relationships develop when people encourage positive pet behavior and good manners with leadership that empahsizes proper motivation and humane restraint.

Dr. Anderson was recently honored with the veterinarian award given yearly to a veterinarian for outstanding contributions to the field of human-animal relationships.

"We humans must realize that our pets need us to be leaders, not just partners," says Dr. Anderson. "Both cats and dogs become eager to please people when properly motivated by gentle leaders. Although the best time to teach our pet is when it's new to the household, it's never too late because older dogs and cats learn quite easily."

With Ruth Foster, past president of the National Association of Dog Obedience Instructors, Dr. Anderson has developed a new system of animal behavior modification called the Alpha-M System. It is based on the premise that pet owners must assume a clear leadership role, and teach the pet good manners by a system of motivation with positive reinforcement and humane restraint.

Using this system, Dr. Anderson helps people modify unwanted behaviors in dogs, such as barking, jumping and aggression toward people. More remarkable, cats can be taught to "come" or "sit." "Once a cat is eager to please people by obeying positive commands," says Dr. Anderson, "you can end many undesirable actions."

"In the first few days," he says, "you reward the pet with eye contact, voice contact, praise, petting and a bit of food each time he does what you want him to do. Then, according to scientific principles, you keep up all the other positive reinforcement, but give the food only intermittently. Pets really get involved when you keep them guessing, and they learn far more quickly and effectively."

Dr. Anderson grew interested in human-animal relationships as director of an Animal Control Program in Denver following World War II, when he saw many pets being euthanized because of unwanted behaviors. He is currently director of the Center to Study Human-Animal Relationships and Environments, CEN-SHARE, at the University of Minnesota. He and his colleagues conduct research and develop educational materials to improve health and quality of life for animals and people.

For example, their research has shown that it is safer for residents to have pets in nursing homes than to have visiting people or staff. They have also produced video-tapes and brochures to show people how to start visiting, and to show live-in pet programs in nursing homes.

To reduce your risk of heart disease follow these American Heart association dietary guidelines: keep saturated fat to less than 10 per cent of calories, total fat to less than 30 per cent of calories, and cholesterol to less than 100 mg. per 1000 calories (a maximum of 300 mgs. per day).

Forest History Center To Open Friday, May 15

Minnesota historical society's forest history center located near Grand Rpaids is set to open on Friday at 10 a.m. for its ninth season of operation. The center plans a full program of daily and special activities centering on the history of Minnesota's forest and its peoples.

The forest history center, a major part of the Minnesota historical society's statewide network of historic sites, features a multi-faceted approach to teaching the state's forest and human history. The center includes a rock and earth-sheltered interpretive building featuring exhibits and displays on forest history; a fully reconstructed 1900 logging camp complete with costumed guides; a 1934 Minnesota forest service patrolman's cabin and warehouse; and over two miles of woodland walking trails where common trees of Minnesota are identified and the modern environment can be enjoyed.

Pride In America Week Encourages Conservation

Russ Bjorhus, state FmHA director, has announced the first annual Take Pride in America awareness week set for May 17-23. Special events will be planned across the nation to encourage Americans to become personally involved in the protection and wise use of their natural and cultural resources.

Bjorhus said, "Since the Take Pride in America campaign began last year, I've seen a tremendous resurgence of citizen involvement in caring for public lands. The first year's Take Pride awards program has identified the most exemplary efforts all across the nation, proving that people can make a difference. Take Pride in America awareness week is being designated to encourage Americans to learn about and care about our natural resources and heritage."

Federal lands covered more than one-third of the United States and total over 700 million acres. Millions more acres of state, county and city contribute to our wealth and well being.

"These are America's lands that belong to each and every one of us," Bjorhus said. "But abuse and carelessness are robbing us of national treasures. We cannot afford to be complacent any longer. Individuals, organizations, corporations, educational and civic groups are encouraged to organize activities to help stop abuse and improve lands and resources."

Electricity Is Invisible Force That Can Harm

Electricity, that invisible force funneled into our homes to keep them humming, is a power taken for granted. So taken for granted, in fact, that people tend to forget that, if improperly used, it can be deadly.

For this reason, the month of May has been designated by the electrical industry as electrical safety awareness month. Acording to a spokesman for North Central Electrical League, the industry association sponsoring the campaign, the theme for the event is "What Some People Forget About Electricity Is Shocking". Posters illustrating this theme and consumer checklists of indoor and outdoor safety practices will be distributed by the 3,000 members of the league in the Upper Midwest.

Included in the campaign's safety tips are the following reminders to keep you shock-free:

+ Never, of course, mix water and electricity. Don't use an electric appliance if you're standing water, on damp ground or metal, or even if your hands or feet are wet.

+ Never trim trees around overhead lines. A tree branch has a high moisture content and can conduct electricity to you if it touches an overhead line. Remember that metal ladders and tree trimmers also can extend your reach to an overhead line.

+ Before you dig into the earth, check with utility companies to determine if electrical lines are buried underground. Most are buried three feet below the surface, but some may be more shallow.

+ Always assume a fallen or broken power line is "alive". If an overhead line falls on your car, stay inside. Warn witnesses not to touch the car but to call for help. If you must leave the car, jump from it, being careful not to touch the car and the ground at the same time.

+ Teach children never to climb utility poles, fences around electirc substations or trees near overhead lines.

+ Replace appliance cords that become broken or frayed. Don't put cords through doorways, under rugs or any other place where they receive excessive wear. And don't overload outlets. Ideally, there should be no more than two appliances plugged into an outlet, one in each slot, just as the outlet design indicates.

BICYCLE SAFETY has been featured in the Thief River Falls elementary schools recently by Thief River Falls police department and Minnesota state patrol. In the photo above officer James Haugen explains safety features of a 10-speed bicycle to Carolyn Walrath while Tiffany Hermanson watches. The girls are students at St. Bernard's elementary school. The bicycle in the photo was awarded at the bicycle safety clinic Saturday at the sports arena.

GATZKE . . .

I guess it is early but the blueberries are blooming. We also went for a drive one evening and what did we see but a big black bear.

The senior citizens met on Wednesday. Dr. David Brown of Goodridge showed slides on the Senior Federation and Safe Driving. Guests were Alberta Knutson, Mrs. Henry Holte, and Mrs. Nora Engelstad and Lori Ann Hagen. Mable Lunsetter and Karyl Larson baked the birthday cakes and birthdays celebrated were Ingeborg Loven, Esther Dahl and Arlette Ruud.

Mrs. Cheslie Ruud was a coffee guest on Thursday afternoon at the Bill Bernstein home.

More Elderly To Qualify For Rent Assistance Funds

Because the federal department of housing and urban development (HUD) has increased the maximum income people can earn and still be eligible for housing assistance more elderly in Thief River Falls will qualify for low income housing this year.

Elderly people who live or apply to live at Skylite Apartments will be eligible under the increased maximun, according to Sharon Kozoied, executive director of the local housing and redevelopment authority. The new income limit is $14,450 for a single person and $16,500 for a two-person family.

"Income includes wages, social security benefits, interest income, rental income, dividends and retirement benefits," Mrs. Kozojed said. "There is no limit on the person's or couple's assets owned — only on the maximum income limits listed."

Applications are being accepted at the housing and redevelopment authority office at 415 Arnold av. S., from people who are 62 years of age or older and qualified for rental assistance housing. Qualifying families and individuals must pay up to 30 per cent of their monthly income for rent and utilities.

Contact the organization by writing Housing and Redevelopment Authority, P.O. Box 246, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or calling 681-5995 between 8:30 a.m. and noon Monday through Friday.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Minnesota has long been a leader in protective laws for our natural resources and environment. Once again, the Minnesota legislature is considering a number of measures designed to strengthen these laws.

One of the most popular programs for protecting our natural resources has been the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program. Begun in 1986, RIM retires marginal cropland and establishes permanent vegetative cover to improve wildlife habitat, water quality and reduce soil erosion. Last year, the program was funded by the sale of $16 million in general obligation bonds, and it appears that we will continue the program at about the same bonding level.

Five years ago, the Minnesota acid deposition control act established an acid rain control program. That law requires the Minnesota Pollution Control agency (PCA) to identify areas of the state most sensitive to acid rain and to adopt a plan for controlling emissions that cause acid rain. It was the first law of its kind in the nation and was eventually used as a blueprint by the federal government. This year, we are considering a bill that will extend the original acid rain control program to monitor and study the effects of acid rain on our lakes and streams.

In order to encourage more recycling and better handling of hazardous waste, we are considering several amendments to Minnesota's waste management act. These amendments include permitting the PCA to establish a program to manage household hazardous waste and prohibiting disposal of lead acid batteries and used oil. Battery retailers would be required to accept lead acid batteries from customers, and motor oil retailers would have to inform customers where oil is collected.

Another proposal would require the licensing of all hazardous waste haulers, require minimum driver qualifications and establish tough provisions for repeat offenders of licensing requirements. Our current laws impose criminal penalties for illegal dumping of hazardous waste; however, the improper transporting or storage of hazardous waste is every bit as dangerous, and one of our proposals would impose criminal penalties for improper storage and transport of hazardous waste.

In 1985, we passed legislation which put tighter regulations on underground storage tanks to reduce incidents of leaking. The law implemented certain reporting requirements and is designed to take preventive action so that the PCA can locate active and abandoned tanks and develop standards for tank design, installation, monitoring and removal.

This year we are considering legislation that is designed to make certain there is money available for cleanup if there is a leak.

The bill establishes a "Petrofund," for which money will be collected by charging petroleum wholesalers a $10 fee per 1,000 gallons of inventory. The upper limit of this fund will be between $4 million and $5 million. Once wholesalers have cleaned up after a leak and taken corrective action, within certain limitations, they will be eligible for reimbursement of their costs from the fund.

These pieces of legislation are now being considered. Some may not become law. However, it is clear that the legislature will continue to monitor and protect Minnesota's natural resources and environment.

If you have questions or comments please contact me at (612) 296-8660, 306 Stae Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

From The

MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Legislators on a Minnesota House of Representatives committee are hard at work this week reviewing requests for a total of $123.3 million for new buildings and other capital work within the state university system.

The education division of the powerful appropriations committee, which approves all spending requests, is reviewing all building requests for the state's public post-secondary institutions. The work is funded with state bonds.

A final committee vote on the overall capital bonding bill is expected soon. If it's approved early enough, the bill could be sent to the House floor for debate this session before the May 18 deadline.

These capital requests include brick-and-mortar work like new buildings, and utility work. Constant improvements are needed at most institutions as students, programs and needs change. We need to remember that it takes more than good programs and good teachers to have quality education — appropriate facilities are needed, too.

Many of the capital requests are designed to keep our state at the cutting edge of technological developments and research, which adds to our quality of education and puts us in a competitive position for capturing jobs of the future.

From a practical standpoint, investing now in many of these projects makes sense because constructing new buildings only gets more expensive as time goes by, and because current interest rates are extremely favorable for financing.

I hope my fellow legislators are guided by the important goals of offering quality, accessible higher education and furthering our state's economic development when we consider these requests.

The state's community colleges requested a total of $48.3 million for capital work, including: a new library and college center at Itasca, remodeling the Physical Education building at North Hennepin and remodeling at Northlands. The University of Minnesota is requesting $148 million for projects that include: a new college of forestry building, a new biology building and a new earth sciences building.

Northland community college and the AVTI in Thief River Falls have requests in for funds for remodeling and additions. I have been working extremely hard all session on getting my colleagues to support me and vote for this most important issue for northwestern Minnesota. I want to thank all of you who have helped our cause via letters, calls and personal visits. It all has been very helpful. Hopefully, together we will succeed.

No. 1-Rated Bemidji Beats Prowlers, Wind . . .

Jacks Out-Score TRF 21-8

Bemidji, the No. 1-rated Class AA high school baseball team in the state, did a number on Thief River Falls Tuesday — beating the host Prowlers 21-8 in a game played during gale-like winds that turned even routine pop fly balls into adventures, and often-times runs.

The Lumberjacks ran their record to 12-0 with the six-inning victory. The Prowlers fell to 5-4. The 21 runs were the most runs the Prowlers have given up since Thief River Falls fielded its first high school baseball team in 1954. The previous high was 18, a figure Moorhead hit twice — in an 18-1 season-opener in 1979 and in an 18-8 second half of a doubleheader the following year.

A 10-0 winner over Thief River Falls last week, Bemidji out-scored the Prowlers 31-8 in their two North Sub-Region 8AA meetings this spring.

The wind was horrendous, but both sides were playing in the sand-filled gusts, so the Prowlers could hardly use that as an excuse. Bemidji collected 17 hits, and benefitted from 13 walks given up by three Thief River Falls pitchers, who were charged with four wild pitches. The Prowlers also committed seven errors.

Eight of the nine Bemidji batters collected hits. No. 9 batter Tom Kusel was 3-for-3 with a double and a triple and No. 8 hitter Cory Chwialkowski homered and had three RBI. Scott Eichstadt, hitting No. 2, was 3-for-5 with two doubles and four RBI.

Thief River Falls' defensive shortcoming surfaced almost immediately when a two-out infield error gave Bemidji two runs and a 3-0 first inning lead. It started with a lead-off single by Corey Boyer, who stole second, went to third on an infield ground-out and scored on a sacrifice fly by Rob Aitken. Tim Knudson then reached base on the error, Len Henry beat out an infield single and Mark Runningen walked to load the bases for designated hitter Gary Matthews, who drilled a two-run single to left-center to make the Prowlers pay dearly for the error.

Bemidji had trouble of its own defensively in the bottom of the first, picking up three errors and surrendering a surprising four runs.

Dean DuChamp drew a one-out walk to start the Thief River Falls first inning, moved up on an error on a pick-off attempt and on a passed ball, then scored when Tom Knoff's wind-blown pop fly fell into short right field for a double. An error on a bouncer hit to first base by Chris Nelson scored Knoff. A sacrifice bunt attempt by Mike Bendickson wound up scoring Nelson and putting Bendickson on second base because of an error on the play, then designated hitter Jason Lane hit a two-out fly ball to right field that was lost in the sun and slipped through the fence for a ground-rule double.

But it was a short-lived Thief River Falls lead. The first eight Bemidji batters in the second inning all reached base and all eight scored as the Lumberjacks rebuilt an 11-4 advantage. The inning included a two-run double to left by Eichstadt, a two-run single to left by Runningen and an RBI single over third base by Tim Knudson.

It was 16-5 going into the bottom of the fifth inning when it appeared Bemidji would simply complete the required five innings needed to collect the game-shortend 10-run rule decision. But the Prowlers kept it going with a three-run effort that included a single by Joel Swanson, who took an extra base on the play on an error, a bad-hop RBI single over third by Jared Erickson and a two-out hit-batsman (Chris Bjorgaard). Kory Joppru then walked and Knoff picked up two RBI on an infield pop-up that rode the wind for a single.

Thief River Falls' outburst simply delayed the inevitable, though, as Bemidji came back with a five-run sixth inning to end the game and produce that record 21-run total. The inning included a two-run home run by Chwialkowski, a triple to the fence by Kuesel, two walks, a hit-batsman, and a run-scoring wild pitch and error. Surprisingly in light of the wind that was blowing toward left field, Chwialkowski had the game's only home run.

Knoff finished with a 3-for-4 day at the plate and three RBI. Swanson was 2-for-3 and Lane went 2-for-4 with a pair of ground-rule doubles.

Knudson, Bemidji's hard-throwing No. 1 pitcher, had a route-going performance for the win, giving up eight hits, walking six and striking out eight. Bemidji had four errors — including those three first inning jobs. Nelson was the starter and loser for the Prowlers, leavig after surrendering those eight second inning runs. Joppru went the next three frames and Lane finished.

Thief River Falls will be in Crookston Thursday and will host Roseau Friday in 4:30 p.m. games. The Prowlers will also entertain Lake of the Woods Saturday at 1 p.m. and Crookston will be at the fairgrounds Monday at 4:30 p.m.

BEMIDJI RUNNER Tim Knudson came up with a stolen base as Thief River Falls second baseman Dean DuChamp tried to knock down the bouncing throw during the first inning of Tuesday's high school baseball game played here. The No. 1-rated Lumberjacks out-scored the Prowlers 21-8.

Bemidji Is An 11-4 Winner Over TRF In JV Baseball Action

Bemidji jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first two innings Tuesday en route to an 11-4 junior varsity high school baseball win over Thief River Falls.

The wind-swept game was played on the Northland Community College diamond.

Bemidji out-hit Thief River Falls 12-5. Rob Coltom was 2-for-4 for the losers. The errors were even at two-apiece.

Jason Kempert was the Thief River Falls starting pitcher. He took the loss after working the first three innings. Sean Myhrer finished the game in relief.

CHAD NUMEDAHL concentrated as he prepared to lift the weights during the squat portion of Monday's Lincoln High School weight meet. Paul Spyhalski served as a spotter during the attempt. Participants competed in the squat bench press lifts, with the combined weight total used to determine first place trophy winners in four weight classes for boys and a single weight class division for girls.

Name Weight Meet Winners

Second annual Lincoln High School weight meet was a lifting experience for some 70 participants and a good-size Lincoln gym audience Monday night.

Meet manager Jeff Mumm, Lincoln weight room supervisor and the Prowlers' head football coach, was delighted with both the number of participants and the size of the crowd, along with the performances of the lifters. It took nearly 4½ hours to complete the event.

"The kids are getting stronger," acknowledged Mumm. "The amount of time it took to complete the meet shows they're lifting more weight. We'll have to increase the starting weights next year."

Trophies went to the first place finishers for a combined squat-bench weight total in four weight classes for boys, plus a single weight class division for girls.

Sophomore Stacy Gjovik won the girls division with a 370-pound total, including a school record (for girls) 245-pound squat lift and a 125-pound bench press. Sophomore Nancy Verbout was a second place finisher with a 310-pound effort — a 205-pound squat and a 105-pound bench. Jill Olson was the third girl in the competition and the junior set a school record with a 145-pound bench press.

For the boys, senior Dave Harbott lifted 570 pounds to win the lightweight title with a 330-pound squat and a 240-pound bench. There was a second place tie with 560 pounds between junior Roy Kjear and freshman Jason Kempert. Kjear had a 330-pound squat and a 230-pound bench. Kempert had a 350-pound squat and a 210-pound bench.

Sophomore Jim Kappes won the middleweight trophy with a 690-pound total by lifting 450 pounds in the squat and 240 pounds in the bench. Sophomore Rick Looker was the runner-up finisher with a 230-pound squat and a 450-pound bench for a 680-pound total.

Junior Mike Bendickson was the light-heavyweight champion with a 700-pound lift. He went 450 pounds in the squat and 250 pounds in the bench. Second place was junior Paul Spyhalski with a 450-pound squat, a 240-pound bench and a 690-pound total.

Heavyweight winner was Joe Drevlow with 820 pounds, including a school-record 550-pound squat and a 270-pound bench. Runner-up was senior Quincy Lofberg with a 410-pound squat, 220-pound bench and a 630-pound total.

An additional record was set by junior Bill Dicken with a 320-pound bench press.

Mumm gave special thanks to the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club, who supplied the trophies for the meet winners.

Boys, Girls Northwest Outdoor . . .

Bemidji Wins Track Titles

Host Bemidji won both the boys and girls titles Tuesday at the annual Northwest Outdoor high school track meet.

Bemidji boys overwhelmed the opposition with 258 points, followed by East Grand Forks with 82, Thief River Falls and Crookston 67, and the Bemidji junior varsity 19.

It was another easy Bemidji win in the girls portion of the meet where the Lumberjacks collected 123 points, Thief River Falls 44, Crookston 42, and East Grand Forks 35.

Thief River Falls boys had a single first place finisher as senior sprint er Paul Brandt ran an 11.31 in the 100 meters — his second-fastest time of the spring. Brandt added a second place 23.69 in the 200.

Tim Olson, coach of the Thief River Falls boys, also cited senior Brain Stark's efforts in the 110-meter high hurdles where he had a second place 15.6 clocking — his best performance of the 1987 season.

Rest of the Prowlers had a tough time against Bemidji's depth.

Tom Schafer, coach of the Thief River Falls girls, was delighted with the Prowlers' performance yesterday as they came up with their first-ever runner-up finish in the meet that replaced the old Northwest Conference event and out-pointed Crookston for the first time this spring.

"We ran as well as we could probably run," reported Schafer. "The girls did very, very well. I was very pleased with their performances."

Thief River Falls junior Peggy Cruz won the 800-meter run with a strong 2:32 effort, and was part of the Prowlers' first place 3200 meter relay that ran a 10:12. Freshman Rhonda Rothschadl ran the lead leg on the relay, followed by freshman Lynn Mueller, Cruz and junior Christy Puetz.

Schafer also singled out the efforts of seventh grader Jodi Kruta, who had a second place 12.69 school-record showing in the 100 meters — just three-100th of a second behind the winner — added three inches to her high jump in a week's time for a third place 4-11 leap, and became the first Thief River Falls girl to go over 15 feet in the long jump in five years with a third place 15-6½ jump.

Freshman Alice Dunning added two feet to her shot put distance with a third place 33-6 toss.

Thief River Falls boys and girls will finish their 1987 schedules together with three more outings — Thursday at the Otter Invitational in Fergus Falls (3 p.m.); Friday in the East Grand Forks Invitational at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (4:15 p.m.); and Monday at the Roseau Twilight Invitational (5 p.m.).

MCC Grad Stars At Mayville State . . .

Olson Has Standout Career

Sue Olson, a Marshall County Central High School graduate, scored a bunch of points during her four-year basketball career that was completed this winter at Mayville State University. But nobody knows for sure just how many.

"We're missing the book from her freshman year here," explained Mayville coach Chuck Gremmels. "We've been looking all over for it, but unfortunately we haven't been able to find it. But it's safe to say that Sue is the second-leading scorer in Mayville State history. No doubt about that."

That's because Olson scored 850 points as a Mayville starting guard during her sophomore, junior and senior seasons under Gremmels, the Comets' head coach the past three years, who has his fingers on his books. There's a 1,000-point scorer on the Mayville charts, but nobody else is ahead of Olson's figures, even minus the numbers from her freshman year when she was a part-time performer.

But to Gremmels, there were more important things to Olson's game than scoring, even though she averaged 14 points per game as a senior.

Sue Olson

"She was probably the premiere guard in our conference," said Gremmels. "She has excellent ball-handling skills. She was very coachable. A very hard worker who provided us with some very valuable leadership."

Olson was a WCAND all-conference selection as both a junior and senior. She served as Mayville captain this winter, helping the Comets to a 17-8 record while leading the NAIA District 12 in free throw percentage (44 for 55, 80 per cent).

"We play in a very tough conference, and for Sue to be an all-conference player for two years says a lot for her skills. And she was as fine a young lady as you could hope to work with. She was a very good ball player and very strong academically, as well."

As a high school standout in Newfolden, the 5-8 Olson finished with 1,373 points for the Nordics before graduating in 1983—the only Marshall County Central girl to crack the 1,000 point barrier until Jodi Foss did it this winter as a senior.

MCC-Middle River Squad Split Pair Of Tournament Games

Marshall County Central-Middle River lost a 3-2 opening round decision in the bottom of the seventh inning to host Tri-County, then beat Kittson County North 16-7 in the third place game Saturday in a four-team invitational high school baseball tournament at Karlstad.

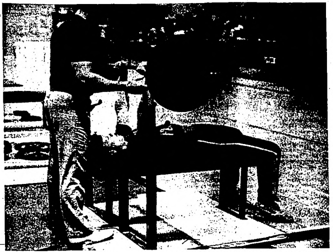
A lead-off double, an infield error and a walk loaded the bases with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning in the Marshall County Central-Middle River first round match-up with Tri-County, and a wild pitch plated the Rabbits' winning run.

Marshall County Central-Middle River had a 1-0 lead for most of the game after a Tom Blazek single and a Darin Rokke suicide squeeze bunt in the top of the first inning. Tri-County had a single and two doubles for a pair of sixth inning runs, but Marshall County Central-Middle River tied it at 2-2 in the top of the seventh on a single by Jon Kragness and an RBI base hit by Corey Johnson.

Rokke was the losing pitcher in relief of Kragness, who went the first five innings. Shannon Boen was the winner, also in two innings of relief work for Paul Olson. Tri-County had a 5-4 base hit edge.

Darren Wagner was 3-for-3 with three doubles in the third place game win over Kittson County North. Rokke, Kragness and Marc Gram all had two hits in the 16-hit Marshall County Central-Middle River attack. Blazek, Rokke and Corey Olson all shared in the pitching chores, scattering five hits. Tom Coffield, Dusty Strege and Troy Boroski all pitched for Kittson County North in the five-inning affair.

Marshall County Central-Middle River is 5-5 for the year.



BENCH PRESS was one of two parts of Monday's second annual Lincoln High School weight meet. Competitors also tried their hand at the squat lift, with the combined weight of the two events used to determine the winners in the various weight classes. Spotter Glenn Chiodo was ready to assist Brian Kertz on this attempt.

Busy Prowlers Golf At RLF

Start of a busy week for the Thief River Falls boys high school golf team found the Dick Tyler-coached Prowlers at the Red Lake Falls Invitational Tuesday.

Crookston won the event with a 318, followed by East Grand Forks at 323, Greenbush 337, Warren-Alvarado 340, Red Lake Falls and Roseau 350, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 359, Thief River Falls 364, Red Lake Falls junior varsity 433, and Hallock 434.

Darren Blue of East Grand Forks won medal honors in the wind-swept meet with a 77. Crookston teammates Jay Ricard and Mike Nelson both came in at 78.

It was a young Thief River Falls line-up used by Tyler yesterday as he substituted his junior varsity golfers for his varsity regulars. Wade Jorde led the Prowlers with an 86, while Geoff Antonenko had a 91, Roger Anderson 92, Tony Kozojed 95, Shawn Crowser 101 and Derek Lee 108.

Three more invitationals await the Prowlers this week — 9:30 a.m. starts today (Wednesday) at Park Rapids, Friday at Bemidji and Saturday at Warren.

Thief River Falls' regular season schedule ends Tuesday at the Moorhead Invitational. The Region 8AA meet will be held Wednesday, May 27, at Park Rapids.

TRF Girls Golf At Mahnomen

Most Region 8AA teams are expected to be on hand Thursday for the Alexandria Invitational girls high school golf meet. The 9:30 a.m. event will be held on the site of the 1987 Region 8AA meet, scheduled to be held Thursday, June 21.

Thief River Falls girls, who will be among those at Alexandria tomorrow, were involved in the Mahnomen Invitational Monday where Region 8A co-favorites Roseau and Walker went 1-2.

Roseau won it with a 373, followed by Walker at 387, Moorhead 402, Thief River Falls 407, Fosston 418, Bagley 433, East Grand Forks 444, Mahnomen 450, and Crookston 555.

Sara Huglen of Roseau was meet medalist with an 89. A playoff broke a three-way tie for the runner-up spot when Lisa Hanson of Fosston, Kelly Cornell of Thief River Falls and Julie Jamison of Moorhead all carded a 92. The playoff gave Hanson the No. 2 spot, Cornell No. 3 and Jamison No. 4.

Other three Thief River Falls meet-counting scores included Nancy Jorde with a 101, Jill Olson 105 and Stacey Cummings 109.

Coach Al Buhl's Prowlers will close out their 1987 regular season schedule with a 3:15 p.m. Monday dual at East Grand Forks and a 9:30 a.m. Tuesday invitational at Detroit Lakes.

Tennis Team Has Shutout

A 6-0 sweep over Mahnomen-Waubun Monday in high school tennis action completed a brief 1987 Thief River Falls home schedule.

Coach Whitey Olson's Prowlers made just three home appearances this spring, beating Bemidji 5-2 in a May 5 dual meet encounter, finishing second to Moorhead in the May 7 Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational, then blanking Mahnomen-Waubun Monday in a match shortened from a usual seven-point encounter to six points because of a shortage of players for the visitors.

Thief River Falls will finish its regular season schedule Thursday in Moorhead when the Prowlers will meet the Spuds and Fergus Falls in a double-dual format starting at 2 p.m.

Post-season play next week will include the North Sub-Region 8AA team competition Monday and individual play Wednesday, both at Detroit Lakes.

National Fishing Week Is Scheduled For June 1-7

President Reagan has proclaimed June 1-7 as National Fishing Week, recognizing the 60 million residents of the United States who participate in sport fishing. He also recognized the $28 billion contribution that sport fishermen make to the economy of the country.

In his proclamation message, President Reagan stressed the abiding benefits that fishing can give to our citizens — especially our younger citizens. The proclamation states that fishing can teach the importance of clean water and a safe and stable aquatic environment; that fishing provides individuals a wholesome recreational pursuit that promotes a sense of learning and accomplishment; and that anglers can find values in themselves that can serve to shield them from the perils of drug and alcohol abuse.

This is only the second year that National Fishing Week has been recognized by Congress and the President of the United States. However, this will be the ninth year of observance.

National Fishing Week was first established by the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association in 1979.

Sharon Coe, Executive Director of the Future Fisherman Foundation, said, "National Fishing Week is a time to get out and enjoy fishing. If you have never tried fishing, June 1-7 is the week to involve the entire family and learn about fishing. Fishing is an excellent family activity, and can promote communication, cooperation and sharing among family members."

The President stated in his proclamation that fishing can help shield youth from the perils of drug and alcohol abuse. "The Future Fisherman Foundation feels very strongly that fishing provides youth a time and a place to think things out and that it provides them a fun, enjoyable activity that can actually reduce the stress that builds up in their lives," said Coe. To help spread this message the Future Fisherman Foundation developed a theme called "Hooked On Fishing — Not On Drugs".

Nancy Reagan also recognized the important role fishing can play in the fight against drugs. In a letter to the Future Fisherman Foundation she stated, "Your Hooked On Fishing — Not On Drugs education program not only reminds young people of the tragedy and emptiness of drug addiction, but also points the way to a healthier, more wholesome life. Recreational activities have the added benefit of instilling an appreciation of nature and pride in our Nation's outstanding natural resources."

"These are just a few of the ways that fishing can have an impact on your life and that of your family's," commented Coe. "Help your family learn how to fish by locating one of the many fishing clinics being held throughout the country, or stop by your local fishing tackler retailer."

House DNR Budget Threatens To Close Old Mill State Park

Recent budget legislation passed by the Minnesota House of Representatives will have some far-reaching effects in northwest Minnesota, according to Merlyn Wesloh, Regional Administrator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Northwest Region.

"The House budget reduced the department's request by $3 million, but that total effect of the bill would leave the department about $6 million short of what it needs to fulfill its obligations over the next biennium", Wesloh said. "The House bill does not take into account the effects of inflation and only partially accounts for state employee contracts coming up for renewal this year; and the department will have to pay an estimated quarter-million dollars in sales tax that we hadn't budgeted for."

House budget would also cause layoffs and service cut-backs in the region. "If this bill stands as-is, the Northwest Region would have to close two state parks: Little Elbow Lake State Park near Waubun and Old Mill State Park near Argyle. This would lay off a total of ten employees in our region, just in the parks division, and nine other parks would have to be closed in the rest of the state. This would also impact local economies in communities near the parks," Wesloh said.

"Our forestry programs would also be hit hard," Wesloh continued, "We would have to reduce or discontinue forest management services to about 600 landowners in the region under the Private Forest Management Program, that's the program set up by the legislature to assist owners of small-acreage woodlands. It would also eliminate the assistance we planned to give landowners planting trees under the federal Conservation Reserve Reforestation Program; that would involve 18,000 acres over the next two years."

Other effects in the region would involve informal timber sales agreements with local loggers and leasing of state lands for agricultural purposes. "The DNR would have to cut in half the mumber of informal agreements on timber sales that we do now", said Wesloh. We would also have to eliminate the leasing of state-owned land for agricultural uses."

House budget would also force the elimination of other DNR Programs including the forest soils program, the insect and disease identification laboratory, a DNR sign shop in Grand Rapids, the counter sales at the DNR License Center, maintenance on 14 state forest campgrounds, and cooperative efforts with some federal programs.

"Cutbacks like this eventually have an effect on the quality and effectiveness of al our resource management programs and services to the public", Wesloh said. "We've also had requests from within the legislature and elsewhere to implement new programs and expand several others. Meeting all these priorities will be difficult, if not impossible, unless the House and Senate can agree on a budget bill more appropriate to their own goals for the department."

Fishing Opener Set Saturday

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) notes that the general fishing opener for walleye, northern pike and lake tout will open on Saturday, May 16. The Governor's Opener will be held in the Fairmont chain of lakes.

Legal hours for fishing will begin at midnight, May 16. Season and bag limits for inland waters will remain the same in 1987. The limit for walleyes is six, for northern pike is three, with the season continuing until Feb. 15, 1988.

Other openers in 1987 include the muskie season, starting June 6, and the bass opener on May 30, except in the area north and east of Highway 53 from Duluth to International Falls, which opens May 16 for bass.

One major change in state fishing regulations this year is that the muskie size limit has been increased to 36 inches statewide, except for several counties in southwestern Minnesota and Big Man Trap Lake (Hubbard County) and Shoepack Lake (St. Louis County).

Also, several changes are noted in the Canada-Minnesota border waters where changes in seasons and limits were made for northern pike, muskie, bass, sturgeon, and crappies. This year anglers will also be able to enjoy a reciprocal agreement with North Dakota in fishing the Red River of the north.

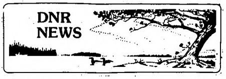
Several additions to the experimental waters also occurred in 1987. Included are increased northern pike bag limits on Nord Lake in Aitkin County, Dead and Star Lake in Ottertail County, Detroit, Sallie and Melissa lakes in Becker County.

In these lakes, possession of northern pike is six, with not more than three exceeding 24 inches in length. This follows for all but Nord Lake, where only one may be in possession over 24 inches in length.

On Lake Saganaga, a maximum size limit exists where only one walleye over 22 inches in length may be in possession. Other Canada border water changes include a muskie size limit at 40 inches, with the season opening June 20. Large mouth and small mouth black bass season is continous. The northern pike limit is increased to six except for Rainy Lake, which remains at three. The crappie limit has been established at 30. Still in effect on Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake are increased limits for walleye — on Lake of the Woods it's 10 and on Rainy Lake it's 8.

License fees remain the same in 1987. An individual resident license is $9.75. A husband-wife resident license is $13.75. A trout stamp is $5.

Children under 16 years old and seniors, age 65 and older, may fish free.



Forest and other natural undeveloped areas are places where people can get away from it all to find that much needed peace and serenity. Many take the family to enjoy events such as sliding, skiing, sightseeing, berry picking, or just for a family picnic

In recent years such areas have also become a favorite area for some to unload their accumulation of trash. Spring clean-up time seems to be the worst. Many wooded and forest areas are beginning to show the ill affects of people who leave their garbage in the forest for all of us to witness. Recently, city, county and state officials have begun to crack down on this serious problem, according to Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry officials from Warroad.

When an illegal dumping site is discovered, the authorities investigate the site. Evidence is collected from the refuse to cite responsible individuals or for the court to convict them.

Fines for littering depend on the seriousness of the offense. For small amounts such as a candy or cigarette wrapper the fine may be $25. A single bottle or tin can can be $100 and for large amounts of litter, as much as $300. Often additional restitution charges are imposed by the court to cover the cost of cleaning up the debris. A trip to the landfill with garbage is by far the better alternative, say officials.

Moose Hunt Correction

A recent DNR news article announcing the 1987 moose season incorrectly stated that any hunter issued a license since 1987 may not apply for this year's hunt. It should have read since the 1977 season. Also, the License Center phone number is (612) 296-2316.

Award Winners

Minnesota Environmental Education Board (MEEB) has announced its selection of two state educators as Outstanding Environmental Educators of the Year.

Mary Lou Klinkhammer of Shoreview and Dr. Arlyn A. Kline of Mankato were both presented by the MEEB Board with the Bill Miles Environmental Educator of the Year Award, according to MEEB Executive Director Janet Johnson.

"Dr. Kline was chosen in the Professional Category in recognition for the over 20 years of dedicated service he has given to environmental education of all varieties in the state," Johnson said.

Klines' environmental education activities go back to the movement's beginnings in the state during the 1960s-70s. "He has unquestionably been more responsible than any other single individual in south-central and southeastern Minnesota for providing the environmental awareness which now exists among teachers and students in his region," she added.

Klinkhammer was chosen in the Volunteer Environmental Educator category for her contributions to environmental education, which are well-known at all levels, especially through her affiliation with MEEB, Mankato State University and the Acid Rain Foundation," Johnson noted.

Klinkhammer's cooperation with related environmental organizations is well known through such groups as the Pollution Control Agency, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the DNR Wildlife Section, The Minnesota Zoo, Metro Area Nature Centers, the Minnesota Environmental Sciences Foundation, the Minnesota Department of Education, and the Metro Area Public Schools.

DNR Seeks Forestry Director

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Commissioner Joe Alexander announced that the agency is seeking qualified applicants for the position of Director of the DNR Forestry Division.

"I expect we will be conducting interviews for the position beginning in late May and that an appointment will be made no later than July 1 of this year," Alexander explained. He said he is appointing an independent interview board, which is broadly representative of the public and forest users, in order to "carefully screen and recommend those applicants for the post best qualified for this demanding position."

Among the qualifications to be used in evaluating candidates, he said, are:

— Experience and demonstrated ability to carry out the professional aspects of the job;

— Demonstrated ability to lead and supervise;

— An ability to resolve controversial issues;

— A talent for establishing good rapport with the public;

— The ability to make presentations before legislative committees and other groups;

— A knowledge of state government and the structure of DNR, including lines of authority;

— A good working knowledge of finance and budgeting procedures, and — Willingness to travel extensively, appearing at various department-affiliated meetings, and maintain close relationships with DNR staff in St. Paul, DNR field personnel and the public.

Digging Wildflowers Illegal

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Scientific and Natural Areas (SNA) Program would like to remind users of scientific and natural areas that the picking or digging of wildflowers in these areas is illegal.

People are often unaware of the damage they are doing to plants, sensitive resources, and to special uses of state natural areas.

Scientific and natural areas have been established to protect and manage some of Minnesota's most unique and scarce natural resources. Besides protecting remnants of Minnesota's original plant and animal communities, these areas are open to the public for nature observation, educational use and scientific research. The types of habitat protected are very uncommon and in many cases serve as habitat for numerous rare and endangered species. The digging up of even a common wildflower may inadvertently destroy an inconspicuous, endangered species or interfere with some long term research project being conducted on the area. Plants transplanted from the wild often do not survive in people's gardens since they have very specific habitat requirements.

Persons interested in growing wildflowers should contact any of the many wildflower nurseries throughout the state. Nursery-grown stock is usually of superior quality and is shipped at the most opportune time for planting. Flowers growing in the wild are better left alone. Remember, the existence of many of our wild plants tomorrow may depend on your not disturbing them in scientific and natural areas today.

An additional reminder: plants acquired from a nursery are considerably cheaper than the costs associated with a court summons and restoration costs for this illegal activity.

Franklin Middle School

Results were received this week for the Thief River Falls Invitational junior high school track meet held Thursday.

Bemidji boys won the eighth grade portion of the meet with 131 points, followed by Tri-County with 97, Crookston 65, Thief River Falls 50, Red Lake Falls 22, and Marshall County Central 7.

Boys from Bemidji also won the seventh grade portion of the meet with 180 points, followed by Crookston with 83, Marshall County Central 38, Thief River Falls 37, Red Lake Falls 17, and Tri-County 11.

Tri-County boys won the sixth grade portion of the meet with 60 points, followed by Bemidji with 42, Thief River Falls 37, and Marshall County Central 36.

Thief Rver Falls boys were at less than full strength for the meet, explained coach Clay Houselog, who figured the Franklin Middle School squads would have been title-challengers with a full roster.

Bemidji girls won the sixth grade portion of the meet with 100 points, followed by Tri-County with 53, Thief River Falls 33, and Marshall County Central 4.

No scores were received from the seventh and eighth grade girls competition.

Franklin runners will compete Friday in a dual meet at Bemidji and will complete their 1987 schedule Tuesday at Grafton.

DNR Provides Free Licenses, Piers For Disabled Anglers

Minnesota Department of Natrual Resources (DNR) has taken steps to enhance the enjoyment of recreational fishing for disabled Minnesota residents. Through separate programs, the DNR provides free fishing licenses for many disabled state residents and is continuing to provide increasing numbers of handicapped-accessible fishing piers on Minnesota lakes and rivers.

State residents who are blind; recipients of Supplemental Security Income (SSI) for the aged, blind and disabled; recipients of Social Security Aid to the Disabled; recipients of Workers Compensation based on a finding of total and permanent disability; or military veteran's who have a 100 per cent service-connected disability as defined by the U.S. Veteran's Administration are eligible to receive permanent angling and spearing licenses through the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul or their county auditor.

Residents who are mentally retarded and at least 16 years old are also eligible for free permanent licenses. Residents of state institutions who are wards of the Commissioner of Human Services may receive free seasonal angling licenses upon application by the Commissioner to the DNR License Bureau.

Other persons are eligible to fish without a license provided they carry proof of eligibility. Retired, disabled railroad workers receiving aid under the Federal Railroad Retirement Act and retired, disabled U. S. Postal employees may fish without a license if they carry evidence of their disability retirement with them while fishing and while traveling to and from the fishing location.

Residents and patients of state hospitals, state correctional facilities, and U.S. Veteran's Administration hospitals may fish without a license if evidence of written consent from the superintendent or chief executive of the institution is in possession while fishing and traveling to and from.

Construction of handicapped-accessible fishing piers on Minnesota lakes and rivers is made possible by the DNR's Project CORE (Cooperative Opportunities for Resource Enhancement). The project was created in 1983 by the Minnesota Legislature as part of the Omnibus Fishing Bill. The bill invited the public to cooperate in DNR fish-management projects which would involve local sponsorship of projects, participation by volunteers, or cost sharing. Most projects center on fish habitat enhancement and angler use. CORE projects are funded by DNR fish and wildlife funds and some funding from the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) legislation and, in the case of fishing piers, usually involve cost sharing with local units of government or citizen's organizations to provide parking areas, access to the piers, and continued maintenance of the site.

Handicapped-accessible fishing piers are currently in place on five lakes in the northwest Minnesota region: Lake Bemidji, Spirit Lake at Menahga, Straight Lake at Osage, Little Detroit Lake at Detroit Lakes, and two piers at Lake Bronson. Four additional piers will be installed by the end of June, 1987 on: Birch Lake at Hackensack, Lake Belle Taine at Nevis, Long Lake at Vergas, and Red Lake River in Thief River Falls. A total of 28 piers are already in place throughout the state and 19 more are scheduled for installation this summer.

For more inforormation on free fishing licenses for the disabled or the location of DNR fishing piers, call toll-free 1-800-652-9747 and ask for the DNR Information Center.

Help!!! Help!!! Homes, hobby farms needed!

THE MOST IMPORTANT THING YOU CAN BUY

The percentage of Americans who own their own homes is the highest in the world, but the reason we buy them is changing.

A survey released recently by the Real Estate Research Corp. says in the mid to late '70s, people bought as much for investment as for use. Now, however, they are buying because they want a good place to live.

James Christian, chief economist and senior vice president for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions says the housing market now is harking back to the '50s and '60s, when housing demand was not driven by the rate of inflation. "Being a homeowner doesn't just fill up your pocketbook, it fills your soul," he says. "It's a way of saying 'I've achieved something,' a way of getting a great deal of personal satisfaction."

Owning your own home is still a good financial investment. If inflation returns in force, owning your own home will again be a great hedge. Even with only minimal inflation now, demand is already forcing the price of homes up.

But Mr. Christian is right. Nothing else you can buy makes as much difference in the way you live.

State Auditor To Address County Officers May 20

Arne Carlson, Minnesota state auditor, will address a meeting of county officials from Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties Wednesday, May 20, at 3:30 p.m. in the Polk county courthouse at Crookston.

Carlson will discuss the Minnesota financial health program and the financial health profiles of each county at the meeting — part of a statewide series of seminars conducted by Carlson and the financial health program staff to explain financial trends in the counties.

The Minnesota financial health program is a statewide trend monitoring system initiated by the auditor's office as an "early warning system" to identify symptoms of financial stress in cities and counties. Using its data base, the auditor's office generates computerized profiles of the 180 cities over 2,500 population and all of the state's 87 counties, identifying four-year trends in several areas.

The areas are economic vitality, current financial condition, future solvency and management practices. In analyzing the trends, the office of state auditor compares individual cities or counties to similar-sized units in the state and to nationally-accepted benchmarks. Purpose of the analysis is to promote strategic planning and financial management and provide information to state and local policymakers.

MN Communities Strike Up The Band

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Participation in community bands throughout Minnesota appears to be on the upswing. Northland community band, located in Thief River Falls, recently participated in the Minnesota community band festival at Cragun's resort in Brainerd, discovering more people interested in participating instead of watching.

Striking up the band appears to be coming more and more popular. Two years ago there were 27 community bands in the Metro area of Minneapolis-St. Paul, according to Dr. Earl Benson, director of the Medalist band, which probably has one of the longest traditions of musical performances in Minnesota. Now there are 43. Benson said this is even more amazing because there were only two community bands in Minnesota 10 years ago.

Les Torgerson, director of the Northland community band, attributes the renewed interest to a movement toward active participation instead of viewing. Of course, more people also apparently want to use their high school and college musical training.

For many years, people were satisfied to just watch or listen, Torgerson said. Maybe these people have discovered that they prefer to participate.

There are hundreds of trained musicians in communities all over, Torgerson said. All it takes is someone to start a community band and the rest will follow.

Torgerson said community bands were popular around the turn of the century or more precicely—when John Phillip Sousa was popular. A combination of factors probably led to a decline in interest. The introduction of music into the post secondary education system and World War II probably contributed much to a decline in interest.

For many, music is generally not a very good way to make a living. There are professionals able to make a living, but for most people, music is a lifelong source of recreation and pleasure, Torgerson said. If the public school system continues to train people to be musicians there should be a place for them to continue as musicians once they leave school.

"The public school music educators better wake up and realize that there ought to be a place for the students they train once they complete their education. Music should be part of a life long pleasure," Torgerson said.

One of the reasons for the increased interest in community bands is the many people who want to do something with all of the training they have received, Torgerson said.

Besides enjoyment for members, the community band can be an asset to the community, Torgerson said. Although Northland community band doesn't perform all year long, it does portray Thief River Falls as a community with a cultural base. Businesses and people interested in moving to a community often take into account all aspects of a community, including wheather it has cultural activities. "A lot of people feel the need to express themselves artistically and musically," Torgerson said.

The Northland community band is sponsored jointly by the city of Thief River Falls and Northland community college. The band was founded in 1972 and later merged with the Thief River Falls municipal Legion band to create the present ensemble.

The primary purposes for establishing this organization were and continue to be: to provide post high school and college musicians with an opportunity to perform and maintain their valuable skills; to provide Northwestern Minnesota and the city of Thief River Falls with high quality musical concerts; and to be a cultural and artistic force in Northwestern Minnesota by extending invitations to noted guest composers and musicians to highlight clinics and concerts for area music enthusiasts.

The community band in Thief River Falls draws its members from a wide range of ages and professions. There are eighth grade students from Franklin Middle school in Thief River Falls, adults who have retired from an active business life to active retirement, and all ages in between. Many of the musicians in the Northland community band are music teachers, a number of whom come from outside the immediate Thief River Falls area. However, there are also professional and skilled people from all occupations in the band.

Joel Fremstad, an eighth grader and one of the youngest members of the Northland community band, believes he has benefited from the experience of performing alongside older and more experienced musicians. It was difficult at first, but it got much easier to get along with the others later, Joel said.

Ormond Johnson, another member of the Northland community band, has probably been with the band longer than any other musician in the band. Ormond said he joined the city band around 1956. At that time band was sponsored by the American Legion and the city.

LES TORGERSON, director of the Northland community band of Thief River Falls, recently traveled with the band to Cragun's resort by Brainerd for the Minnesota community band festival. The group performed for McIntosh and Oklee high schools and at the Minnesota community band festival at Cragun's resort. Two ensemble groups also performed a concert at the Lutheran Church of the Cross at Nisswa.

"Two years ago there were only 27 community bands in the Metro area. Now there are 43"

It was difficult to keep a band together then, Ormond said. Just getting 25 musicians together was difficult. Ormond said interest in the band has increased. It is not uncommon lately, to have 50 to 60 members in the band. The reason being, he said, is because music and college oriented player have been attracted to playing. Les (Torgerson) has also attracted the best students and musicians throughout the area, which makes for a better band. The trips and concerts at the college also seem to appeal to the better players.

In the past, the band was primarily a summer band. It was very difficult to keep players together in the summer because of vacations and farm work. The way things are being done now seem to work well, he said. And, of course, Les believes in making it work.

Over the years, Ormond said he has seen many changes. "It's a pretty interesting and fun group to be with—The faces change but it has continued to be a nice group," Ormond said.

Of course the success of the band could not have been achieved without the community support, Ormond said. The city council, the college and the community have been especially helpful, which makes for a good band.

Torgerson said musicians come as far as 40 to 50 miles to participate in the Northland community band, which speaks highly of their dedication. They come from Karlstad, Red Lake Falls, Goodridge, Plummer, Clearbrook, Fosston, Thief River Falls, Newfolden and Warren. Torgerson said Thief River Falls draws a pretty good crowd because it is probably the only community band in this area of Minnesota.

While Thief River Falls can boast of a highly dedicated group of individuals, more populated areas can boast of even greater interest. The distances aren't as far and there are a lot more musicians to draw from. The Lakewood community college adult band, the Minnesota Symphonic Winds and the Medalist concert bands, bands which participated in the Second Minnesota community band festival, have a long waiting list of musicians interested in performing with these groups.

Dr. Earl Benson, director of the Medalist concert band, believes the future of community band is extremely bright. In the Bloomington area where the Medalist band performs, there are now two bands.

The Medalist band began its tradition of excellence in music about 20 years ago, Benson said. It is the oldest functioning band in the Metro area and has been a catalyst of encouragement to others, he said.

The Medalist band does not have auditions as such. The group doesn't believe in requiring the tough type of tryout schedules. "Basically once you're in, you're in," Benson said. "We have a long list waiting to join the band because nobody wants to quit."

Nobody gets paid to perform in the band, yet for many, the practices and performances add up to quite a sacrifice. The Medalist band meets for two hours every Monday night, every week except eight weeks in August and September when the band takes a break. This group performs about 20 concerts a year.

The band does get some money from the community which pays indirectly for a few positions, but no one gets a salary. It's a sharing of talents with everyone that makes it worthwhile, Benson said. Benson said his group is drawing better musicians all the time. In fact, some of the band members are professional musicians. However, the band also includes people from all kinds of occupations. Benson said he strongly believes that behind every person in his band is an interesting story.

All this activity in community bands indicates to Benson that this is a real success story for music in Minnesota. The underlying reason for this success, Benson said, is a good teacher somewhere.

"We have seen a veritable reversal in trends during the past 10 years," said Miles Johnson, director of the Minnesota Symphonic winds. There was a time when community bands were an important part of a community, but then interest dropped off, he said.

SUNRISE, Charles Roux, Thief River Falls, is silhouetted against a rising sun at Cragun's resort by Brainerd where Northland community band participated in the Minnesota community band festival. Interest in community bands is increasing. Two years ago, for example, there were 27 community bands in the Metro area of Minneapolis-St. Paul. Now there are 43.

BRASS. A brass quintet was one of the ensembles to present a concert during a recent tour by Northland community band of Thief River Falls to the Minnesota community band festival. Pictured from left are: Les Torgerson, trombone; David Hill; baritone; Steve Anderson, tuba; Jim Solsten, trumpet; and Mike Lehrer, trumpet.

Johnson, director of the St. Olaf concert band in Northfield, said he was worried about working the community band schedule into his busy teaching schedule, but working with the community band soon became the highlight of his week.

Johnson said it was tough getting started but it has continued to improve. He believes the reason for his change in attitude belongs to a musically sensitive group of adults. He said the adults seem to have a different perspective than students and are more sensitive to the music.

Nevertheless, it has taken a long time to develop a complete group. The Minnesota Symphonic Winds, which also draws its performers from a wide variety of occupations and ages, has been performing concerts about eight years.

Like many other bands, the Minnesota Symphonic Winds also has a long waiting list of musicians waiting to join the band. Johnson believes this is indicative of growth and interest in community bands across Minnesota. He does not predict anything but continued growth for community bands.

This was only the second Minnesota community band festival to be held. Four bands participated this year, but judging from the enthusiasm of the directors and their spoken wishes to increase its size and scope, there will be many more conferences like the one held at Cragun's resort.

Life has been a succession of beginnings.
Until the day you graduate! Now suddenly you are on the doorstep—not of the future—but of your future.
Relationships now become increasingly important. Ambitions clamor for realization. And, most important, convictions have to be tested in the laboratory of life.
Where do we gain those convictions? Hopefully, years before graduation, encouraged by earnest parents, we will have learned about God and His truth. For millions of fortunate young men and women who graduate this month . . . a neighborhood CHURCH or SYNAGOGUE.

NORWEGIAN BENEFIT SUPPERS REVISITED

Teen-agers dressed in red and white Telemarken costumes were hurrying between the tables, picking up dishes and setting up new places. Just below the stage of the gymnasium, three lines of people moved slowly along the long tables, choosing from trays of steaming turkey, ham, meatballs and all the trimmings.

We were at the Gonvick-Trail school smorgasbord, an annual event that attracts hundreds of people each spring.

The logistics and planning required by such an event are almost beyond imagination. But the women of the community come through year after year, providing delicious hot food to appreciative visitors and residents. To live up to the name "smorgasbord" tastes of "sodt sopa" (sweet soup) and "risenkrem" (rice and cream) were offered along with platters of the traditional seven sweets: "rosettes," "sandbakkles," and the like.

And lefse. Platters heaped with rolled lefse were on each dining table. That is one thing the women did not have to make. The Winsor lefse plant furnished that. Many years ago a local inventor, George Herberg, got the bright idea to convert a tortilla machine from Mexico into a giant lefse maker. A mixture of potatoes, flour and cream is put into the machine, and after much shaking and lots of steam, lefse comes out on a conveyor belt. While the plant ships much of its product to Nevada and California where it is used for hors d'oeuvres, once a year Gonvick itself consumes an amount that rivals the West's.

All in all, the smorgasbord is a full afternoon of entertainment, for in addition to good food, polka bands play and rosemalers demonstrate their art.

The smorgasbord was started over 20 years ago by The Band Mothers to raise money for school band uniforms. It has continued as an important source of funds for musical instruments and band trips for Gonvick-Trail students.

This is a community celebration worthy of the name. When I was young I took them for granted, but now I see suppers such as these as a focus for community pride and a wonderful example of folks working together to accomplish something important. Moreover, it is a place for people from farms and towns to get together to visit with each other.

Gonvick's is only one of the many area benefit suppers. Although most others are held during the traditional time of feasting after harvest, last week the Red Lake Falls Lutheran church had its annual Syttende Mai supper. They came up with a new main dish: lutefisk hot dish.

The women who do so much work for these suppers are seldom applauded. It would be interesting if someone would take down the number of hours each woman spent at home in preparation as well as the number of hours worked at the event.

Church and school suppers have been a way of life here ever since northwestern Minnesota was settled. Take the case of Ladies' Aid in Thief River Falls. In 1905 the Scandinavian Lutheran Synod Ladies' Aid held benefit suppers even though there was no church kitchen and not even dishes.

Anna Magnuson once told me that the aid held oyster suppers upstairs in the city hall. The women borrowed plain white dishes from Oen's store. Any that broke, they had to pay for, she said.

A sale of fancy work would be held at the same time. The women would meet in each others' homes; the children came along. The pastor would come and lead devotions, and then leave. The president would bring a big bag full of sewing to be done, which she passed out to members. The women would sit and sew and visit. They made long white aprons with handstitched hems and pillow cases with crocheted edges. This hand work and also knitted socks and mittens were later sold at auction after the church suppers.

The ladies' husbands would give them ten cents or sometimes a nickel to bring for the meeting offering. A secretary would keep track, and if someone were absent, she would have to bring it to the next meeting.

That year the ladies' aid contributed one-third of the total income for the church.

Hard as it is to imagine those women lugging all the dishes and food upstairs, we can consider their resourcefulness, their tenacity as qualities to emulate.

Drawn together because of need — the needs of others and their own needs for friendship — early settlers of our town prevailed. Our own needs are not dissimilar. From pioneer women we can pattern new insights, new attitudes, new community.

We are fortunate to still have benefit suppers and lunches here today. In addition, concern for others is expressed by those who bring Falls Delivered Meals and by others who serve Christmas dinner to those who are alone. People here assist by providing goods for the food shelf. They aid in resettlement of immigrants. They provide adoptive and foster homes for children of our own and other countries.

Families make many different kinds of donations today. But we owe a lot to those who built with nickels and dimes and crocheted pillowcases. Citizens of today's farms and towns carry on the proud tradition of being builders of our communities and dreams.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Now You Hear It . . . Now You Don't

"You can lose your hearing from a big bang or from a lot of little bangs," explains Dr. Michael Mainen, director of occupational medicine at Eastern Maine Medical center. "We're not talking about a noise that causes you to go deaf all at once. We're talking about hearing loss that results from constant exposure to loud sound over a long period of time; lots of little bangs, like the sound of a chainsaw engine."

Many times, once hearing is damaged in this way it can never be restored.

While Dr. Mainen was gearing his comments to the logging industry in an article published in Northern Woods Safety Foundation's "Woodsworker", what he had to say is equally applicable to other areas and bears attention of anyone who values this important sense.

The following comments are excerpted from Dr. Mainen's article:

Sound levels are measured in decibels (db), a unit of measure named after the inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell. The scale of measurement runs from 0db, the weakest sound that can be heard, to 194db, the highest sound level that can occur. The decibel scale is logarithmic for every one decibel increase on the scale the actual volume of sound increases 10 fold. The sound of people talking in normal tones and volumes, for example, measure about 65db. A bulldozer generates 88 to 105 db of sound.

Time as well as the volume of sound is an important factor in occupational hearing regulations. As Dr. Mainen explains it, "There is a cumulative effect. The more loud sound a person is exposed to over a long period of time, the greater the hearing loss." Some workers who might work all day in or near a running machine, are exposed to a constant loud noise. On the other hand, loggers who may turn saws off and on many times a day are exposed to intermittent high sound levels.

Because intensities of sound and lengths of exposure differ, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration rules call for all sound level specifications to be time-weighted averages (dbA), rather than Instant Sound Levels (db). Time-weighted averages represent the level of noise a person is exposed to over the course of a work day. The action noise level above which OSHA requires hearing protection is 85db.

High noise levels initially stun the hearing mechanism and cause temporary hearing loss. The loss of hearing is often accompanied by a ringing in the ears, such as that experienced after hearing a shotgun fired at close range. Hearing may return after a period of time away from the noise. However, if exposure to loud sound continues before the ear has fully recovered, the hearing can take even longer to return, eventually becoming permanent. In most instances there is no cure for this kind of hearing loss.

Hearing loss due to continual noise exposure isn't immediate so the person growing deaf may not even be aware of the problem until it is too late. There are, however, some warning signs. It may become difficult to clearly understand conversation, or the television or radio might be garbled. Everybody might seem to be mumbling.

In addition to hearing loss, high noise levels can also cause other problems; for instance, an increase in stress. Many workers notice a lot less tension at the end of the day when using hearing protection.

Tests for hearing problems begin with a base line hearing test to determine how much a person hears at present. Then, six months to a year later, another hearing test is given. The results of the second test are compared to the first to see if there is any difference. Hearing tests may be offered on site with the cooperation of the employer, or they may be conducted at local health centers.

Hearing protection comes in many shapes and sizes. Many workers now use the ear muffs that attach directly to a hardhat. People who wear glasses and use the ear muff style hearing protection should know that the temples of the glasses may not allow the padding to seal properly around the ear. For that reason, they might chose in-the-ear style protectors. Foam plugs are inexpensive, very effective, and reduce noise by as much as 29db. There are also a variety of other ear plug styles including those custom cast to fit only one individual.

You Can't Climb Unless You're On The Ladder

Following comments on the minimum wage proposal were written by Mark A. de Bernardo, manager of labor law with the U.S. chamber of commerce:

It is unclear if there ever is a right time for a minimum wage—or a minimum wage increase.

What is clear is that now is the wrong time for an increase in the minimum wage. An unemployment rate of 6.7 per cent, a youth unemployment rate of 17 per cent and black youth unemployment rate of 40 per cent are three excellent reasons for holding the line on the $3.35 per hour federal minimum wage.

The minimum wage is, first and foremost, a jobs issue. At a time of still too-high unemployment, it would be exceedingly unwise for Congress to enact legislation which would cost jobs.

There is no doubt that increases in the minimum wage cost jobs. Economists may disagree on the extent of job loss, but they cannot disagree on the fact that jobs are lost.

In 1977 Congress enacted a more-than 46 per cent increase in the minimum wage over a four-year period—an increase of proportions and impact, particularly on small business, which was unprecedented.

What was the result? The increase cost 644,000 jobs through jobs lost and jobs that would have been created but were not because of higher wage costs.

We do not need economic analyses to recognize the loss in jobs paying the minimum wage. Each of us as a consumer has experienced this loss of jobs. Ten years ago—before the massive increase in the minimum wage—it was much more common to have ushers in theaters to show moviegoers to their seats, to have workers at car washes clean the inside of cars as well as the outside, to have two or three floor persons in each department of a store instead of just cashiers, to have full service restaurants instead of counter service and salad bars, and to have full-service instead of self-service gas stations.

Where have these jobs gone? As the minimum wage rose, employers were forced to respond. One response was to close, another was to automate and a third was to decrease the services provided. Ironically, in an economy which increasingly is shifting from manufacturing to the service sector, Americans are getting less service for their dollar.

More important is the erosion of job opportunities.

We are talking about entry-level jobs which pay below poverty level for the head of a household and sole supporter of a family of four. But it is a mistake to assume that workers earning the minimum wage are the heads of households providing for families. The vast majority are students working part time, youths just entering the work force and supplemental family income earners such as a housewife working at a department store during the Christmas rush. A minimum wage job pays nearly 22 per cent above the poverty level for a single person. More important, it provides job experience and an opportunity for overtime pay, wage increases and promotions. You cannot "climb the ladder" unless you are on the ladder.

There is no question that these workers would like to be paid more—we all would. But given the experience of past minimum wage increases, the choice may not be between a job at $3.35 per hour or a job at $4.60 per hour, the level many proponents of an increase favor. The choice may be between a $3.35 per hour job or no job at all.

Employers' problems with increased labor costs are not just the direct consequences of minimum-wage increases. When a minimum-wage earner's wages are increased one dollar an hour, employees who make one dollare an hour more also must have their wages increased. The cycle repeats itself on up the wage scale. The result is wage inflation which results in price inflation.

Near the end of the Carter administration, which marked the last step of the more than 46 per cent increase in the minimum wage, the inflation rate reached a staggering 13 per cent. These increases had a direct inflationary impact of as much as 6.5 per cent during the four-year period.

Today, the two per cent inflation rate, after six years of maintaining the minimum-wage rate, reflects the stabilization of both wages and prices. What value does a wage increase have if it is negated by a corresponding increase in inflation, and no net gain in buying power?

Certainly, there are many other factors affecting the inflation rate but the correlation between minimum wage increases and higher inflation cannot be ignored.

A better approach for entry-level jobs is to let the market determine wages—as it does at all other job levels. In some job markets, the $3.35 per hour rate already is obsolete. The system that is best for all employers, employees and consumers is one in which the market sets the appropriate wage rates.

The answer for the poverty problem in American is more varied and complex than simply and artificially forcing up the cost of entry-level jobs. The answer includes training programs, educational reforms and meaningful investment by a humane society in the skills necessary to earn higher wages—not the higher wages which will force the unskilled out of the job market.

YOUR TIMES

by Rep. Arlan Stangeland
7th District - Minnesota

The House of Representatives recently passed a sweeping omnibus trade bill in an effort to address our growing trade deficit. The cornerstone of this legislation is a provision authored by Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri which, if enacted into law, will have disastrous effects on the ability of Minnesota's farmers to sell their grain overseas.

The Gephardt amendment requires the United States trade representative (USTR) to enter into negotiations with those countries which have an excessive trade surplus with the United States. I support negotiations of this type with countries selling more to the U.S. than they purchase. But Bephardt goes dangerously beyond fair trade negotiations.

If no agreement is reached after six months of negotiations, the Gephardt amendment would require the USTR to retaliate against those countries with a system of quotas and tariffs that would cripple that country's ability to trade with the United States.

I strongly oppose this type of short-sighted trade policy. The last time Congress passed such radical trade legislation was the Smoot-Hawley Tariff of 1930. In just four short years, this tariff forced an international trade was which sent U.S. exports and imports plummeting by 66 per cent. What's more, the Gross National Product was cut in half and unemployment rose to 30 per cent.

Today's version of Smoot-Hawley, as outlined in the trade bill recently adopted by the House, would result in severe retaliation by those countries with whom the United States trades most. These countries — Japan, South Korea, Taiwan and West Germany — in 1986 purchased 32.4 per cent of all our farm exports totalling $8.5 billion. As with the disastrous grain embargo of 1980, these countries would undoubtedly find other sources of grain on the world market as a response to unreasonable quotas and tariffs imposed by the United States under the Gephardt amendment.

The major causes of the trade deficit are changes in U.S. and foreign macroeconomic policies leading to a strong U.S. dollar. We need to devote our efforts to opening foreign markets to U.S. goods — especially agricultural products — not closing them.

I remain committed to resolving the problems of our trade deficit, while protecting rural America. But I will not support short-sighted policies which force the American consumer and American agri-business to pay the price. The Gephardt Amendment is just another example of Congress putting its hopes on failed policies of the past.

According to Roger Reuter, Norwest president, the 100 per cent club was created to recognize employees who achieve the highest levels of sales perfromance. At year-end top sales winners in the corporation will receive company-wide recognition and membership in the exclusive Norwest Corporation 100 per cent club, which is limited to superior sales performers.

The service excellence program was created to honor employees who take particular pride in performance and give quality customer service. Tellers, credit and financial department personnel, and others in non-sales positions are eligible for these awards, with nominations coming from their peers. At year-end, 30 winners from throughout the corporation will be randomly selected from the year's quarterly winners for recognition on a company-wide basis.

Small Business Week Honors Growth Industry

America's small business owners — 15 million strong today and growing in numbers each year — too often are overlooked when we hand out credits for economic growth and progress. But the plain truth is that much of the health of our country and our communities depends on the health of our small businesses.

Consider: Small business owners create two out of every three new jobs, are responsible for most job training, employ about half the private work force, contribute about 40 per cent of national production and create the most jobs in both recession and prosperity. Moreover, the number of small entrepreneurs goes up each year, as more and more men and women go into business for themselves, thus fulfilling a long-held American dream.

It is entirely fitting, then, that President Reagan has proclaimed May 10-16 to be National Small Business Week, as a way of paying special tribute to our small business owners. Outstanding small business men and women will be cited for special honors in every state, and a national small business person of the year will be selected as a highlight of Small Business Week activities in Washington, D.C.

Not only do small entrepreneurs contribute to our economic health, they contribute mightily to the vitality of our communities. Most Small business owners, busy as they are, take the time to be community leaders, helping their cities and towns to be better places in which to live.

The theme of this year's Small Business Week is: "Small Business: America's Growth Industry." It is surely an appropriate and correct theme. Small business is growing, and because it is, so is America.

So, to small business men and women across the country — and especially to our small entrepreneurs here at home — we acknowledge the celebration of Small Business Week and say a heartfelt "Thanks."

Legal Aid Advice: Don't Rush Into Home Equity Loans

A consumer attorney for the Legal Aid society of Minneapolis issued a cautionary note today to persons considering getting home equity loans.

"Don't rush into one," the Minneapolis attorney said. "Home equity loans have significant dangers, especially with revolving kinds of credit. First, learn what the home equity loan will cost you. Compare that, and any tax savings you may have, to the cost of other types of loans. Then decide if the home equity loan has advantages worth risking your home for.

"If you lose your job and can't pay a home equity loan, you lose your home. This is not true for other types of loans which can be discharged, if necessary, through bankruptcy without risking your home." He offered these guidelines to persons considering home equity loans:

(1) Remember that your home is at risk. Don't risk it for luxuries.

(2) Always shop around for credit. There are many different rates and lenders.

(3) Revolving credit lines are usually more expensive than a straight loan.

(4) Don't expect unrealistic tax savings. A two per cent interest spread, or low monthly loan payments, can eliminate after-tax savings.

(5) Watch out for variable interest rates without caps, or higer caps than you can afford to pay.

(6) Watch out for balloon payments, a hidden time bomb in credit.

(7) Watch out for deceptively low introductory rates. They can go up.

(8) Don't accept ads at face value: always inquire as to points, closing costs, participation fees and similar up-front costs. One point over the life of a loan can add up to an effective three per cent.

(9) Remember: if you use the loan for luxuries, you may lose any tax advantages.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

During the 1980s, growing numbers of homeless Americans have plagued the urban landscapes with scenes which have been typical of big cities — men and women living and sleeping in streets and parks, eating from garbage cans, begging for loose change.

During the past six years of recession and "recovery," the ranks of the homeless have swelled even as government programs like food stamps, low-income housing and job-training were cut back. Soup kitchens, shelters and "food-shelves" run by churches and charities have been stretched beyond their means by the suddenly jobless "new poor" who never imagined they would be asking for a handout.

National leadership on the problem has been sorely lacking. President Reagan in early 1984 was asked about the homeless on ABC's "Good Morning, America." He replied, "What we have found in this country, and we're more aware of it now, is a problem that we've had, even in the best of times, and that is the people sleeping on the (heat) grates, the homeless who are homeless, you might say, by choice." Stupidity is the greatest cruelty!

Around that time, Edwin Meese III, the President's friend and counselor, commented, "We've had considerable information that people go to soup kitchens because the food is free and that's easier than paying for it." Did he ever land in political hot waters!

But the political climate has changed! At last, there's help for the homeless! On March 3, the Speaker of the House, Congressman Wright and about a dozen members of Congress joined a small crowd of movie stars in sleeping out on the streets of Washington.

Two days later, the House on a 264-121 vote passed a bill to triple current federal spending on homeless assistance programs.

The House bill would provide an additional $500 million in fiscal 1987 for shelter and health care for the homeless, and $255 million in fiscal 1988-90 for food and nutrition programs. In addition to emergency food and shelter, the bill would provide funds for converting surplus government property into homeless facilities; matching grants to states to rehabilitate property for permanent housing for the homeless; a transitional housing program for groups and supportive services; Section 8 rental subsidies and for rental and utility assistance vouchers to low-income tenants to help prevent eviction; community mental health programs; a new program of outpatient health service, and increased food stamps and surplus food allocations.

The Senate on April 9 approved a slightly less costly homeless aid package. It would provide less than the House bill in such areas as health care, long-term housing and food and nutrition, but more for training, education and drug and alcohol treatment.

Whatever the figure, the problem is getting worse! Officials of the United Way and the National Coalition for the Homeless say it is growing by about 25 per cent a year.

Who are the homeless? The most visible are the disheveled, the chronically down-and-out, the mentally ill. But it is now apparent that these unfortunates are just the tip of the iceberg.

This past winter, the number of homeless families with children rose by 25 per cent and this increase brought families with children to 25 per cent of the homeless population, according to the Partnership for the Homeless. This New York area interfaith group, which runs the largest private shelter and permanent housing program for the homeless in the nation, surveyed 741 public and private social service agencies across the nation.

The leading cause of rising homelessness, the survey found, was lack of affordable housing. The survey found that the Reagan Administration housing, jobs and other policies were "an active and distinct cause of homelessness." It is good news that Congress has begun to change those policies.

Incidentally, as many as half of the nation's homeless people may be infected with tuberculosis, forming "a large reservoir" of potential cases of the once-dreaded disease, federal health officials said in Atlanta, GA.

To The Editor:

In reply to a letter in the Times (May 4th) from Karla Nelson, we would like to state that we are pleased the Zehlians are planning a project of walkways around the city and along the river.

It is true that a great many sidewalks are sadly in need of repair. That, however, is the responsibility of the city council and the home owners.

We feel the Zehlians are to be congratulated for planning a project that will benefit and beautify the city.

Yours truly,

FRESHWATER FOCUS

Information And Opinion From The Freshwater Foundation
2500 Shadywood Road — Box 90
Navarre, Minnesota 55392

Half of all Americans rely on groundwater for their drinking water supplies — and some of these supplies are being contaminated by improper disposal of hazardous wastes.

Who's the culprit? Before we start pointing self-righteous fingers at what we consider to be the "bad guys," we need to be reminded of a rather disturbing reality: Every one of our garbage cans is a potential hazardous waste site.

The garbage we dispose of regularly contains small amounts of hazardous waste materials — at least one pound per family per year, according to an EPA estimate. At that rate, a landfill which services 20,000 families will accumulate 20,000 pounds — or 10 tons — of hazardous waste each year.

And this unregulated, unmonitored hazardous waste can contaminate underlying groundwater supplies. Formal study of a suburban Minneapolis landfill, for example, indicates that chemical contaminants from the landfill, which have seeped into groundwater, are believed to have come not from a pile of industrial waste drums, but instead from "chemical contaminants in ordinary household garbage hauled to the landfill." The contents of our garbage cans can pose the same threat to our groundwater supplies as barrels of industrial hazardous waste materials.

What can be done? We can all begin by recognizing the sources of these chemical contaminants — products that we use every day in our homes.

The Minnesota Household Hazardous Waste Task Force, an informal coalition of more than 25 concerned businesses, agencies and citizen groups in the metro area, has developed a partial listing of commonly used home products which, when disposed of, are sources of hazardous waste. Included are the following:

Automotive Products — Motor oil, gasoline, car batteries, antifreeze, car wax, parts degreasers, rust removers, car paints, brake fluid and transmission fluid;

Pesticides and Fertilizers — Flea powder, rodent poison, weed killers, moth balls, lawn and garden fertilizers, wood preservatives and DDT products;

Building and Painting Supplies — Paints, paint thinners, stains, varnishes, asbestos products, asphalt, roofing tar, old fluorescent light ballasts containing PCBs and paint removers;

Household Cleaners — Drain cleaners, floor wax removers, bleaches, oven cleaners, air fresheners, disinfectants, floor wax, furniture polish, septic tank cleaners, silver cleaner, spot removers, toilet bowl cleaners, window cleaners and aerosol sprays;

Hobby and Craft Products — Photographic chemicals, glues, inks, batteries for toys, dyes, wood putty, art supplies, chemistry sets, swimming pool chemicals, gunpowder, kerosene and furniture strippers;

Personal Care Products — Cosmetics, hair dyes, nail polish, hair sprays and medications.

Can we all stop using these products? Probably not, but we can become more aware of the need to dispose of them with care — for the sake of our drinking water supplies.

For information on best-possible disposal procedures for a particular product, contact your local waste management or pollution control agency, or contact the Freshwater Foundation for a free copy of brochure No. 6, "Hazardous Waste in Our Homes — and in Our Water." Write to the Freshwater Foundation, 2500 Shadywood Road, Box 90, Navarre, MN 55392.

Leo Fenske, 81, Is Oldest Degree Recipient At BSU

Leo Fenske will be among the graduating students marching down Birch Lane during Bemidji state university's commencement ceremony May 22. Wearing the identifying green and white satin-lined hood on his black gown, he will take his place with the other master's candidates during the ceremony.

At 81 Leo Fenske, the oldest student to receive a degree at Bemidji State, proves that you are never too old to learn.

In the words of one of Fenske's grandchildren, "That's neat."

Obtaining a master of science degree in education with a history concentration makes this Fenske's second graduate degree. With the exception of the World War II years, he has spent his life in education and found it to be a natural transition from being a student to professor and back again to a student.

Valedictorian for Bemidji high school's class of 1927, Fenske went to the University of Minnesota college of agriculture, graduating with high distinction. After teaching high school in St. Louis county for five years, he again became a student and received a master of science degree in agricultural economics in 1939.

Armed with this degree Fenske taught at the University of Idaho and the University of Tennessee. When World War II broke out he was commissioned to work with the United States department of agriculture on a food production program.

He taught a farm training program in Bemidji from 1946 to 1959, and then was off to the Middle East with a group from the University of Nebraska to work on a government project of establishing a new university in Turkey.

Returning to Bemidji in 1968, Fenske planned to retire. Concerned with community issues, he was among the first delegation from Bemidji to lobby in St. Paul for a law allowing senior citizens to audit university classes.

"While I was lobbying I nveer thought that I would be among those taking classes," he said. "I thought I was done with formal education."

However, Fenske spent the next 15 years auditing courses at BSU.

"Still, I never seriously thought about getting another degree. Taking these classes was just a hobby," he commented.

The thought was first implanted in Fenske's mind when he attended a high school reunion in the late 70's and met a woman who just received her master's degree.

"I thought that if she could do it, so could I," asserted Fenske. "I fooled around for a few years and then decided to accept the challenge and see what I could do."

Interested in hsitory since grade school, he decided to pursue this field. Although, like all students, he had a few doubts from time to time, Fenske resolved from the beginning to finish the program. He felt that if his health held up, he could do it.

Once the challenge was accepted, he had to work at it. According to his advisor Dr. Art Lee, BSU professor of history, he does his homework. "Leo is a very good student. He is still so curious. He wants to know more, more, more; it's wonderful," Dr. Lee said.

Fenske feels he has an advantgae over other students, because of his experiences. At times instructors have tapped his memory on how events happened, particularly with those in Bemidji. When Lee discussed the big fires in Bemidji he resorted to Fenske, who was there.

Fenske doesn't always agree with the course material and brought up several opposing opinions in a sociology of aging class he took. "I think I saw the theories from a different perspective than the others," he admits.

Although in his younger days Fenske would study all night long, he now sets aside time in the afternoon for homework. Whenever he would get nervous before an exam, his wife would tell him to calm down. In between his classes, he could be found in the library studying.

In fulfilling the masters' requirements, Fenske recently completed a thesis paper on "Farming in Beltrami County: Past and Present — 1890 to 1980."

"All I have left is an oral exam and if I can pass that I'll be done, but I don't think I'll worry too much about this one."

Things seem different on the campus from Fenske's own undergraduate days. He sees students as having a more world-wide viewpoint and more awareness of what is going on.

What Fenske wants to convey to students just beginning their education is to set their goals and stick to them. Knowing from experience, and lots of it, that sometimes it seems easier to quit, he feels it is important to work hard and finish. "But," he adds, "at the same time have a little fun on the way."

What's next after this?

"No more school," said Fenske.

Fenske says he's been sitting pretty free and easy since he finished his paper and feels that it is time for a break. After graduation, he will travel with his wife around the country, visiting friends in Washington, D.C. and the southeastern states.

"Well, I might take another course or two," he added with a slight smile.

Learning will never stop for Leo Fenske, whether he is in school or not.

"Leo is a classic example of learning never ending," said Lee. "He is a marvelous role-model for people of any age. I just hope I can do the same thing when I'm 81 years old!"

NEW FIRE EQUIPMENT. New life saving fire equipment was displayed and demonstrated Wednesday afternoon at the Thief River Falls fire department. The new equipment, purchased with funds raised from donations, cost over $16,000. It included jaws of life equipment, special air bags, a cutting shear, chisel, rescue ram and an accompanying power unit, which can be operated from a 12-volt battery. Fire Chief Dave Bjorkman (center) explained the operation and uses for the equipment.

Fire Dep't. Receives Jaws Of Life Tools

New emergency rescue equipment for the Thief River Fire department was demonstrated at the fire hall Wednesday afternoon.

"This equipment will be a definite benefit to law enforcement agencies and the fire department," said Dave Bjrokman, fire chief.

Bjorkman said fund raising efforts for the emergency equipment began last summer. He said he saw a need for equipment which can help to quickly extract trapped victims and save lives.

Axes, chain saws and crow bars were the primary tools used in extracting trapped victims in the past. Those tools were limited by the strength of the users, of course. The new equipment adds a new dimension to the meaning of power tools.

Firemen for the city of Thief River Falls and surrounding area began Wednesday's demonstration by taking a junked car apart, piece by piece. They removed the windows by placing a clear plastic tape like material over the window and then touching the window with a special hole punch. The window shattered. Looking like a finely spun spider's web, the window was removed in almost one piece.

The doors were removed with the jaws of life, a 48-pound tool which looks like a large pair of scissors, but which can exert nearly 15,000 pounds of spreading power. The doors yielded like cardboard being folded.

The junked car became a convertible with the use of a cutting tool which snipped the thick roof supports in half. A crease was pounded in the rear of the vehicle and two firemen neatly folded back the roof. The cutting tool can exert nearly 14,000 pounds of cutting power.

The power chisel was demonstrated on the door of another junked car. Bystanders joked that the police, who answer over 800 calls a year for locked car doors, should borrow the chisel which can cut a hole around a lock so that emergency personnel can reach in and disengage the lock mechanism. Many noted that calls for locked car doors would probably drop off significantly.

Lifting, pushing and bending crushed metal from around a victim can be accomplished by an adaptation of a simple air bag. Of course, the air bag is made of a strong puncture-proof material called kevlar, the same material being used in bullet proof vests and army helmets. The fire department has five of these bags which, when put together, can lift 117 tons.

A powerful rescue ram can accomplish the same purpose. These spreading and pulling tools become especially valuable when spreading distances exceed the maximum opening of the Jaws of Life. They are perfectly suited to situations calling for forcible entry, or shoring, stabilizing or opening crushed vehicles or collapsed buildings.

The power source for most of these tools is a simple 12-volt battery found in most vehicles. An electric motor with two-stage pump and integral relief valve provides the power.

The firemen working in Thief River Falls have received training in use of the new equipment. Many fire departments and emergency teams across the country have similar equipment and seminars and training for fire department personnel regularly includes instruction in its use. In addition, some of the fire

Traffic Detour In TRF To Last Through Week

Installation of a rubberized railroad street crossing near the junction of highway 59 and one west of Thief River Falls will necessitate a detour beginning Monday.

According to Mark Anderson of the Minnesota department of transportation, traffic will be detoured onto sixth street bginning Monday. Burlington Northern railroad is putting in a rubberized railroad street crossing near the junction of highway one and 59 west of Thief River Falls.

Anderson expects construction to begin Monday and go through the week.

Erskine Bridges Over Highway 2 Get New Surface

The highway 59 bridges over highway 2 and Burlington Northern tracks at Erskine will receive a new concrete surface this summer, according to Leonard Follmann, assistant district engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

The work begins today and will last for about two and one-half months. Traffic will be maintained during construction but motorists will encounter lane closures and a north bound detour for highway 59. The detour will be on Polk County Road 41 from its junction with highway 59 to McIntosh.

"Internal Matter" Says Falls DAC Administrator

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Two employees of the Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls have been reprimanded. Doreen Sigerud and Lynae Johnson, instructors at the center claimed in a Grand Forks Herald article that they were reprimanded because they refused to drop a lawsuit against the center.

Charles Oakes, director at the center, said the employees were reprimanded, but that he believes the entire matter should not have been made public. He said he believes the employees at the DAC deserve a little privacy.

Oakes said it was an internal employee reprimand. "Such reprimands happen all the time and if every one was published, the newspapers would be filled with them," he said.

Oakes confirmed that the employees were given a half day off and placed on a 90-day probation for a variety of reasons, which he said were paraphrased in a Grand Forks Herald article.

According to the Herald article, the letter sent to Sigerud and Johnson lists seven reasons for the action. "Reasons range from frequent negative remarks to and about coworkers and agencies with which the center works to refusal to accept, unquestioningly, the health care recommendations from their supervisors or group homes," the article states.

Oakes said the Herald article loosely paraphrased what the letter stated. Oakes specifically referred to the statement that the employees refused to accept, unquestioningly, the health care recommendations from their supervisors. Actually the employees were reprimanded for refusing to accept the health care recommendations of their supervisors or the group home without questioning their motives. Oakes stressed their continued questioning of motives as detrimental to morale of the other employees.

(The letter stating the employees' reprimand is published in its entirety in this issue of the Times).

Oakes presented Times staff with this letter and more information after seeing that Johnson and Sigerud had apparently contacted the Grand Forks Herald. Oakes said he decided not to answer questions asked by the Herald reporter, but since that time had changed his mind because the Herald article did not include all of the facts.

Oakes said he was aware that by not making any comment, only one side of the story would be presented, but it was his choice to make.

Oakes did say a personnel policy regarding making comments to the news media was adopted earlier this year when Oakes took over the vacated position of former director Evan Armstrong. Oakes said he personally made the request for the policy.

The policy states: "...the public relations program is a coordinated and occasionally complicated effort conducted by the senior staff. Professional news media representatives will receive press releases and public comments on the DAC and

Probation And Suspension Notice

Re: Placing of Employment on Probation and Suspension

After a great deal of consideration I am placing you on probation for unsatisfactory performance which is creating problems by interfering with the ability of the Program Director and I to manage the agency. Further, staff morale at the center is horrible and I believe your adjustment problems to be the cause. Specific Problem Areas include:

A. Frequent negative remarks to and about co-corkers and agencies that we work with which are causing poor employee morale and straining relationships with the group homes.

B. Inviting the State Licensor into the center during program hours without notifying either the program director or the administrator.

C. Refusing to accept the health care recommendations of your supervisors or the group home without questioning their motives. Specifically I refer to recent exaggerated concerns over (client's name) med changes and skin problems. This obvious lack of trust is causing further strains on relationships with the group homes.

D. Failure to seek professional counseling when you claim to have been traumatized by past events at the center. Without treatment it is unlikely that your condition will improve.

E. Frequently leaving work early. You often have your coat on and are headed out the door 5 to 10 minutes before 4 p.m.

F. Failure to consult your supervisors before completing an incident report which was inaccurate and subjective on a situation in which you were neither an active participant or even a witness. Further, although the alleged incident took place on the 3rd of April, you waited until your supervisors were away at a DAC conference to commit to writing your assessment that the Job Development Specialist was doing an inadequate job of supervising the participants in her care. You are not her supervisor and took this unilateral and critical action without authority or even first hand knowledge of the events. You neither attempted to call your supervisors or the board chairman who was designated as available in our absence.

G. Frequent mood swings which make the rest of the staff uncomfortable because they don't know from day to day if you are speaking to them or not. This is detrimental to staff morale.

For all these reasons and others, I am placing your employment status on probation for unsatisfactory performance and am notifying you in writing that your continued employment is in jeopardy. To give you aequate opportunity to absorb the gravity of this measure, I am suspending you without pay for the rest of the day (4-13-87). Failure to report for work tomorrow or failure to participate in the required CPR training or continued performance problems during the probationary period of six months will be grounds for dismissal under the DAC Personnel Policies and more specifically, the termination sections.

I believe these actions to be necessary although unpleasant for both of us and sincerely hope that your employment can be salvaged during the six month probationary period. All of the concerns outlined relate to recent incidents during my administration. We will meet formally during the probationary period to either record the progress that is being made or to arrange your termination. Cooperation on your part will make all the difference.

Oakes Makes Public Reprimand Letter To Two Employees

Following the filing of a suit against the Falls Day Activity Center and administrator Charles Oakes individually by Doreen Sigerud and Lynae Johnson, employees at the Falls DAC, Oakes has chosen to make public locally information regarding complaints brought by Johnson and Sigerud through articles in the Grand Forks Herald.

Oakes and the DAC were served with a summons dated Thursday, May 14, with the plaintiffs alleging that "the actions of the defendant have been in retaliation for their reporting of the abuse occurring at the defendant's facility in violation of M.S.A. 626.557, Subdivision 17, all to their damage."

Johnson and Sigerud contend in the complaint that they were suspended for one day without pay on April 13, 1987, and were placed on probation for one year.

They are asking in the suit for actual damages amounting to one day's pay each, punitive damages of $1,000 each, attorney fees, an order restraining the defendant "from taking further retaliatory action against the plaintiffs" and for "such other and further relief as the court may deem just and equitable."

Articles in the Grand Forks Herald last week cited the contention of Johnson and Sigerud that their suspension and probastion was retaliatory for a suit they have pending against the DAC prior to its reorganization in December of 1986.

Oakes denies that his action in issuing notice of suspension and probation had anything to do with the pending suit. He said that the suit was filed before he came on board as administrator of the DAC and that it does not involve him, other than following through with it in his present position as administrator.

He said that he had talked with Johnson and Sigerud after becoming administrator and encouraged them to put the past behind them and work cooperatively for the good of the DAC, its programs and participants. He said the reorganized board of the DAC had offered to pay attorney's fees incurred by Johnson and Sigerud and by James Rooker, a former employee at the center who was fired by the previous board. Rooker accepted the offer to have attorney fees paid but decided not to accept a reemployment offer from the new board, Oakes said. Rooker is now employed in the Twin Cities area.

Johnson and Sigerud rejected the offer for payment of attorney fees and instead offered to settle the suit if the DAC would pay the $1,000 punitive damages each and attorney fees, Oakes said. The board rejected that request, since it was believed to be the maximum a court would allow if the suit was lost, and decided to have the case tried. So far there has been no further effort on the part of the plaintiffs to bring the suit to court, Oakes said.

Oakes said he had refused to comment to a Grand Forks Herald reporter about the probation and suspension of Sigerud and Johnson because he believed they were entitled to privacy in that matter. Since reference to parts of that letter of probation and suspension subsequently were made in the Herald articles, Oakes said, he was choosing to release the letter if it would be published in its entirety. ## TRF Men Rescue Three In Boating Accident Saturday

Two Thief River Falls men are being considered for special commendation following the rescue of three people involved in a boating accident Saturday afternoon.

John Rausch and John Boman of Thief River Falls were fishing on the west bank of the river near the Eighth street bridge Saturday when they saw a canoe capsize with two children and an adult in it. Frank Knoll, 49, and his two children, Julie, 12, and Eric, 10, route 2, Warren, were brought to safety after the canoe they were fishing from capsized.

According to the Pennington county sheriff's department, the canoe capsized when all three leaned over to the same side of the canoe. Life jackets were in the canoe at the time of the accident but they were not being worn.

After seeing that the occupants of the canoe were in difficulty, Boman went in the water and brought them to Rausch who had waded in waist deep. According to the county sheriff's office the incident happened at about 2:50 p.m. and everyone was out of the water by the time a deputy arrived.

Sheriff Bob Wold said he is working on a local commendation for the two men and plans to look into a commendation from the state.

The INSIDE SCOOP
From Lincoln High
by GAYLE BORCHERT

Dear Readers,

I'm sure you are all familiar with the saying that "No news is good news." When you have a weekly column to write, this might be a problem, but since I deal with high school activities that never seem to end this rarely happens.

Last Monday the second annual Lincoln weight meet was held. It was a very carefully supervised and recorded meet. It was also very well attended not only by parents but by students. The second event of the week happened on Tuesday, May 12, when the Lincoln concert band, jazz band and wind ensemble performed their annual spring concert.

Wednesday saw the official end of the hockey season as the hockey banquet was held in the Lincoln cafeteria. Guest speakers included Dean Talafous, an assistant coach at the University of Minnesota, and Tim Bergland, a Thief River Falls native who recently finished four years with the Gophers. Thursday was also a busy day; it was the day all the wind ensemble members loaded the bus for the Cities.

But on to this week's events. The choir concert will be held Tuesday night the 19th in the Lincoln auditorium. The choirs will be under the direction of Mr. Morken who will be directing his last high school choir concert.

And, as usual, the sports teams are out in full force. The boys' tennis team heads into sub-regions, and the girls' golf team goes to the regional meet at Alexandria.

I've tried to make the activities at Lincoln as exciting as possible. Who knows, maybe I've been saving it up for a special year-end edition.

Activities Schedule

May 18 — Boys' baseball (home); girls' golf at East Grand Forks; boys' tennis at Detroit Lakes (Sub-Region); boys' and girls' track at Roseau;

May 19 — Girls' golf at East Grand Forks;

May 20 — Boys' tennis at Detroit Lakes (Sub-Region);

May 21 — Boys' baseball vs. Warroad; girls' golf at Alexandria; boys' and girls' track at Moorhead (Sub-Region);

its operation from the Administrator or if delegated, the program director. Any requests for information by news media personnel must be directed to the administrator. Unauthorized media contacts regarding the agency, its staff, participants, or programs by support staff will be grounds for dismissal under the misconduct section of these policies."

Oakes said he will determine whether the policy can be enforced legally and then possibly pursue the matter.

In addition, Oakes said the reprimand of the two employees at the center is in no way related to problems under past management or to a lawsuit filed by three employees last winter against the corporation.

Sigerud, Johnson and Jim Rooker filed a lawsuit against the Falls Day Activity center last November. The employees said the board retaliated against them when they notified the Pennington county welfare department of verbal and physical abuse of clients at the center by former director Armstrong.

Armstrong resigned after Minnesota department of health and human services investigators were able to substantiate the claims and threatened to suspend the center's license if the center's board did not suspend Armstrong. No criminal charges were filed.

Rooker, who the board had fired, has settled his lawsuit out of court, but Sigerud and Johnson have continued to pursue legal action against the center's board of directors. The suit alleges that their pay was reduced, pay period changed and access to the center restricted because they told Pennington county welfare workers about the abuse.

Both sides have reportedly made efforts to settle the matter out of court but no agreement has been reached. A reliable source said both Sigerud and Johnson and the rest of the staff received back pay for the period of reduced pay. In addition, Sigerud and Johnson received significant raises and additional responsibilities when Oakes took over, which had nothing to do with the litigation.

Oakes, a former employee of the Occupational Development center in Thief River Falls, became the center's administrator in December. The DAC has 29 clients and will have two additional summer referrals. It is licensed for 34 clients.

Section 15 of the policies deals with involuntary termination of employment. The policies state that misconduct will result in suspension without pay or immediate termination.

Prior to termination for unsatisfactory performance, the policies state, a reasonable effort will be made to resolve the problem areas with the employee. The procedure is set forth as follows:

"(1) The employee will be given written notice that continued employment is in jeopardy, what must be done to improve the situation and placed on probation (not to exceed 90 days).

"(2) The employee and senior staff will develop a probationary period plan to remedy the deficiencies. Half way through the probationary period, the employee will receive written notice of their status.

"(3) The employee may be suspended without pay for up to three (3) days at the beginning or during the probationary period.

"(4) Satisfactory improved performance within the probationary period will suffice for return to prior employment status. Continued substandard performance will result in employment termination.

"(5) Uncooperative behavior or negative attitude which affect the morale or work of other employees may result in termination prior to the completion of the probationary period."

Oakes also took issue with several comments made in an editorial in the Herald Saturday. One involved the previous lawsuit, about which the Herald editorial stated: "Briefly, (the charges) are that the two were punished for telling county welfare workers about verbal and physical abuse at the center. The punishment included a cut in pay. These issues are at the heart of the lawsuit the two have filed."

Oakes said the pay cut referred to was a reduction in pay made by the DAC board for all staff members when the Pennington county commissioners withheld the contract payment for DAC services pending dismissal of then-director Evan Armstrong. Armstrong subsequently resigned under pressure from the department of human services which threatened to suspend the DAC's license to operate. The pay reduction was equal to the percentage of Pennington county support of the program — 23 per cent.

When the county issued its payment, the employees were paid the withheld amount retroactively, Oakes said. In effect, they suffered no financial loss. And with the change in administration at the center, both Sigerud and Johnson were given increases in salary.

Oakes and the DAC have 20 days to respond to the suit brought by Sigerud and Johnson last week.

Oakes also released a copy of the DAC's personnel policies which he said were provided to staff in March.

Attorney General Warns Against Pyramid Schemes

Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III has warned Minnesotans to be on guard against fraudulent pyramid investment schemes in which several companies are offering investment opportunities and promising unrealistically high rates of return.

According to reports from law enforcement agencies throughout the country and in Northwest Minnesota, companies based in the British West Indies give the appearance of operating like banks and typically offer financial services like high-yield certificates of deposit, group investment plans and supposed pools of loan money often described as "self-liquididating" loans.

In most instances, Humphrey added, these loans are nothing but pyramid schemes where participants send amounts of money ranging from $45 application fees up to $750 to a post office box in the British West Indies and then convince their friends and neighbors to do the same with the promise of obtaining large sums of cash.

"These so-called opportunities have several common elements in that they promise a high rate of return on a minimal investment and claim a very low risk," Humphrey, said. "We have no indication whatsoever that the flow of money in these schemes is anything but one way."

Promoters make the representation that the investment yield is so high that American banks are reluctant to participate and therefore the money must be sent to a foreign bank. While participants never see a return on their investment, the schemes are perpetuated by promoters offering excuses, such as: the response has been so overwhelming that the company has had to reorganize, or a better program has been established and participants are encouraged to send additional money to take advantage of an even greater opportunity.

"The truth is that participants will never see any return on their investment," Humphrey added, "and people who are victimized by this kind of scheme have little or no chance of recovering a phony investment sent to a post office box for a bank in a foreign country."

Humphrey reminded Minnesotans who are considering participation in such schemes that they are fraudulent and illegal and, under Minnesota law, promoters can be subjected to severe civil penalties or criminal prosecution. Persons approached to participate in pyramid schemes or investment opportunities should call the Attorney Genral's Consumer Division in St. Paul at (612) 296-3353 or in Duluth at (218) 723-4891

Expect Gas Price To Hold Steady For Memorial Day

Statewide gas prices have remained the same since the AAA Easter fuel survey and are expected to be stable through Memorial day, according to the AAA clubs of Minnesota.

Wholesale gas prices fell during the first part of April and rose slightly at the end of the month.

"The net result of the up and down movement in the wholesale price market over the last few weeks has not increased gas prices," said Karen Kloser, AAA spokesperson. "Industry analysts predict moderate increases of one to two cents per gallon for the rest of May and into June. The seasonal demand for gasoline and OPEC's decision in June will determine the future of fuel prices."

Average full service prices are: regular, $1,068; unleaded, $1,100; and premium unleaded, $1,251. Average self service prices are: regular, $.9148; unleaded, $.9519, and premium unleaded, $1.031.

Of the 123 stations reporting to AAA, more than half reported regular business hours for the Memorial day holiday.

Fire Department Receives Jaws Of Life Tools

department personnel work in a body shop and are familiar with stress points of vehicles and the use of many of the tools.

Currently the equipment is being carried in a small and crowded 1967 jeep. However, whenever the need arises, the equipment can be transferred to a much speedier squad car.

All of the money used to purchase the equipment — which cost over $16,000 — was provided through donations. No city or county funds were used.

Bjorkman said it was amazing to see so many people work together and provide the money for the project. He extends a special thanks to the following individuals and organizations for their contributions: Donald Wahlbeck, Lakehead pipeline, the Eagles, the Elk;s club, the Thief River Falls fire department relief association, the Thief River Falls police federation, the Sons of the American Legion, Minnesota Teamsters union 320, Northwest Medical center, L.B. Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

People Don't Get Old Any More

Have you noticed that there aren't any old people around any more? At least nobody seems to talk about them that way. Language is kind of a funny thing, at least in today's society. A lot of folks would have us believe that old is a dirty word. So is the word gay, but that's another editorial.

It has been acceptable for some time to talk about senior citizens, or probably just plain seniors. It was OK to talk about someone being in his or her golden years. And the government, which gave us such substitutes as disadvantaged for poor and labor surplus for unemployment has also given us experienced Americans for old folks. There may be quite a bit of assumption in that general term but government is always long on assumption — especially in estimating increased revenue from tax juggling. But that's another editorial.

In today's mail came a promotional type news release which was headed, "Silver Years Bring Changes in Sleep Habits". The article referred to people over the age of 60 years, so apparently silver was being equated with 60. Not having heard the term "silver years" before, I was interested in how it was being applied.

The news release was pushing mattresses and box springs, pointing out that May is Better Sleep Month. We suppose that means that you better sleep in May because you won't have time to sleep in June and it will be too hot in July and August.

It seems that people will go to almost any length to avoid using the word old as it relates to people. An old chair is fine, or an old car or an old carpet or even an old dog, but people don't get old. They're mature, they're retirement age, they're silver-haired, they're geriatric.

But that silver years things intrigues us. If 60 is the start of the silver years, where do the golden years start? Do the diamond years hit at around age 75? That would seem appropriate. And if you're 100 years old . . . uh, pardon me, a centenarian, that is . . . are you starting into the platinum years?

"We need to pay close attention to our sleep needs at all ages in order to function to our potential," the article on silver years stated. Having worked in the darkroom until 2 a.m. the night before and being back at the desk shortly after 7 a.m., we could appreciate that advice. Function was a struggle, much less to potential.

And heck, we're a whole decade away from the silver years yet. We're still in the brassy time of life.

Political Fur Flies

Who could resist reading a letter that starts out by stating: "Jesse James would have loved the House DFL majority. They're about to stage the biggest robbery in state history — a $1 billion tax increase."

The letter is from Bill Schreiber, House Minority leader (Independent-Republicans are well in the minority this legislative session), and he doesn't like what appears to be coming out of the portion of the legislature where he serves. He doesn't like it at all.

"The tax bill passed recently by the DFL-controlled House raises property taxes 11 per cent statewide," he said. "Average-value homes really get walloped." That situation shouldn't make anyone who pays local property taxes very happy, either.

Never mind Rep. Schreiber's claim that the DFL candidates campaigned on the theme that they would not raise taxes. Every candidate uses that old line. The concern here is for what other damage is being done to the public through the tax jockeying in the legislature. Rep. Schreiber describes the carnage as follows:

"Monthly phone bills will rise $2 to $3 across the state because of tax extensions on phone companies. Interstate phone calls will be sales taxed. Prices for countless other consumer goods and services will rise because of new taxes on companies.

"One particularly onerous new tax is the alternative minimum tax. Except for a variation in California, this minimum tax is the only one of its kind in the nation. It adds up a company's property value, payroll and sales and says the company must pay the state a percentage of the sum — even if the company is losing money! This is a tax on jobs, and not only will it push up consumer prices, but it will drive more jobs out of communities and out of Minnesota.

"The tax bill plays tricks on individual income taxpayers. The suspension of tax indexing and the creation of an automatic tax that kicks in when the budget reserve falls to a certain level mean personal income taxes will rise in coming years without legislators voting to raise them.

"More sales taxes, tax increases for renters — I could go on and on about how Minnesotans are being robbed by the DFL House tax bill," Rep. Schreiber writes.

He also notes that House Speaker Fred Norton has "issued disinformation" about the DFL majority inheriting an $800 million deficit from the previous IR House majority.

"Four brief points," Rep. Schreiber writes. "One, any spending commitments carried over from 1986 were made by a DFL governor and a DFL senate that refused to accept spending cuts recommended by House IRs. Two, it simply is bogus thinking. Suffice to say that the IR majority of 1985-86 inherited from the DFLers of 1984 a deficit of $1.2 billion — and yet the IRs cut taxes $1 billion. Three, it diverts public attention from broken DFL promises not to raise taxes. And four, it is used as a flimsy excuse to raise taxes $1 billion."

Discount half of what the House Minority Leader says and it still sounds bad for the taxpayers of Minnesota. Must we believe that there is no hope to reversing the upward spiral of spending and taxing.

Improved Rural Economies

Following editorial is from the May-June issue of CA Highlights, published by Communicating for Agriculture, headquartered in Fergus Falls:

Recent statistics show that a surprising 90 per cent of the farmers in the United States rely at least to some extent on off-farm income.

True, the numbers have to include "hobby farmers" to whom farming is primarily a diversion of a tax write-off, but a percentage as big as 90 would also take in the vast majority of those who are serious about farming and "full time" at least in their own self concepts.

It's not the type of statistic that we as an agricultural organization like. But it's so overwhelming that we have to accept it.

The fact must be faced that constantly improving technology and farming methods have made it possible for a lot of food to be produced and sold very economically. Thus, food is relatively "cheap" and as long as there are a substantial number of people who want to farm, it will be difficult for many of them to make a good living without outside income.

Even with these dynamics at work, CA strongly feels it is healthy to have a large-as-practical number of people continue in farming, rather than to let food production be concentrated in the hands of a relatively few large "food factories."

It becomes necessary, then, to economically maintain rural America to the extent that there will continue to be enough sources of off-farm income for farm family members who require it.

Right now, the trend is going in the wrong direction, particularly in "farm belt" states. A lot of people are being forced out of farming and must move to metropolitan areas in order to earn their livings. This is causing an unhealthy imbalance in population and economic patterns. Many states have thriving metro areas, surrounded by rural regions that are experiencing severe economic problems. And it all averages out into bad state economies.

On the other hand, an agricultural economist from North Carolina says his state is doing quite well because industry and business is spread throughout the state, rather than concentrated exclusively in large cities.

The lesson would be that other states should try to spread their industry and business over their total geographic areas. And this is being attempted in a number of states.

At this writing, comprehensive economic development legislation is pending in Minnesota, Texas and Pennsylvania. A number of bills that could contribute to rural economic development are being considered in Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri. A serious study of potential plans is getting underway in Colorado. Georgia has a policy through which rural employment opportunities are being encouraged through a number of means.

This is a healthy counter-trend and CA not only encourages it, but actively supports it, and will provide increasingly more active support in the future.

Helping rural America is what CA is all about. And as economic dynamics change, CA must augment its activities and strategies.

Communicating for Agriculture will continue to work for its traditional goals of family farm and ranch ownership preservation; beginning farmer, rancher and small business assistance, soil conservation; rural education, health care policies geared to rural America; and the other ends for which it has become known.

But to this list must be added a new goal: rural economic development. It's a necessary goal for the preservation and strengthening of a healthy rural America.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I would like to thank everyone who attended and participated in our second annual weight lifting meet. You people helped make it a big success.

Weight training is something new to our student athletes and to our community. Since coming to Thief River Falls two years ago, our program has made a 100 per cent turn-around. At this writing I would compare our program to any school our size in the state. Our kids have made our program what it is today (a top-quality program).

Our community and parents have been very supportive of what I've been trying to do with weight training. It's something we have to deal with if we want Lincoln high school athletes to be successful. We play a great number of schools who have very sophisticated weight programs. In fact, if they don't participate in weight programs, they can't participate in any sports, which I think is a good idea. Why put an athlete into a situation where he or she can sustain an injury because he or she is physically weak. It only makes sense. It's been proven over and over again by professional people that weight training, if done properly, can greatly reduce injuries and make an athlete perform at greater levels.

So why do we have athletes who don't weight train? We, as coaches, have some answers to that but mostly it's because they have false ideas of what weights can do to you. (Make you muscle-bound — false; lose your flexibility — false; lose your touch — false; muscles turn to fat when you quit lifting — false; don't want to look like the body builders on TV; my parents never did, or I don't have time; you can't lift during the season because it will hurt your performance, etc.)

We as physical education instructors and coaches try to educate our athletes as best as possible, and we try to answer any questions they might have. This also goes for the parents and the community — if you have any questions, please contact us.

Let's face it, our athletes are the same as in any other schools. We just have to catch up with their programs (weight training programs).

To the people who are very supportive in what we are trying to do here, thank you! It makes our job a lot easier. I would like to especially thank these people: The Times for their coverage; KTRF-KSNR and KKAQ for having a special day to name the athletes and non-athletes who have earned a spot on one of our weight boards; Lincoln high school for putting their names in the announcements; and the Boosters Club for buying the weight meet trophies. Again we thank you!!

Coach Jeff Mumm

"The Difference Is You" will be the topic of Palkovich's talk. Her duties with the Minnesota Curriculum Services center consist of curriculum development and assistance to all AVTIs in the state. Her responsibility was to develop the job seeking skills curriculum for post secondary students which has been distributed state-wide.

Palkovich also provides staff development and student presentations in career development, futures of work and workers, stress management and team building. She is also a private management consultant and conducts sessions directed toward developing human resources within organizations. She has delivered over 1,800 workshops and training sessions in Minnesota and throughout the United States, Mexico and South America.

In the early 1970's she spent two years working with American oil producing managers in Iran and Kuwait, training American business people in how to deal with mid-eastern cross cultural systems.

"Dr. Palkovich is a positive, dynamic speaker with practical messages for people to use, not just talk about," stated director of the AVTI, Dr. Orley Gunderson.

MCC-Middle River Splits Games

Playing both good and bad baseball, the Marshall County Central-Middle River high school cooperative program split back-to-back decisions against North Sub-Region 8A rivals Tri-County and Kittson County North in mid-week match-ups.

Marshall County Central-Middle River was an impressive 8-2 winner over Tri-County Wednesday, but then fell apart defensively in a 10-8 Thursday loss to Kittson County North.

The up-and-down performance explains why Marshall County Central-Middle River was looking at a 6-6 record after the split. Head coach Sam Gebhart was elated with his team's Wednesday performance, but was far from pleased with the Thursday showing.

Darin Rokke struck out 13 Tri-County batters in the Wednesday win. He gave up three hits and a pair of runs in the first inning, then pitched six innings of three-hit shutout balls, walking five.

Marshall County Central-Middle River overtook Tri-County with a four-run second inning on a two-run double by Darren Wagner, an RBI double by Tom Blazek and an RBI single by Randy Audette. The winners added a pair of runs in both the fourth and sixth innings. Blazek was 3-for-4 at the plate to pace the eight-hit attack. Marshall County Central-Middle River had two errors; Tri-County had three. Paul Olson took the loss, with Shannon Boen coming on in relief in the fourth inning.

There were 13 errors in the mistake-filled Thursday contest — seven against Kittson County North and six against Marshall County Central-Middle River.

A three-run first inning and a four-run fourth provied Marshall County Central-Middle River with a 7-2 cushion, but Kittson County North struck for seven fifth inning runs.

Gebhart went through four pitching changes. Blazek started, Corey Olson was the loser in relief, although Blazek was called upon again, and Casey Johnson pitched the seventh. James Diamond got the win.

Greg Graham was 4-for-4 in the loser's 12-hit atack. Wagner and Johnson had two hits in four at-bats. Kittson County North collected seven hits.

TRF Baseball JV Splits Games With Crookston, Roseau

A 13-hit attack produced a 16-2 Thursday win over Crookston, but a two-hit offense wound up an 11-3 loser to Roseau Friday as the Thief River Falls junior varsity high school baseball team split a pair of outings to go 9-5 for the year.

Hunter Boldt ran his pitching record to 5-1 with a two-hitter against Crookston. John Azure led the offense with a 4-for-4 day at the plate, including a home run. Rob Coltom was 3-for-4, Boldt was 2-for-3 and Jason Kempert also homered for the winners, who broke the game open with a seven-run third inning.

Crookston in addition to getting out-hit 13-2, was charged with five of the game's six errors.

Thief River Falls' offense wasn't nearly as productive against Roseau as the visitors out-hit the Dan Willoughby-coached junior varsity 8-2.

Azure took the loss on the mound, working the first three innings. Kempert and Sean Myhrer finished up on the mound. Thief River Falls had two errors; Roseau had one.

Onkka Earns NJCAA Golf Spot

Dave Onkka, a Northland Community College freshman from Thief River Falls, defeated Steve Hanson of Rainy River in a one-hole playoff Friday at the conclusion of the combination Minnesota Community College Conference state and National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13 tournaments in Rochester to earn a berth in the 1987 NJCAA national golf tournament in Odessa, TX.

Championship team, plus the top five non-championship team golfers at the MCCC-Region 13 meet qualified for the NJCAA event, scheduled to be held June 9-12.

Austin won team honors with a 32-stroke victory margin over runner-up Rochester, 623-655.

Individually, Greg Johnson of Brainerd, Greg Swanson of Minneapolis, Mike Lorch of Rochester and Dan Blackdear of Madison Tech in Wisconsin claimed the top four NJCAA spots, while Onkka and Hanson tied for the fifth and final position with a two-day, 36-hole 161.

Both golfers sent their playoff hole tee shots off the fairway. But while Hanson struggled from that point on, Onkka made an outstanding recovery shot over the trees and onto the green, where he two-putted for the trip to Texas.

"David did a nice job," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "He was pretty excited."

The MCCC and Region 13 meets were played on Rochester's Northern Hills and Eastwood golf courses.

Austin, the pre-tournament favorite, went 315-308, 623; Rochester 327-328, 655; Madison Tech 336-324, 660; Brainerd 342-321, 663; Normandale 347-323, 670; Minneapolis 338-334, 672; Fergus Falls 355-340, 695; Willmar 361-338, 699; Northland 352-358, 710; and Worthington 399-380, 779. Rainy River and Bismarck, ND, did not field complete teams.

Onkka had a tournament-best nine-hole round 36 on his front nine at Eastwood on Friday. He went 41-42 for his 83 Thursday, then came back with a 36-42 for a 78 on Friday.

Other Northland golfers included Brad Lang, 44-45, 89 on Thursday and 44-51, 95 on Friday for a 184; Grant Grabanski, 45-42, 87 on Thursday and 46-46, 92 on Friday for a 179; Rich Bendickson, 48-45, 93 on Thursday and 45-48, 93 on Friday for a 186; and Darrin Abernathy, 53-51, 104 on Thursday and 49-49, 98 on Friday for a 202.

TRF Head High School Hockey Coach Resigns . . .

Grand Steps Down As Coach

Wendell Grand, Thief River Falls' head high school hockey coach the past 11 years, submitted his letter of resignation to School District 564 officials Friday morning.

Grand, a Roseau native who graduated from Bemidji State University and served as an assistant coach at Greenway-Coleraine before being named the Prowlers' head coach beginning in the 1976-77 season, said the resignation was not a spur-of-the-moment move.

"It's not an impulsive decision," he explained. "It's something I decided to do, and when I make a decision, I go with it. I'm leaving for a variety of reasons. I didn't intend to coach forever. I feel it's the thing to do at this time."

Grand succeeded Bill McGann as Thief River Falls' head hockey coach. In 11 years his Prowlers went 133-104-10. Three of his teams reached the Section 8 finals, but each time lost to Roseau — 4-2 in 1979, 7-3 in 1981 and 1-0 in 1983. Record-wise, Grand's Prowlers had their best seasons in 1982-83 when they were 16-6-1 and in 1978-79 when they were 16-7. Stung by numerous close losses, the Prowlers dipped below the .500 mark the last two years with 8-14 and 10-12-1 finishes.

The records, or any pressure that might have went with the position, did not force the resignation, said Grand. "I don't leave it with bad feelings," he pointed out.

His 11-year reign as head coach was the longest in the 43-year history of the program at Lincoln High School. Previous longest Thief River Falls hockey coaching stint was seven years by Dennis Rolle, who coached the Prowlers from 1949-50 to 1955-56. George Schlieff is next in line with a six-year stay from 1963-64 through the 1968-69 season.

Glenn Chiodo and Tracey Wensloff served as assistant hockey coaches under Grand this past winter.

Mesabi Beats Northland For Softball Title . . .

Pioneers Second At State

Mesabi beat Northland twice, including a come-from-behind effort in the championship finals of the six-team, double-elimination Minnesota Community College Conference women's slow pitch state softball tournament Thursday and Friday at Ely.

An opening round Northland-Mesabi match-up Thursday produced one of the tournament's top defensive games, won by the Norsewomen 5-2. Tricia Armstrong homered and singled for the Pioneers, while Annette Kofstad and Sheila Jaeger both had a pair of singles and Janelle Lorsung tripled.

Lorsung hit two home runs and added a single as Northland bounced back in the loser's bracket with a 12-0 Thursday win over Cambridge. Cherie Deihl tripled for the winners.

Everybody in the Northland line-up had at least one base hit in a 13-10 Friday morning victory over rival University of Minnesota-Crookston, the tournament's top-seeded team. Lorsung was 3-for-4 with a double. Connie Geatz had two singles.

Northland reached the finals with a 14-12 victory over host Vermilion in Round 4. Lorsung, Jaeger and Shari Larson had three hits apiece to lead a strong Northland team effort, while Kofstad had a pair of doubles.

Luck ran out on Northland in the finals against unbeaten Mesabi. The Pioneers had a 13-4 lead through five innings before rain and lightning stopped play. When the game resumed, Northland's defense failed to hold the lead, and Mesabi wound up pulling out the 17-16 state tournament-winning victory in the bottom of the seventh inning.

"We started making mistakes, and we started to panic," explained Northland coach Patti Chiodo after the late-game collapse against Mesabi. "But they (Northland) played excellent ball all through the tournament. They wanted to win real bad. They played with a whole lot of heart."

Lorsung was 4-for-4 in the final game. Armstrong homered and had three singles. Jaeger, Deihl, Geatz and Elaine Hanson all had three hits. Larson tripled and singled.

Northland finished the year 16-11 overall.

Two Pioneers Named All-State

Two Northland Community College players were named to the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference All-State slow pitch softball team following the completion of the state tournament Friday in Ely.

Janelle Lorsung of Waubun and Tricia Armstrong of Thief River Falls, both second-year members of the Northland team, were among the 14 women given All-State status.

The team included infielders JoAnne Sales and Sara Grams, Mesabi; Michelle Johnson and Becky Jagelski, University of Minnesota-Crookston; Carrie Leseman, Rainy River; and Janelle Lorsung, North-

Prowlers Out-Score Pirates

It was a struggle for Tom Knoff, but the Thief River Falls senior right-hander battled through control problems Thursday to emerge with the pitching victory as the Prowlers out-scored host Crookston 10-7 in high school baseball action.

Knoff gave up only six hits, but he walked 11 while striking out four. He walked the first two Crookston batters he faced in the bottom of the first inning and the Pirates, after giving up a pair of runs in the top of the inning, went on to score four times.

But Thief River Falls answered with a three-run second. Crookston tied it with a third inning run. Both sides scored twice in the fourth before Thief River Falls finally put it away with a three-run sixth.

Mike Bendickson led an 11-hit Thief River Falls attack with a 3-for-3 day at the plate. Knoff was 2-for-4 with a double and a triple, while Jason Lane went 2-for-4 with a pair of doubles.

"We got the hits when we needed them," said Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "Defensively we weren't real sharp, but we were adequate, I guess."

Prowlers' Golf Schedule Slows Down

Thief River Falls boys high school golf team will complete its 1987 regular season schedule with a single outing this week, a 9:30 a.m. appearance Tuesday at the Moorhead Invitational.

The 1987 Region 8AA meet will be held Wendesday, May 27, at Park Rapids.

This week's one-meet schedule is quite a contrast to the Prowlers' busy schedule last week when they were involved in four meets in a five-day Tuesday-to-Saturday span.

Wednesday the Prowlers were at the Park Rapids Invitational — site of the Region 8AA meet. Bemidji won championship honors with a 313, followed by Fergus Falls at 314, St. Cloud Tech 318, Park Rapids and Fosston 330, Little Falls 331, Thief River Falls 334, Moorhead 337, Alexandria and Brainerd 340, Detroit Lakes 342, Staples 349, Mahnomen 360, Crosby-Ironton 364, Walker-Hackensack 368, Park Rapids junior varisty 369, Frazee 373, Blackduck 385, Bagley 401, and Cass Lake 445.

Joe Greenagle of Fergus Falls was a medalist with a 74. Russ Simonson of Bemidji was runner-up with a 75 and Shane Mattfield of Bemidji was third with a 76.

For Thief River Falls, Bob Geatz had an 82 (43-39), Jim Breiland 83 (38-45), Jason Peterson 84 (46-38), Paul Borchert 85 (47-38), Steve Jung 88 (43-45), and Jason Tangquist 91 (46-45).

Thief River Falls faltered at the Bemidji Invitational Friday, finishing 12th in a 16-team field.

Host Bemidji won it with a 388, followed by Fergus Falls at 411, Fosston 426, Brainerd 427, Crookston and East Grand Forks 428, Bemidji junior varisty 432, Little Falls 435, Greenbush 441, Moorhead 445, Roseau 446, Thief River Falls 447, Warren-Alvarado 448, Walker 462, Blackduck 490, and Bagley 495.

Simenson and Bemidji teammate Troy Haluptzok went 1-2 in the medal race with a 70 and 74, respectively.

For the Prowlers, Geatz went 44-41 for an 85, Jung 44-42 for an 86, Borchert 42-47 for an 89, Breiland 46-44 for a 90, Tangquist 49-48 for a 97, and Paul Antonenko 48-50 for a 98.

It was a younger Thief River Falls line-up that participated in the Warren Invitational Saturday to close out the busy week of matches as Tyler gave many of the Prowlers' junior varsity performers varsity starts.

Crookston won it with a 306, followed by East Grand Forks at 309, Greenbush 319, Fosston 323, Marshall County South 325, Marshall County South junior varsity 334, Thief River Falls 353, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 363, Bagley 381, and Red Lake Falls 396.

Bryan Perkins of East Grand Forks was meet medalist with a 74. Mike Nelson of Marshall County South and Steve Walsh of Crookston both came in at 75.

For the Prowlers, Tangquist had a 44-43 for an 87, Paul Antonenko 42-45 for an 87, Geoff Antonenko 43-46 for an 89, Wade Jorde 48-42 for a 90, Roger Anderson 47-45 for a 90, and Tony Kozojed 50-49 for a 99.

High School Tennis Tournament Starts Today . . .

Spuds Take Top Spot From Prowlers

Regular season play ended Thursday for Thief River Falls when the Prowlers split a pair of 4-3 high school tennis decisions against Moorhead and Fergus Falls at Moorhead.

The Prowlers beat the Otters, but lost to the Spuds in the double-dual meet format that left the Prowlers with a 5-3 record and a No. 2 seed behind Moorhead in today's (Monday) 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA team tournament at Detroit Lakes.

A tournament seeding meeting was held Wednesday, but a close contest for the top seed prompted the coaches of the five participating schools to call for the use of results in the Moorhead-Thief River Falls match-up the following day to determine the top two tournament positions.

With wins at No. 1 and No. 2 singles and No. 1 and No. 3 doubles, the Spuds reversed a 4-3 loss to the Prowlers in an April 9 double-dual match-up at East Grand Forks. Moorhead had out-pointed Thief River Falls in head-to-head competition at the Prowlers' recent Sports Boosters Club Invitational to set the stage for Thursday's showdown.

After the disappointing loss to Moorhead, Thief River Falls struggled to get by Fergus Falls, breaking a 3-3 tie when Troy Hanestad and John Dondelinger edged Lance Abramson and Craig Abramson 6-4, 6-7, 6-4 at No. 1 doubles — the final match on the courts.

"The kids didn't play with quite as much enthusiasm against Fergus Falls," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "The big one was the Moorhead match. We had a little let-up after we lost that one."

Today's post-season matches were scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. with No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls meeting No. 5 Detroit Lakes. The 12-noon semifinals had No. 2-seeded Thief River Falls vs. No. 3 Bemidji and No. 1-seeded Moorhead vs. the Fergus Falls-Detroit Lakes winner. Championship match had a 2 p.m. starting time.

Individual portion of the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament Wednesday at Detroit Lakes will include two singles and two doubles entries from each of the five participating schools.

North and South Sub-Region 8AA team winners will meet for the Region 8AA crown Tuesday, May 26, at Brainerd. Top four North and South Sub-Region 8AA singles and doubles finishers will qualify for the Region 8AA individual tournament Wednesday, May 27, at Brainerd.

TRF Co-Curricular Director Is Named

Lee Alger, currently athletic director and head coach in football and track at Ellendale, ND, has been selected from a field of applicants to serve as the Co-Curricular Activities Director for School District 564.

Alger will take over a newly-created administrative position that succeeds the role of Athletic Director at Lincoln High School. He will supervise extra-cirrucular activities in the Thief River Falls K-through-12 system, including athletics, speech, debate, etc., according to Terry Soine, Lincoln Principal.

Alger is a native of Delano, MN. He is a graduate of the University of North Dakota-Ellendale Branch who has worked in the Jamestown College before going to Ellendale. He also has coaching experience in basketball.

Lee, his wife Evelyn and their three school-age children, are expected to move to Thief River Falls early this summer. His position here officially starts July 1.

Thief River Falls' athletic office was headed on an interim parttime basis this year by Lincoln Assistant Principal Mike Novak following the resignation of Russ Smith from the Athletic Director's role last spring.

MCC-Middle River Girls Third At True Team Meet

Marshall County Central-Middle River girls came up with a third place finish in Class A Saturday during the first Minnesota True Team state track meet held in St. Cloud.

A new concept designed by Minnesota high school track coaches, the True Team state meet rewards teams for their depth instead of having just a few multi-talented individuals scoring enough points to win a Minnesota State High School League title.

Not all high shools participated in the True Team concept that included regional competition to name the eight state meet participants in four classes — A, AA, AAA, AAAA. Thief River Falls was one of those who did not participate in the event.

Elgin-Millville won the girls True Team Class A state title with 323 points, followed by Ada-Borup with 270, Marshall County Central-Middle River 220, and Slayton 213.

It was a pleasant surprise to finish third at the state meet, admitted Marshall County Central-Middle River Coach Ron Ueland, whose team won the 13-team regional meet the week before at the University of

TRF Scores Points

Crookston and East Grand Forks shared the meet and the meet titles Friday in the East Grand Forks Lions Invitational high school track meet at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

The Crookston girls finished with 149 points, followed by East Grand Forks with 119, Thief River Falls 99, Stephen 53.5, Warroad 22.5, Hallock 22, Climax 18, and East Grand Forks 7.

East Grand Forks boys won a first place trophy with 152 points, followed by Crookston with 108, Hallock 104, Thief River Falls 93, Warroad 56, Climax 4, and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 2.

Thief River Falls teams have been busy lately, but the hectic schedule didn't keep the Prowers from doing well in both the boys and girls portion of the meet.

"It was another good night of running," reported Thief River Falls girls coach Tom Schafer. "It was our third meet in four days, and I wasn't expecting a top performance, but, again, we got a lot of good efforts."

Schafer's girls, because of the demanding schedule, were given the freedom to pick how many events they wanted to compete in. Most chose two instead of the normal three. The Prowlers' point total could have been even bigger if a normal line-up would have been used,' said Schafer. "What we ran, we ran well," he noted.

Thief River Falls girls won seven events, including a double-victory by seventh grader Jodi Kruta, who won the 100-meter dash in 13.4 and took the long jump with a 15-3.75 effort.

Christy Puetz won the 400 in 1:00.0; Peggy Cruz took the 800 in 2:27; Cindy Kruta claimed the 300 meter hurdles in 48.9; Lynn Mueller triumphed in the 1600 in 5:38; and Cindy Kruta, Christy Holthursen, Cruz and Puetz won the 1600 meter relay in 4:16.

Paul Brandt was a double-event winner for the Thief River Falls boys with an 11.68 in the 100 and a 24.21 in the 200. Kyle Kisch won the 800 in 2:06.

In addition to the wins, the Prowlers' Brian Stark and Shayne Anderson both had a pair of second place finishes to their credit. Stark ran a 15.83 in the 110 high hurdles and a 44.95 in the 300 intermediate hurdles. Anderson had a 5:00 in the 1600 and an 11:23 in the 3200.

"We're very happy with the performances," acknowleed Thief River Falls boys coach Tim Olosn.

Girls Stumble At Alexandria

Alexandria established itself as the favorite for the 1987 Region 8AA girls high school golf tournament last Thursday by winning its own invitational against many of the same teams who will be back in Alexandria this Thursday for the post-season competition.

The Cardinals won the Alexandria Invitational with a 387. Moorhead and Rocori shared second place with a 411, followed by Melrose at 427, Little Falls 437, Thief River Falls 450, Fergus Falls 455, Brainerd 469, and Sauk Centre, incomplete.

Kelly Cornell led the Prowlers with a 95, while Stacey Cummings turned in a 115, Nancy Jorde 116, and Jill Olson 124.

It was not a good outing for the Prowlers, admitted Thief River Falls coach Al Buhl. The 450 team score was well off the 406-407 average the Prowlers had been hitting. "A 415 for us is bad, and 35 above that is real bad," he said. "I have no explanation for it, either."

Still, Buhl feels the Prowlers, if they regain their previous touch, can be a factor in the Region 8AA meet. "If we play well, we could finish as high as second. If we don't, we can finish as low as eighth," he explained.

Thief River Falls was scheduled to be in East Grand Forks for a 3:15 p.m. meet today (Monday) before finishing the regular season schedule at the Detroit Lakes Invitational Tuesday.

Cardinals Sweep Pioneers

Northland Community College baseball team mustered just two runs in 14 innings of work Saturday in a 5-1, 7-1 doubleheader loss at Hibbing.

The Pioneers, 5-16 for the year, will close out their 1987 schedule Wednesday by hosting Brainerd in a 12-noon nonconference doubleheader. Hibbing is the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division champion and will host the MCCC state tournament this weekend.

"They (Hibbing) have a real nice ball club," acknowledged Northland coach Rick Nelson. "They played well, but we made them earn everything they got."

Hibbing had an 8-5 base hit edge in the opener supplemented by four Northland errors. The Cardinals had just one error. Deon Schmidt was the losing pitcher; Tim Podominick was the winner, giving up only a sixth inning run. Joe Blankenfeld was 2-for-3 for the Pioneers.

The numbers were basically the same in Game 2 as Hibbing out-hit Northland 7-3, and the Pioneers had three of the game's four errors. Tim Borgen was the losing pitcher; John Spry was the winner.

ROSEAU RUNNER Craig Wensloff was tagged out at the plate by Thief River Falls pitcher Dean DuChamp in the seventh inning of Friday's high school baseball game at the fairgrounds diamond. Wensloff tried to score from third base on a wild pitch, but didn't make it as catcher Scott Vedbraaten ran down the ball against the short backstop and made the throw to the plate. The Prowlers, with DuChamp throwing a three-hitter, shut out the Rams 9-0.

Dean DuChamp Pitches Three-Hitter . . .

Prowlers Shut Out Rams 9-0

Sophomore righthander Dean DuChamp pitched a three-hit shutout Friday afternoon as Thief River Falls beat Roseau 9-0 in a high school baseball match-up at the fairgrounds diamond here.

DuChamp walked just two batters and struck out four as Thief River Falls climbed to 7-4 for the year. It was just the third loss in 14 outings for the Rams.

DuChamp faced just 21 batters — three over the minimum — through six sharp innings, then got out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh to preserve the shutout.

Craig Wensloff, cousin of Thief River Falls head coach Jeff Wensloff, started the Rams' seventh inning with a line drive infield single off the pitching rubber. He moved to second on a wild pitch and took third on an infield ground-out. Dean Halvorson reached base on a fielder's choice play when Thief River Falls second baseman Kory Joppru held the ball too long in checking Wensloff at third base. Cory Vatnsdal then walked to load the bases with just one out. But Wensloff decided to try to score on a wild pitch — a bad move considering the nine-run deficit and the short distance to the fairgrounds daimond backstop. He was an easy out at the plate, and moments later Dean Foster's ground ball back to the mound ended it — Thief River Falls' first shutout win of the year.

Meanwhile, the Prowlers' offense included a five-run third inning and a three-run fifth, along with a single sixth inning score.

In the third, Scott Vedbraaten, the No. 9 hitter, drew a lead-off walk. A stolen base, an error and two outs later Vedbraaten scored on an infield single behind second by Joel Swanson. Tom Knoff was hit by a pitch, and both runners scored when Jason Lane bounced a single into the left-center field gap. Lane took second on the play on a throw back to the infield and went to third on a wild pitch. DuChamp walked, and when he stole second, Lane scored on the catcher's throw into center field. An RBI single to left by Chris Nelson closed out the inning.

Swanson started the fifth inning with a double to left-center field. He scored on a one-out single to left by Lane. DuChamp followed by a triple, and he scored on a sacrifice fly by Nelson.

Mike Bendickson led off the Thief River Falls sixth with a single up the middle. A single by Joppru and a fielder's choice play on a ball hit by Knoff put runners at first and third, and Bendickson scored on another of those throws into the outfield on the stolen base attempt at second.

Swanson wound up 2-for-3 for the afternoon. Lane was 2-for-4 with three RBI.

Halvorson gave up eight runs and six hits before being replaced on the mound by Wensloff in the fifth inning. The Prowlers tacked on an additional run and three hits off Wensloff.

Community College Baseball Doubleheader . . .

Pioneers, Spartans Split

Northland received two strong pitching performances, but had to settle for a doubleheader split Wednesday in a Minnesota Community College Conference baseball doubleheader at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls won the opener 8-1. Northland took the nightcap 3-2.

Thief River Falls products Kevin Nelson (five innings) and Tim Nyland (one inning) combined on a three-hit pitching performance in Game 1, but seven Northland errors spoiled their efforts. All eight Fergus Falls runs were unearned.

"Kevin played a heckuva ball game," reported Northland coach Rick Nelson. "It's too bad we didn't give him any help."

It was a 1-1 game going into the bottom of the fifth when the Northland defense fell apart, surrendering four runs and the game. Fergus Falls tacked on three more runs in the sixth.

Northland had just two hits in the opener. Fergus Falls committed only one error.

Tim Borgen, a freshman from Grand Forks, followed the Nelson-Nyland combination on the mound in Game 2 and scattered six hits. He was backed by a much-improved Northland defense that was charged with only one error.

"It was a heckuva game on the part of both teams," pointed out Nelson. "Tim Borgen did a nice job, and defensively it was as well as we've played all year. To come back from total disaster and play that well was really something."

Northland overcame a 1-0 deficit with a two-run sixth inning as Keith Nelson and Dean Brandon collected one-out singles, putting runners at first and third. Brandon stole second base, Joe Blankenfeld came through with a run-scoring sacrifice fly, and Steve Landsem contributed an RBI single on a play that also found a Northland runner being thrown out at the plate.

Fergus Falls tied the game at 2-2 in the bottom of the sixth, but Northland went ahead in the top of the seventh as Al Sorum reached base on an error, moved up on a sacrifice bunt and scored on a two-out, two-strike single to center by Keith Nelson.

Borgen closed it out by striking out the side — the Spartans' No. 2-3-4 hitters — in the bottom of the seventh.

Prowlers At Otters Invitational . . .

TRF Runs At Fergus Falls

Thief River Falls boys and girls were in Fergus Falls Thursday for the 44th annual Otter Invitational high school track meet.

Bemidji won both titles. Bemidji boys collected 171 points, followed by Moorhead with 139, International Falls 69, Breckenridge 63, Fergus Falls 55, Fisher 15, and Thief River Falls 8. Bemidji girls scored 127 points, followed by International Falls 114, Moorhead 112, Thief River Falls 46, Breckenridge 38, Detroit Lakes 34, Fergus Falls 23, and Fisher 8.

Thief River Falls boys scored points on five fifth place finishes. Thief River Falls girls had a variety of place finishes, including a first place performance by junior Cindy Kruta in the 300-meter hurdles in 47.7, a time that puts her among the top hurdlers in Region 8AA, according to Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer.

"Overall, I was very satisfied with the way we ran," reported Schafer, "especialy after coming off a meet (Northwest Outdoor at Bemidji) on Tuesday."

A toss of 98-feet, 2-inches in the discus by Tammy Ortloff, a 1:03.1 clocking in the 400 meters by Christy Holthusen, and a 4:10 effort by Kruta, Holthusen, Peggy Cruz and Christy Puetz in the 1600 meter relay all represented significant improvements and resulted in third place finishes.

Thief River Falls boys and girls will close out their 1987 regular season schedule tonight (Monday) at the Roseau Twilight Invitational beginning at 5 p.m. The boys and girls North Sub-Region 8AA meet will be held Thursday at Moorhead beginning at 3 p.m.

County Makes List Of Problems At Future Fuel Inc.

Lundell Manufacturing company is willing to fix all machinery problems at Future Fuel. County auditor Ken Olson said that Rick Nordhagen of Future Fuel, County Engineer Wayne Olson, consultants and county commissioners decided to compile a list of machinery problems at Future Fuel before the warranty on the equipment expired.

Future Fuel has been closed for the past two weeks while repairs on the equipment have been made and the list of needed repairs compiled. Thief River Falls city council was told by Alderman Milan Borsheim last Tuesday night that Future Fuel had been closed for the last two weeks and city crews were transporting garbage to a landfill in Grafton, ND.

Borsheim said transporting the garbage to the landfill in Grafton was cheaper than delivering it to Future Fuel, but resulted in much more wear and tear to equipment. Borsheim was concerned that Future Fuel had been able to shut down despite its contract with the city. Co-city attorney Paul Ihle said he would look into the matter but thought there might be provisions or wording in the contract which would allow for operations at Future Fuel to shut down temporarily under certain circumstances.

Pennington county commissioners were discussing the same problem last Tuesday. Vernon Lundell of Lundell Manufacturing, the company which built much of the equipment at Future Fuel, was at the commissioners' meeting. He said he was willing to fix everything noted on a list of problems. According to the county auditor, Lundell also was willing to follow up on repairs and make sure the equipment was functioning properly. At the time of the commissioner's meeting, workers were already at Future Fuel making repairs.

A memorandum of understanding with the Minnesota waste management board was approved by the commissioners Tuesday. The memorandum states that the waste management board agrees to pay up to a maximum of $23,040 for the cost of testing and analysis of emissions from the burning of fuel pellets at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls.

The county is responsible for making sure the tests are conducted, and securing a place for the tests to be conducted. Northwest Medical center has agreed to be the host site for emissions testing.

Pellets have been used as a winter heating fuel at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls for more than a year. Tests have been conducted on fly and bottom ash, but extensive and costly emission testing needs to be completed as a requirement of the Minnesota pollution control agency. The tests are expected to begin some time in June.

Nordhagen of Future Fuel also informed the commissioners Tuesday that cans separated from the garbage collected at Future Fuel should be gone by the end of May. Several loads of cans have already been transported to a company in Winnipeg which specializes in scrap metal.

2-Day Race Horse Seminar Set At Canterbury Downs

Two-day Midwest race horse seminar has been set for Monday and Tuesday, June 22 and 23, at the Canterbury Inn and the Canterbury Downs race track near Shakopee.

Sponsored by the University of Minnesota extension service, the Minnesota Thoroughbred association and the Minnesota Racing commission, the seminar will provide an intensive course on sports medicine, training and conditioning, tax laws and investments, nutrition, selection and management, sales and marketing techniques, ownership costs and returns.

National experts on the race horse industry from Alabama, Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, New York, Washington, D.C., and Minnesota have been assembled for the program to provide in-depth information for the veteran horse racing enthusiast and the potential investor as well as the newcomer.

The program will begin the morning of June 16 at the Canterbury Downs track "backstretch" where participants will meet with trainers who will discuss and explain their training program. Running concurrently at the Canterbury Inn will be a session for lawyers, CPAs and others who are interested in tax laws, syndication, partnerships, ownership, investment and accounting in the race horse industry.

The afternoon program continues at the Canterbury Inn. In the evening there will be concurrent sessions of two hours each for owners and breeders and for practicing equine veterinarians. The seminar will conclude on Tuesday.

An added feature will be exhibits of race horse equipment, supplies and paraphernalia.

Yellow Ribbons Remind Motorists To Drive Safely

Minnesota department of transportation maintenance workers are hanging yellow ribbons on 55 mph speed limit signs again this year as part of the statewide "Project Lifesaver" campaign to reduce the number of accidents, injuries and fatalities over the Memorial Day Weekend.

The ribbons are to remind motorists of the "Project Lifesaver" message — to drive 55, to not drink and drive, to wear seatbelts and to wear a helmet when riding a motorcycle.

"Project Lifesaver" was initiated last year to focus attention on the injuries and fatalities on Minnesota roads and to get Minnesotans to develop safe driving habits.

According to Mn-DOT district engineer Bob Wolfe, "The yellow ribbons are our way of saying that we care about the safety of the motorists that use the state's highways and that it will take an extra effort from all of us to make our highways safer."

Wolfe said that the ribbons will be up late this week or early next week and have been supplied, free of charge, by 3M.

TUBING DOWN THE RED? Perhaps it would be more appropriate to call it "wading down the Red" or "three-wheeling down the Red." Low water levels have stymied businesses in Red Lake Falls which cater to people interested in tubing down the Red Lake river. Reports indicate that if a person can float down the river at all, the average three-hour trip is now a five-hour trip. Recent rainfall may improve conditions, hopefully. This photo was taken last Friday from the bridge on highway 32 just north of Red Lake Falls.

AVTI, Northland Given $5.5 Million To Build

Post high school educational facilities in Thief River Falls are in line for some major expansions and improvements as a result of the state bonding bill adopted late Monday evening by the Minnesota legislature prior to its adjournment.

Rep. Wally Sparby told the Times on Tuesday that the House and Senate conference bill adopted about 11:30 p.m. Monday provides $1,797,700 in state funding for a total $2,115,000 project at the Thief River Falls AVTI and $3,710,000 for construction at Northland community college. Combined state funding for the two schools is $5,507,000.

Sparby said the funds will be made available following sale of bonds by the state later this year, but in any event will be ready for the two institutions to use when construction begins, probably in the spring of 1988. The AVTI project was part of $33,198,100 made available to the state vocational system and the Northland project was part of $34,960,000 approved for community college construction and improvements. The state bonding bill totaled $470 million and included other higher education areas as well as other state agencies.

"It took the combined effort of all involved," Rep. Sparby said, adding that the struggle in the House was not an easy one. He commended the administrators and instructional staff of both facilities for their support and cooperation in planning and providing necessary information.

Supt. Leo Ruberto of School District 564, whih administers the AVTI program locally, was equally appreciative of efforts by area legislators. "We are certainly grateful to both Rep. Sparby and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf," Dr. Ruberto said. "The battle in the House was especially difficult and Sen. Stumpf was instrumental in picking up support for the bill when it looked like it might be dropped in the Senate."

Although the bill adopted by the legislature included a provision to pay the entire AVTI construction project if joint governance with the Bemidji AVTI was accomplished, that part of the bill became moot as the Bemidji board of education broke off consideration of that possibility Monday night. As a result, School District 564 will have to pass a bond referendum for $308,000 at its 15 per cent participation in order to receive the $1,797,000 available from the state.

"We will be presenting a bond referendum in late July," Supt. Ruberto said. "The $308,000 share for the local district would be spread over a 15-year repayment period. It would appear that if the bond referendum locally is not passed, the project in total would be lost." The superintendent did not know whether a bond referendum could be conducted more than once.

Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the AVTI, noted that the state will

Area School District Election Results Mixed

Voter turnout for area school board elections Tuesday was mixed as heavy turnouts were reported in the Grygla-Gatzke school district — where responsibility for closing the Gatzke school was an issue — and in Plummer where cooperative ventures with Oklee school district were an issue.

Four candidates ran for office in the Grygla school district where two three-year positions were available in this election. Gary Anderson garnered 314 votes, Sue Schuler 295, Timothy C. Bernstein 191 and DelRay Ruud 188. The 499 recorded votes cast Tuesday night were thought to be a record turnout for the school district.

In the area of the district where the Gatzke elementary school was recently closed, and program cutbacks are an issue because of enrollment declines, voter turnout was especially heavy. Thirty-three votes were cast at the Skime polling place, 105 at the Gatzke polling place and 361 at the Grygla polling place. The record turnout also included 27 absentee votes. Susan Schuler was the only incumbent on the ballot. James Holte, who holdes the other position on the school board, decided not to run for reelection.

A moderate turnout characterized the Goodridge school district election. Three candidates were running for the two three-year positions up for election. Both incumbents, however, were returned to the school board by the voters. Norma Hanson received 124 votes, Richard Parnow 105 and Terry Anderson, who was making his first attempt at running for a position on the school board, received 62 votes. A total of 176 votes were cast. The total included five absentee votes and several write-in votes were also cast.

In the Middle River school district, voter turnout was light. Three candidates were on the ballot and two of those were incumbents. Both incumbents, Gary Peterson and Leo Orpen, were returned to their positions on the school board by the voters. Vote totals were 68 for Peterson, 63 for Orpen and seven for David Koehmstedt. Koehmstedt was making his first bid for election to the school district board of edcuation. A total of 71 votes were cast.

In Newfolden, write-in candidate Donna Fosholm led vote getters. Fosholm, a Holt resident, drew support of a large number of voters from the Holt area. Vote totals indicate a moderate turnout because of only three announced candidates for the three positions on the school board.

Fosholm was the leading vote-getter with 110 votes, followed by David Bakke, who received 104 and Doyle Harstad with 101 votes. Donna Graham, who presently holds a position on the school board, decided not to run for re-election.

County Welfare Board Supports Second DAC

Parents and others rallying in support of the Falls Day Activity center Tuesday evening at the Pennington county courthouse failed to convince the county welfare board it should grant the DAC exclusive operation of a DAC in the county.

Members of the DAC board and its administrator, Charlie Oakes, appeared with parents of DAC program participants, staff members snd other interested persons at the welfare board meeting. They expressed the belief that the board should rescind its prior action to recommend licensing of the Occupational Development center (ODC) to operate a DAC program. The ODC was state licensed in March.

Prior to the appearance of the DAC supporters, the welfare board had granted a per diem rate of $24 per day for clients served by the ODC in a DAC type of program. The rate was granted at the request of the ODC, represented by director Peter Lavalier. The request did not include a request for referrals to its program from the county social services department.

Chairman of the recently reorganized board of the DAC opened the center's presentation to the welfare board by why the welfare board felt there was a need to have a second DAC in the county when a functional DAC has been in operation for 17 years and is not operating at capacity.

In support of that position, before the question could be answered, administrator Oakes listed several concerns of the existing DAC. He said he had thought when the center and the ODC had submitted their responses to requests for proposals (RFP) that it was a win or lose situation. "I thought we won," he said, because the DAC was given the county's contract for services. The county board, however, also authorized the ODC to request state licensure to provide DAC services.

Oakes said he understood that many people thought the DAC program was going to fold due to problems late last year, and that alternate plans were made to cover that eventuality by the welfare board. Now that the DAC has reorganized and its programs are operating well, he said, those alternate plans are no longer necessary.

The DAC administrator pointed out that there are to be an additional 400 patients coming out of state hospitals next year and 300 more in each of the following two years. "I can understand your feeling of need to find a place for these people," he said, "but why aren't you looking down? We're ready to handle additional load." He pointed out that the DAC building has space available beyond its licensed capacity of 35 participants and the DAC board owns an additional five acres that are available for expansion.

Treasurer Richard Neitz of the DAC board noted that the Falls DAC is the lowest in Region One and third lowest in the state for public funds expended per client. "Progress of the program is asstounding," he said, "and the board would hate to see it jeopardized." He asked that the board reconsider its support for a second DAC in the county.

Oakes had also objected earlier to the ODC using the name Pennington County ADC for its proposed program. The county welfare board concurred and said the name would not be used by the ODC. Lavalier said the name for the new progrum would be the Habilitation and Training center.

Welfare board chairman Albert Koop, who presided at the meeting, said the board did not want to rescind a decision it had made in good faith. He said he had heard no complaints about the DAC program and that he expected the county would continue to refer handicapped clients there.

DAC supporters also questioned how new arrivals from state hospitals would be housed and cared for since they are likely to require care beyond what a foster care home would normally provide.

Gary Erickson, county social services director, said the county had issued a request for proposals on Dec. 4, 1986, with a response due by Jan. 5,

Final EIS On Radar Site Expected to Be Released Friday

Release of the final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) on the OTH-B radar system is expected Friday, according to information received by the Times from the U.S. Air Force systems command at Hanscom air force base in Massachusetts.

Kevin Gilmartin of the office of public affairs said that the final statement will be released Friday unless an unanticipated delay takes place, in which case the release would be postponed for a week.

The EIS will include recommendation for location of the central Over the Horizon-Backscatter transmit and receive sites, Gilmartin said, as well as a record of testimony and investigative material regarding the site selection. One of the proposed receive sites is an area west of Thief River Falls.

Gilmartin noted that the final EIS will be about twice the size of the draft EIS, which was nearly an inch thick, due mainly to inclusion of testimony at hearings and provided during an extended comment period. The final extended comment period closed Oct. 31, 1986.

Location of a receive site has been a controversial issue with Thief River Falls business and commercial organizations favoring location in the area and a number of property owners in the area of the proposed site opposed to its placement there.

According to information received from Gilmartin previously, the Secretary of the Air Force will make a decision on where to base the radar 30 days after release of the final Environmental Impact Statement.

Purpose of location of the central radar site in this part of the nation is to provide radar surveillance of the area approaching the United States from the south. The OTH-B system refracts radar signals off the ionoshere to provide a wider range of coverage than conventional radar which is limited to line of sight and therefore limited by the curvature of the earth. Other OTH-B systems are being built to cover east and west coasts.

Col. James Lee will provide the Times with an interview on the EIS recommendations by telephone Friday morning. Information from that interview will be published in the May 25 issue of the Times which will be published Saturday due to the Memorial Day holiday.

Nelson To Speak At Memorial Day Services Monday

"The High Cost of Freedom" is the topic to be used by Rev. D. Josh Nelson as he delivers the Memorial Day address Monday at services sponsored by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. Services will be held at 11 a.m. at Friendship Gardens on Oakland Park Road.

Also included in the program, to which the public is invited will be presentation of colors by a combined American Legion and VFW colorguard, placing of wreaths by presidents Sharon Odegaard of the American Legion auxiliary and Thelma Manning, president of the VFW auxiliary, and special music.

Flags will be flown at half mast in honor of the servicemen killed in the recent missile attack on the ship Stark in the Persian Gulf by the country of Iraq. In case of bad weather, the service will be held in the city auditorium.

Rev. Nelson said his address will deal with responsibilities of people. Although citizenship is a free gift to the citizens of the United States, he said, there are still costs to be paid.

Rev. Nelson served in the United States air force from 1950 to 1953, stationed for 17 months in the Philippine Islands and seven months in Japan. He is a 1957 graduate of Augsburg college and 1960 graduate of Luther Theological seminary. After seven years of mission service in Brazil he served parishes in North Dakota for 12 years and Wisconsin for five years.

He moved to Thief River Falls from Green Bay, WI, in 1985 and is senior pastor at Trinity Lutheran church. He and his wife Judy have four children.

Older American Month Essay Contest Winners

In conjunction with May Older American Month, the Minnesota Board on Aging sponsors an essay contest for sixth grade students on the topic of grandparents. State winner will be awarded a trip to the state fair. Last year's winners were Debbie Schumacher, Elk River, and Ben Westfall, Dexter.

Northland Retired Educators invited students from Franklin middle school, St. Bernard's school, the seventh-day Adventist school and Our Saviour's Christian academy to submit essays for cash prizes. Northland Retired Educators judged the entries and selected Jennifer Paggen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Paggen, as first place winner; Sanna Torgerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Torgerson, as second place winner; and Kelly Krause, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Krause, as third place winner.

Entries will now go to the state contest where the state Board of Aging will select two winners. Essays are judged on the relationship between the younger person and older person; originality, organization and cohesion; sixth grade level work; and grammar and spelling.

Winners read their essays to members of the Northland Retired Educators Saturday at the spring luncheon. Winning essays have been reprinted as submitted.

MY SPECIAL GRANDPARENTS
by Jennifer Paggen

My grandparents, Grace and Howard Tweten, are very special to me for many reasons.

They have twenty-four grandchildren, and each one is very special to them in some way. I play piano and sing for my grandparents. In return, they give me special treats on the holidays and tell me about their childhood days.

On Christmas Eve, everyone gets together and shares what has happened over the past year. One time, there were forty people over at my grandparents' house. That was really noisy, but lots of fun.

My grandpa really enjoys working with his hands. He recalls his childhood days by making replicas of the cutters, hay wagons, and sleighs used on the family farm. He also makes rustic frames that enhance scenic pictures. He is an avid collector of horse figurines and model train cars (he worked on the Soo Line Railroad for twenty-five years as a car inspector.)

When I was younger, my grandpa constructed some child-size furniture for my playhouse. The items he made were a cupboard, sofa, footstool, and chairs to match, which he even upholstered, and a coffee table. He also made me a ring toss game and a bean bag game that I play all the time and really enjoy with my friends.

My grandma raised eight children, so, therefore, did alot of home canning. This kept her busy, along with sewing clothes for the children. She enjoys working around the yard and doing search-a-word puzzles. She has a large collection of decorative and unique salt and pepper shakers. She also has a display of beautiful spoons from all fifty states. She is very proud of her collection.

My grandparents enjoy watching TV together and like to go for a Sunday drive through the Wildlife Refuge. And, naturally, they enjoy entertaining their grandchildren any time they drop by.

They are the only living grandparents I have, and I'm so glad to have them. they live only a few blocks from my house, so I can ride my bike over to their place to visit them. They are very loving, caring and giving. They are always ready to lend a helping hand, not wanting anything in return. Guess that's why I love them so much and glad they are my grandparents!

MY GRANDMOTHER
by Sanna Torgerson

My Grandmother is very important to me. She always puts other people's problems before her own. Almost every time I go to see her, we start a new project such as making a doll or a quilt. She is very understanding and is always there when I need her.

My Grandmother loves doing things for other people. Just a little while ago she helped raise money for a child that needed a liver transplant.

The house my Grandmother lives in is filled with boxes of old fabric. She likes to tell me what each piece was used for and where it came from. She loves to make us blankets and beautiful bedspreads. Another thing she likes to do is make bread the old-fashioned way. She usually even grinds her own flour.

My Grandmother loves gardening, and she is very good at it. She has a vegetable garden and her vegetables always seem to taste better than anyone else's. She also plants lovely flowers; her favorites are daisies and gladiolas.

Grandmother likes to tell me stories about long ago when she was a child. She talks about how when she was little she had to walk three miles every morning to school. And she tells me about her best friend that lived on the farm right next to theirs.

Gully, the town she lives in, is very small and perfect for her. She knows everyone and everyone knows her. She is the town clerk, in the Ladie's Aid, and a very active member of the church. The truth is she just loves to be involved in things.

Grandmother always workes to make things better for everyone. Even with all her other concerns she still finds time for me. She is always patient and loving, and I love her very much.

MY GRANDPARENTS
by Kelly Krause

My Grandparents are the best in the whole wide world, and mean so much to me. My Grandparents live in the same town as I do, so I see them often. I'll sometimes go visit my Grandma when she's working. I like to visit my Grandpa at his house and help him outside in the garden. My Grandparents are really neat and fun to be with.

They teach me many things that they did when they were my age. They speak French and English so when they don't want anybody to know anything about what they're talking about they speak in French. My Grandparents teach me some of the language like the holidays and months, and my Grandma taught me to count from 1 to 10 in French.

My Grandma teaches me many things. I like to go visit her, at her house and help her cook supper when we visit. I especially like to make cookies, because my Grandma makes the best cookies in town. We make chocolate chip, oatmeal, sugar cookies and peanut butter.

Essay Contest Winners Write On Grandparents

My Grandpa teaches me many things too. We go fishing and have a contest who can catch the biggest, most, and still have the most worms left. When we're in th garden I help him pick peas, but I also help him eat them. My Grandpa and I have alot of fun together. He tells me alot of stories when he was my age, how he lived on a farm and had to do chores. I'm glad I wasn't born then because it sounds rougher back then. But it also sounds fun. One reason I'm glad I wasn't born then is because I wouldn't be able to have them as Grandparents. I'm so lucky to have two Grandparents as caring and loving as they are.

Vernon Howland, 54

Hawthorne, CA — Vernon Howland, 54, formerly of Grygla, died Thursday as the result of a construction accident in Arcadia, CA. Funeral services for Vernon Howland will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at Grace Lutheran church in Grygla. There will be visitation at the church for one hour prior to the service. The Green Funeral home of Thief River Falls is in charge of arrangements. A complete obituary will follow in Monday's edition of the Times.

AVTI, Northland Given $5.5 Million To Build

also provide $171,000 for roof repair and replacement at the existing AVTI complex.

Dr. Gunderson said he was especially pleased that the bonding would provide for permanent facilities at the Thief River Falls regional airport for the school's aviation program. Classrooms, computer area, cafeteria, student lounge and other facilities would be provided at the airport where the aviation program has grown from 50 students in 1980 to 130 students this year and is expected to approach 200 students this fall.

A number of main campus improvements are also planned. These include study area, LPN classrooms, large general purpose lecture and community room and remodeling to facilitate effective space use and coordination with Northland community college.

Dr. Allen Nichols, provost at Northland community college, also expressed pleasure at the legislature's adoption of the bonding bill which included funding for Northland. Although it means a lot of extra work in the coming months, he said, he is convinced that careful attention to local input and planning can provide major improvements to the facility which will be effective for many years to come.

Included in Northland projects will be a student center, child care facilities, classrooms, expansions of the gymnasium area and cafeteria and some major remodeling. "We have to assure that all of our space and facilities can be utilized for multiple purposes," Dr. Nichols said, "so that they can be used for something while they are not being used for their major purpose." He cited art and music areas as well as the gymnasium as being particularly suited to that concept.

Both Northland and the AVTI have record enrollments this year, both in head count and full-time equivalency.

As evidence of cooperation between the AVTI and Northland, assurance was given to the legislature that the same architect would be employed on both projects to coordinate construction planning. It has not yet been determined just how that joint selection of an architectural firm will be handled. School District 564 officials have supported the ATS&R (Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen) firm of Golden Valley which has been involved in several of the last school projects to the full satisfaction of the district.

Dr. Nichols has emphasized for some time that Northland's concern is that its architect be sensitive to local planning and input.

Dr. Ruberto said that the local board of education had been supportive of continuing the process toward joint governance of the AVTI, and on Monday night had authorized presentation of four studies dealing with governance, finance, seniority and program. With the Bemidji board's decision not to pursue joint governance any further, those studies will not be continued.

Area School Dist. Election Results Mixed

Polling place records indicate a total of 118 votes were cast. Newfolden had 46 votes cast while 50 were cast in Holt and 22 in Viking.

Voter turnout in Oklee was considered a "bit more than usual, but not by much." The larger than usual turnout was attributed to the presence of one more person on the ballot than usual. Four candidates received votes in the election. A total of 109 votes were cast for two three-year positions. David Bachand received 92 votes, Eleanor Berberich 79, and Bryan Paradis 46. There was one vote for a write-in candidate. Bachand and Berberich are incumbents.

In Plummer School District 628, there were two three-year positions up for election and both incumbents officially filed for reelection. However, Ron Freyholtz conducted a write-in campaign and unseated Roger Walter for a position on the school board.

Votes totaled 290, which was described as the heaviest turnout for a Plummer school board election. Jerry Gerardy received 209 votes, followed by Ron Freyholtz with 157 and Roger Walter with 133. Six of the 290 votes were by absentee ballot.

Discussion of cooperative ventures with Oklee school district, especially in sports, has been described as an issue in this election and a likely reason for the high voter turnout.

County Welfare Board Supports Second DAC

1987. Of four contacts made, only the DAC and ODC offered proposals. The board accepted both proposals. "Anyone who would issue a request for proposal would have to have a license (to operate a DAC)," Erickson said. "It is the provider's problem to deal with where its participants come from." He said the county would not transfer participants from one DAV to another and that the case manager determines what facility is in the best interests of the client. "Let there be competition," he said.

Estelle Grinde and Mable Mosbeck, who worked with programs for the retarded in the late 1950's and early 1960's, summarized some of the background of the DAC. The parent organization at that time was the Pennington-Red Lake Association for Retarded children which sought a recreation area for children with handicaps. They noted that funds were raised through donations by volunteers who also worked in the program.

Chairman Koop asked Oakes what he thought would happen if both organizations were to operate DAC programs. Oakes said he believed over the next five years the DAC would be hemorrhaged to death. Asked to explain the reason for his belief, he said the response was simply a statement of his opinion board member Oliver (Skip) Swanson took issue with the request for only a single DAC. He said he would not personally guarantee that no transfers would be made from one center to another, just as he could not be sure what the circumstances would be at the center in the next five years. He said the welfare board is charged with providing the best care at the lowest cost and he suggested that Oakes' energies were misdirected.

"If you put your energies into making the DAC the best possible place you wouldn't have to worry about a competing DAC," he said. He suggested that the solution to the problem was to take a more positive attitude and concentrate on improvements in program and facilities.

Rev. Clifford Kalmoe, a member of the DAC board, expressed the idea that the welfare board in permitting a second facility to be licensed for a DAC was creating a need that didn't exist.

In answer to the question of what the welfare board perceives as the advantage of having two day activity centers, Gary Erickson said it would provide an ability to have two programs which are not exactly alike and that a licensed facility should have the opportunity to offer the service.

Oakes said that he was sorry for the perceived negativism and that all he was trying to do was "to prevent a direct competition against an underutilized social service."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This letter should have been written this past winter when I first heard some complaints concerning the high school hockey coach. He benched so and so for fighting, their year's record stinks, so and so was cut from the team,, we need new blood, he plays the second string too much, he doesn't play them enough and on and on and on. Welcome to the world of sports parents.

I guess I shouldn't have been surprised to read in Monday's paper about the resignation of Wendell Grand as coach. I'm upset in hearing the negative and very seldom do we hear the positive. I guess it's like when you read about the "good kids" and the "bad kids" but nothing of the average kid. They just exsist.

I truly hope Wendell's resignation was of his own free will and not a pressure move. We parents can be some real pains. All of us at one time or another need to be knocked down a few pegs.

I'd like to take a few minutes to inform you of a few facts concerning Wendell Grand's teaching. "Did you know he talks nothing but hockey in his classroom and only likes the boys who play hockey?" Poppycock!! For those of you who don't know, or care, Wendell teaches fourth grade at Northrop. Our second son had Wendell as his teacher and I guess I never really paid any attention to his teaching abilities. Our youngest son now has Wendell for his teacher.

My husband and I visited his class this fall during school week. Believe me I was impressed. This man was not this "look down his nose and talk down to his students," he totally went down to their level and had these kids really engrossed in their learning. I went home very pleased with our son's teacher. So what Mrs. Doe is pleased with her kid's teacher, too? We had extra concerns regarding our son and his teacher. We held our son back in second grade because of his difficulty in reading. Even with a year in the Title I program he was still struggling. When he was retained he got no more help from any programs. He still struggled. He'd cry every morning and fake being sick. He hated school. He was "dumb" (so he thought). The frustrations were overwhelming for us, him and his teachers. But he was holding his own.

Two years went by with these frustrations and nightmares. This past November at a parent-teacher conference, Mr. Wendell Grand said he suspected our son had dyslexia. Until then that word was never used. He observed a learning disability and the gap was getting bigger every day.

I came home very upset with this news as I didn't know really what dyslexia was, yet I knew Wendell was going to do all in his power to help this kid. I saw a face filled with concern and kindness as he saw fit to try and explain this problem.

Within days the ball was rolling. The school psychologist had been called and a test appointment with a specialist in Fargo had been made. The findings of these tests: dyslexia.

Thanks to this concerned man, our son is now getting the help he needs and he now knows he's not dumb. (Oh, by the way, our son plays basketball so no favoritism). Words can not express our gratitude to Mr. Grand — a simple thank you seems so meaningless. Thank God we have Wendell Grand in our school and thank God he's not "all hockey."

Will many hockey players be playing hockey 40 years from now? Doubtful. Will our son be able to read? You bet!!! Wendell, I hope you stay in the school system for many years to come. There may be more kids that need help.

Sincerely,
JudyMelby

Seek Playwrights For Program By Bemidji Theatre

Playwrights and aspring playwrights are being sought to participate in a unique program which could lead to production of selected works during the next year.

As part of its production of "Paul Bunyan-The Greatest American Hero of All" during Legendary Days in Bemidji August 6-9, a workshop for playwrights will be held to identify and select one or more scripts which may be produced by the Bemidji community theater during its 1987-88 season.

The workshop will be conducted by Pogo (pen name of Jim Ploss), a professional playwright from the Chicago area and author of "Paul Bunyan-The Greatest American Hero of All," in two separate parts.

While conducting auditions in Bemidji May 27-29, Pogo plans to meet with authors from throughout northern Minnesota who have completed manuscripts or story outlines. He will review the scripts with the authors, make suggestions for staging or plot changes, and discuss the potential of the story for theatre.

When he returns to direct the play in mid-July, he will review final scripts submitted by the authors and recommend to the Bemidji community theater one or more plays for production. He will also critique each final submission.

Appointments with Pogo must be made by prospective authors by May 26 by calling Al Nohner at 218-755-2041 during regular, weekday hours. Meetings with Pogo will be conducted on the campus of Bemidji state university.

More information on the playwright workshop and auditions for "Paul Bunyan-The Greatest American Hero of All" is available by contacting Al Nohner, News and Publications Office, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-2041.

Flash Flood Awareness Is Suggested For Minnesotans

Spring is here, what little snow we had is gone, and so is the danger of flooding...or so many Minnesotans think.

Minnesota department of public safety reminds residents that while the spring snow melt flood danger may be past, the "flash flood" season is just getting under way. In recognition of that, Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed May 17-23, 1987, as "Flash Flood Awareness Week" in Minnesota.

Flash floods can occur any time a heavy rainfall or dam failure results in an excessive runoff. Flash floods, which move at incredible speeds, can roll boulders, tear out trees and destroy buildings, roadways and bridges as has been witnessed recently in New York state.

Most areas in Minnesota can also experience the effects of flash flooding. In 1972, six people were killed with $28 million in property damage. Five people were killed with $50 million in property damage in 1978. And in 1986, very heavy rainfalls in April and September caused three flash floods which resulted in the death of one person, the evacuation of hundreds from their homes and campsites, and over $5 million in property damage.

Prime flash flood zones incluce places where streams travel down steep slopes and urban areas where streams, roadways, underpasses and low terrains react quickly to runoff from parking lots, rooftops and other hard surfaces.

Each person, not just people living in the flood plain, should assess their exposure to flash flooding. Over half of the people killed during flash floods are those trying to cross a fast-flowing stream. Motorists should be extremely cautious of flooded underpasses, roadways and even bridges, especially where there is flowing water. Campers should be wary of locating their campsite near a streambank on an adjacent flood plain. Homeowners should review community flood plain maps to determine their exposure to flooding.

People should develop advance flash flood action plans to protect lives first and property second.

(1) Be familiar with National Weather Service's flood advisories such as flash flood "Watch," "Warning," etc.

(2) Have a weather alert radio for weather forecasts especially when severe weather is threatening.

(3) Be familiar with your comunity's emergency response plan.

(4) Plan an evacuation route. If possible, avoid low areas and underpasses and be cautious of roadways that may flood, especially by fast-flowing water.

(5) Motorists should abandon cars stalled in flooded areas until the water recedes.

(6) Determine your exposure to flash flooding, especially if you live near streams.

(7) Have the proper flood insurance, a standard homeowners insurance policy does not cover for flood loss. Flood insurance is available from the National Flood Insurance Program (1-800-638-6620) for participating communities. There is a 5-day waiting period for a flood insurance policy to take effect, so plan now.

(8) If time permits:

(a) Move contents and valuable items to higher elevations; and

(b) Turn off utilities at the main switch — do not touch switches if they are wet or you are standing in water.

(9) Do not reoccupy your home until local officials advise you it is safe to do so.

Persons needing additional information should contact local emergency management officials, the department of natural resources, the division of emergency services, or the national weather service offices.

Children Killed In Crashes Is Lowest In 1986

Fewer Minnesota children riding in motor vehicles were killed and injured last year than in any other year since the state began keeping records, according to the department of public safety.

In 1986, three children under age four were killed and 572 injured while riding in motor vehicles.

The number of children killed under age four has decreased 67 per cent and injuries 31 per cent since 1983 when Minnesota began requiring all parents and legal guardians to secure children under four in a safety seat when riding in a motor vehicle.

"We believe the increased use of safety seats due to Minnesota's child restraint law is largely responsible for reducing the number of children killed and injured in traffic crashes," stated Paul Tschida, public safety commissioner.

Tschida also noted that a by-product of Minnesota's seat belt law has been an additional increase in the use of child safety seats. From 1985 to 1986 (when the belt law became effective), fatalities of children under four decreased 50 per cent and injuries 16 per cent.

"We are seeing some phenomenal decreases here which we are very pleased with. However, too many children are still riding unrestrained or improperly restrained," Tschida said.

Among the children injured last year in traffic accidents, less than half were restrained in a safety seal

"We hope the proposed amendment to the child restraint law will pass and will correct this situation," Tschida said. The proposed amendment would require all drivers in the state, not just parents or guardians and not only Minnesota residents, to properly secure in child safety seats any children under four riding with them. The proposed amendment also allows for a $25 fine for first offenses.

Tschida said that among those children who are restrained, many are riding in an incorrectly used safety seat. The national highway traffic safety administration estimates that 37 per cent of all children riding in safety seats are incorrectly restrained.

Improperly used safety seats can fail to protect children in a crash. For more information on safety seats and how to use them correctly, call the Minnesota occupant restraint program's toll-free number: 1-800-223-5833.

Marshall History Society Plans Coming Events

When the Marshall county historical society met at 9 a.m. Thursday at Settlers Square in Warren progress was noted on the repairs on the church. The entrance is being strengthened and refaced with new supports added where necessary.

Jean Ranstrom, director-curator of the museum since 1982, submitted her resignation effective July 23. Settlers Fair will not be held this year but there will be increased activities at Settlers Square during the county fair. Food booths, displays, a "mini" program and more are being planned by two committees.

The society's next meeting will be July 9 at 9 a.m. at Settlers Square.

Damaging Oaks In Spring Can Cause Oak Wilt Spread

Want to be a good tree doctor? Don't prune or bruise your oak tree this May or June.

That's the best medicine to thwart the deadly disease of oak wilt this spring, say officials at the Minnesota department of agriculture plant industry division.

Officials maintain that with special care and prevention oak wilt could possibly be eliminated from the state, but they are quick to point out that this indigenous disease is the most serious tree killer in Minnesota with 241 communities in 49 counties reporting oak wilt deaths in 1985.

"We need to do more to stop the spread of the disease," said Dwight Robinson, supervisor of the Minnesota department of agriculture plant industry division's pest control service. "Each year," he said, "more oaks are killed by oak wilt than elms are killed by Dutch elm."

Like Dutch elm disease, oak wilt is caused by a fungus that induces plugging of the water-conducting system of a tree. It affects red oaks predominantly but is a menace to all oaks.

After an infected red oak dies, the fungus colonizes and produces a mat of spores under the bark. As the mat thickens, it splits the bark, releasing a fermenting odor. Picnic beetles are attracted to the odor, come to feed and then carry the spores through wounds to other healthy oaks.

"That's the most important difference between oak wilt and Dutch elm," Robinson said. "A fresh wound must already exist in an oak for the beetle to deposit the spores."

Almost all oak wounds are due to human activity, Robinson said.

The growth of communities into the countryside with accompanying home construction has resulted in a dramatic increase in the spread of oak wilt with machines bruising trees and bare roots, Robinson said. The situation is further aggravated when a homeowner prunes oaks in the spring, he added.

After one oak in an oak grove is infected, another means of disease spread sets in. When an infected oak wilts and dies, the fungus is drawn into the adjacent healthy oaks through their interconnecting root system, Robinson said.

Oaks are very susceptible to this kind of transmission, Robinson said. "More than 95 per cent of new infections result from this method of transmission. But this transmission is slow. Scientists estimate that oak wilt moves through grafted root systems at the rate of 15 to 20 feet per year."

Transmission of oak wilt through root systems can be managed by cutting the interconnected roots systems so the spread of the disease in an infected area is stopped, Robinson said.

Otherwise, there is no cure for oak wilt, Robinson said. "We can't just go in and inject or clean up the system of a tree."

But sound disease management programs including education to teach people not to prune or bruise healthy oak trees in May and June and modest but widespread spotting and information disseminating programs in rural areas can reduce the problem to a minor one, Robinson said.

Robinson said many communities have a tree inspector, often in the public works department, who has been trained by the Minnesota department of agriculture to spot tree disease. These employees will take the necessary actions to avoid spread of the disease once it has been spotted. State law mandates that an infected oak be removed by April 1 of the year following its death.

There are approximately 234 million oak trees in Minnesota. Oaks outnumber elms in the metropolitan area by almost two-to-one and will increasingly be the dominant tree species as communities grow into the surrounding countryside.

Contour Maps Of 4,000 Lakes In State Available

Preparations for Minnesota's fishing season are underway all over the state and the Minnesota documents division has contour maps of more than 4,000 popular lakes available for fishing enthusiasts.

The lakes are mapped by the department of natural resources and are available for puchase from the documents division in St. Paul. The maps are designed to provide basic information about the total open water area of the lake and the area of the lake between the 15-foot contour and the shore where most vegetation grows, spawning occurs and the majority of fish food is produced.

Paper lake maps are available for $3 each plus six per cent sales tax and $1.50 handling charge order. If maps are to be rolled, please specify and add 50 cents to your order for mailing tube.

Maps are organized alphabetically by lake and county. To order, please give the name of the lake and the county where it is located. If it is one of several in the same county, give the range and township number if known, or the name of the nearest town. In addition, selected maps sets and plastic maps are also available and information on those can be obtained by calling the document section.

Orders with checks payable to the State of Minnesota should be sent to the Minnesota Documents Division at 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155. For additional information or to charge an order to Visa or Mastercard, call 297-3000 in the metropolitan area or 1-800-652-9747 in outstate Minnesota (ask for "Documents").

Interest Buydown Assisted 6,500 Farmers In State

Cost of operating even a moderately sized family farm can be substantial. Added together, the costs of seed, feed, fertilizer and pesticides, along with machinery purchases, equipment and building maintenance, livestock and innumerable other expenses, can easily total into tens of thousands of dollars. It is toward these operating expenses that Minnesota's "interest buydown program" is directed.

An extension of the interest buydown program was passed by the legislature and signed into law by the governor in April of this year. Last year the program provided some 6,500 farmers throughout Minnesota with subsidies averaging $4,000 on the interest from their operating loans. This year's program is expected to provide a similar number with assistance, although there have been some changes in the way the subsidy program works, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

To be eligible for the program, a farmer must have a debt to asset ratio of greater than 50 per cent and be deemed by the lender to have a reasonable opportunity for long-term financial viability in the farmer's current farm operation. The program works by the lender offering an operating loan at an interest rate that would be available to other similar borrowers. The loan is then submitted to the Minnesota department of commerce which administers the program.

If approved, the state and the lender agree to subsidize the laon by "buying down" the interest rate. This year, farmers qualifying for the program can expect to pay seven per cent interest after the subisdy. In addition, the dollar amount of operating loans covered by the program has been lowered from $100,000 to $60,000.

Eligible loans can be an original, extended or renegotiated loan or line of credit obtained by a farmer from a lender for the purpose of financing the operations of a farm. Lenders include banks, credit unions, savings and loan associations, a unit of the Farm Credit System, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation a/d other financial institutions the commerce commissioner deems appropriate. Farmers interested in participating in the program should contact their lender for an application.

In addition to extending the interest buydown program for one more year, the legislature has extended for two years the state's participation in the Farmers Home administration's subsidy program. The FmHA subsidy program is similar in scope to Minnesota's interest buydown program. Farmers should contact their FmHA office for details.

For more information on the farm interest buydown program, call the department of commerce at (612) 296-4521. For general information on programs and assistance for farmers, call the attorney general's farm and home preservation hotline toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

DAC Board, Parents Discuss Concerns About Second DAC

Board members and parents of clients at the Falls Day Activity center met at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the DAC building to discuss a meeting set for 8:30 p.m. with the Pennington county welfare board. Administrator Charlie Oakes presented areas of concern and several points he said he considered to be worth making in talking with welfare board members.

Some of the points he presented were:

(1) The DAC was believed to be in a win-lose situation when it filed its request for proposal (RFP) in December, and when a contract was granted by the county for 1987 "we all left the January 5 meeting thinking we had won. Nowhere did it say there was a need for a second facility."

(2) Letters of support for a DAC program at the ODC from other counties were dated in March while the approval for the ODC to request state DAC licensing was given in January.

(3) Economy of scale should apply to the existing DAC which is considered comparably large in the state with 29 participants yet has a large building and five acres of land for expansion.

(4) Use of the name Pennington County DAC by the proposed ODC facility implies some official status and ignores the 17-year existence of the DAC as a Pennington county provider.

(5) Will the DAC serving this community be run by local parents and a local board or a regional board with limited representation from each community?

Paul Johnson, who operates Johnson's Boarding Home, said that the ODC proposal for DAC services offers to provide services which could not be provided with the $24 daily fee requested from the county. He said the proposal lacked reality.

Oakes reminded the group that the DAC is in sound financial condition and that a number of changes and improvements in facilities and program have been made. "We're not in danger of having our doors closed today," he said. "We are in danger of being hemmorrhaged to death over the next five or six years."

After determining that a quorum of the board was present meeting of the board was called to order by chairman Jim Fulton. The board granted the administrator permission to retain a new attorney to represent the DAC and agreed to include the personal suit against Oakes in the suit against the DAC by two employees charging retaliation for reporting of abuse cases at the center. The board suggested retaining Kurt Marben as attorney to replace Larry McDowell.

It was noted at the meeting that a pre-trial hearing on an earlier suit brought by the same employees — Lynae Johnson and Doreen Sigerud — was scheduled for pre-trial hearing May 20.

Quality Of Life Depends On Wise Use Of Resources

For centuries, we've taken our precious waters for granted. No longer. Our quality of life today depends on wise use of all our resources. . . especially our water, notes the Minnesota Soil and Water 50th Anniversary committee.

Many choices about industry, land management and crop production can threaten water quality and quantity. Agricultural and urban run off, excessive erosion and farmland irrigation all cause long-lasting damage and our health, livelihood and overall well-being suffer as a result.

Important decisions must be made today to restore and preserve our vital water resources for the future. Contact your local soil and water conservation district to learn about water resource planning.

School Dist. Has Balance Remaining From Bond Issue

School District 564 board of education Monday evening accepted bids for fuel tank replacement, discussed what to do with a $140,000 balance from the Lincoln improvement project, approved the community education budget for 1987-88 and four staff members on unrequested leave of absence at its meeting in the school district service center.

Lee Plumbing and Heating was given the contract for fuel tank replacement and the board also authorized the advertisement for bids on the sale of two used 1972 school buses.

The board expressed the viewpoint that funds remaining from the bond issue to conduct the improvement at Lincoln should be used for additional education projects at Lincoln. The administration was directed to provide the board with a list of recommendations at its next meeting.

Community education budget was approved as presented and a report was given on the program by director Jane Mackenroth. Staff members placed on unrequested leave for the 1987-88 school year were Marilyn Adams, one-fifth FTE elementary art instructor; Marilyn Nelson, part-time early childhood family education instructor; Judy Schmit, English; and Dennis Wilkens, AVTI welding.

Bill Hahne was approved as Northwest vocational center school director effective July 1. Resignations were received from Wendell Grand as head high school hockey coach and David Scramstad as regular route bus driver. L. Lee Alger was hired as co-curricular director effective July 1. Tentative list of summer school staff was also approved.

Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the AVTI, informed the board that the bonding bill had just passed the state legislature and included funding for AVTI improvement projects.

Mrs. Ruth Hasnedl and Mrs. Susie Olson reported to the board on activities of the parent group during the past year. They indicated that communication between parents and teachers had increased and were looking forward to successful programs in the coming year.

The board also removed the requirement that Lincoln students enroll in a vocational center course as part of their requirement for graduation for the coming school year.

Runoff Pollution Is Problem Requiring Additional Efforts

In the last decade, Minnesota has made great strides in improving water quality in its lakes and waterways; but much still must be done to control agricultural runoff pollution.

Water pollution that can be traced to a point, such as feedlot runoff, has been visibly reduced. At the same tim, agricultural nonpoint water pollution poses a critical problem for improving water quality, because this type of pollution, consisting of sediment, nutrients; pesticides and other chemicals, is diffuse and widespread. It originates from various types of land use and management, such as corn and soybean production. Pollutants are carried to lakes and waterways by surface runoff, subsurface drainage after storms, and snow melt.

Controlling nonpoint pollution requires a different approach than that used with point sources. Because its causes and control vary with the land use, geology, geography and climate of an area, and because the concentration and amount of pollutant varies from one rainfall to the next agricultural nonpoint pollution is best controlled through site-specific soil and water conservation techniques.

Unlike point source water pollution, where often the most effective control is to collect, treat or recycle the polluted water, prevention is the most effective approach to managing agricultural nonpoint pollution. This can be facilitated through the use of best management practices (BMPs).

BMPs are agricultural methods used to prevent or reduce erosion and resulting water pollution including structural, vegetative and cultural practices, as well as operational and maintenance procedures. They are based upon the type of land-use activity, physical conditions of the watershed, pollutants to be controlled and site-specific conditions such as topography.

BMPs fall into three main categories: Soil and water conservation practices, livestock management practices and chemical management. Most experts agree that ghood soil and water conservation practices are the key to controlling sediment and chemical runoff. If the soil is kept on the land, fewer substances will run off. This is a cost-effective approach, since it enhances soil fertility and productivity while reducing expenses for agricultural chemicals.

One of the more cost-effective soil and water conservation practices is the use of conservation tillage, but other practices also effectively reduce erosion and nonpoint pollution. Examples are grassed waterways, winter cover crops, stripcropping, sediment traps, detention basins and drop structures.

Crop rotation, planting deep-root legumes and other methods of increasing soil tilth are also very effective.

Additionally, effective management of livestock, both in the pasture and the feedlot, can reduce runoff and nonpoint pollution significantly. Overgrazing often contributes to sediment and nutrient runoff pollution. Grazing livestock on streambanks can cause compaction, erosion damage and sedimentation while adding bacteria and nutrients to the water.

Proper grazing practices, especially around streams, are necessary to maintain adequate vegetation to catch sediment, absob nutriens and reduce runoff into streams by enhancing infiltration.

Careful management of agricultural chemicals is also necessary to control nonpoint pollution. Annual soil tests can help prescribe appropriate fertilizer applications, thereby reducing both fertilizer costs and nutrient runoff. Timing applications,. crop rotation and incorporation of chemicals are other BMPs that are effective at reducing nutrient loss.

Because agricultural nonpoint pollution is a widespread problem, government agencies, environmental groups and farm organizations are working together to help solve the problem. Fortunately, cost-sharing programs can provide funds to local farmers to help implement some of these management techniques. Area soil and water conservation districts can provide details about our area's nonpoint pollution control plan and information about farmer cost-share programs.

City Won't Spray For Canker Worms Due To Timing

Thief River Falls will have no city-sponsored control of canker worms which have been noted on elm, oak and flowering crabapple trees in the city, according to John Johnson, city forester.

Johnson said the worms are already in their down cycle, most of the damage which could be expected is already done and city-wide chemical application would cost up to $20,000.

Trees which are defoliated by the canker worms generally will leaf out again in two to three weeks after the worms quit feeding, Johnson said. Normal populations of canker worms are kept low by weather and natural predators, he said, but conditions this year must have been conducive to a population expansion.

Johnson said the worms are often referred to as inch worms, both because of their length and the way they move, advancing the rear portion before the front portion, causing the worm to hump. They are generally dark gray to a lighter green in color and sometimes are found hanging from trees by a silken thread.

Because the worms feed only on foliage and not fruit or blossoms, their feeding will affect fruit trees only to the extent of the stress from defoliation, the forester said. Persons who wish to spray their trees may use a mixture of Sevin at [illegible] tablespoons per gallon of water or Malathion at two teaspoons per gallon. Foliage should be lightly misted rather than saturated, he said.

Focus Groups On Child Sexual Abuse Planned

Minnesota professionals from all fields dealing with sexual abuse of children are invited to participate in focus groups in their local communities. The groups are sponsored by Project Impact, a multi-discipline, two-year effort to improve the criminal justice system's response to child sexual abuse.

Project Impact focus groups provide the opportunity for professionals to meet within their community to build individual skills and improve inter-agency cooperation. Each group, led by trained facilitators, will select discussion issues of local importance. Ideas and solutions will be shared at a Project Impact statewide conference and form the basis of recommendations for greater consistency in how the Minnesota criminal justice system deals with child sexual abuse.

Focus groups will meet four times through the summer and fall. Groups will be limited to 15 participants. Those eligible are: judges, lawyers, law enforcement officers, child protection workers, probation officers, therapists, physicians, advocates, staff of social service agencies or community organizations, teachers and other educators, public health nurses, and all other mandated reporters of child sexual abuse.

Initial focus groups meetings are set for early June. For further information or to apply to join a group, write Project Impact, Government Training service, 202 Minnesota Building, 46 East 4th Street, St. Paul, MN 55101 or call toll-free 800-247-1448.

Project Impact is a program of the Minnesota interagency team on child abuse and neglect. It is funded through the federal justice assistance act and administered by the government training service through the Minnesota state planning agency.

Director Assesses Performance, Invite Public To Concert

"Morning Darkness" jazz band and "Sunrise" singers from Franklin Middle school are about to complete another successful year. They have performed at concerts, the hospital CNC unit, the Heritage Center, community service organizations, and have just returned from a three day tour.

While on tour the band and choir performed concerts at Hughes elementary school in Red Lake Falls for grades one through eight and at Chaska Middle school for grades six, seven, and eight. They also attended the Chanhassen dinner theatre, toured the entire facility and saw the musical production "My Fair Lady".

While in the Twin City area they also toured the State Capital where they met with Senator LeRoy Stumpf and Representative Wally Sparby. Their stay at the Capital was arranged by Shawn Fremstad, one of our local young men who is attending school at Hamline and working for Senator Stumpf. After leaving the Capital they went to the Science museum and Omni theatre. The last day of our trip was just plain fun! We spent the entire day at Valley Fair. All that remained after that was the long bus ride home.

All of the above activities came as a result of a lot of hard work and dedication by both students and parents. Both groups rehearse early in the morning, may times twice a week, at 7:15 in the morning for an hour, said Mike Lehrer, director. "As their director, I would like to take this opportunity to say a special thank you to all the students who have given of themselves so that the groups could succeed. They have demonstrated dedication, hard work, and are indeed remarkable young people. I wish also to thank the parents for your past, present, and future support of our program because without you, our groups would never become a reality," he said.

To show our appreciation to all our supporters, Lehrer said he would like to invite everyone, but especially parents and friends, to attend their final public performance this year. It will take place in the Northland community college auditorium on Thursday, May 21, at 8 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Behavior Therapy Can Help Success Of Diet Program

Very low-calorie diets, in combination with behavior therapy, can significantly improve an obese person's chances of dieting success, according to leading researchers speak at a recent symposium in Scottsdale, AZ, attended by physicians and allied health professionals from throughout the country.

Among those in attendance were Dr. Jim Langland, Vivian Contos, Marlene Beedy and Mary McEnelly of Thief River Falls.

Findings presented at the symposium emphasized that, for the obese, even moderate weight losses of 10 to 25 pounds can greatly reduce the risk of developing obesity-related diseases.

Thomas Wadden, Ph.D., assistant professor of psychology at the University of Pennsylvania, affirmed that a two-pronged approach to treatment is necessary for obese individuals to lose weight and keep it off long-term.

"The results of our study show that a very low calorie diet and behavior therapy can be successfully combined to produce greater and longer-lasting weight loss than either approach used alone," reported Dr. Wadden.

"Very low calorie diets produce initial weight loss, but usually fail within months after the dieter resumes former eating habits. Behavior therapy used alone produces longer lasting but usually much smaller amounts weight loss."

Dr. Wadden's study involved individuals who were an average of 90 per cent above their ideal body weight. Patients were divided into three groups: the first consumed a very low calorie diet of 400-500 calories a day; the second group consumed a balanced diet of 1200 calories a day and was taught behavioral methods of improving eating and exercise habits; the third group received a combined program of a very low calorie diet and behavioral treatment.

At the end of the study, the people who had used only one or the other of the two treatments had lost about 30 pounds each, compared to an average 43-pound weight loss for those who had received both treatments. Blood pressure levels of all patients improved as well.

Dr. Wadden noted the difference in long-term success between the two treatment methods: "After one year, those using the combined approach kept off 28 pounds, compared to only 10 pounds or 21 pounds, respectively, for those using either the diet or the behavior therapy alone."

Albert Stunkard, M.D., professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania and co-author of the study, described the results of painting a "dismal" picture for the millions of Americans who use commercially available, very low-calorie diets without medical supervision and without an adequate program of behavior change. "Besides the health complication of inadequate medical monitoring, people are likely to regain weight almost as rapidly as they lose it," Dr. Stunkard said.

The question of what constitutes desirable weight loss in an obesity treatment program was addressed by George Blackburn, M.D., associate professor of surgery, Harvard medical school, and chief of nutrition support at New England Deaconess hospital. Dr. Blackburn's research findings show that moderate losses of 10 to 25 pounds can significantly reduce the risk of developing obesity-related diseases. This runs contrary to the generally accepted theory that treatment is not successful unless a person reaches ideal body weight.

"Our research shows that it's the first 10 per cent, not the last 10 per cent, that's important in reducing these risk factors," said Dr. Blackburn. "Risk reduction constitutes a successful treatment program, not necessarily the loss of enormous amounts of weight."

Very low-calorie diets for overweight diabetics were the focus of a presentation given by Dean Lockwood, M.D., professor of medicine, University of Rochester Medical center. "In many cases of adult-onset, 'non-insulin dependent' diabetes, weight loss using very low-calorie diets has helped individuals to improve their blood-sugar levels," Dr. Lockwood stated.

Neadeau Pleads Guilty In Taking Moose Illegally

Francis Eugene Neadeau, 46, a resident of the Red Lake Indian reservation, entered a plea of guilty in Beltrami county district court recently to three misdemeanor charges involving the illegal taking of a cow moose and two calves in January of 1986. A 22-year-old Grygla man is to appear in court today on similar charges involved with the same incident.

The charges result from a 14-month investigation by the enforcement division of the Minnesota department of natural resources with cooperation by the Pennington county sheriff's department and law enforcement agencies on the Red Lake reservation.

According to conservation officer Mike O'Brien, the two men were charged following the incident on Jan. 31, 1986, in which a snowmobile and 30-06 rifle were abandoned by persons who fled as O'Brien approached and pursued them on foot. The rifle was found to have been stolen from a Grygla area residence in July of 1985 and has been returned. The moose were salvaged by the DNR and sold. The snowmobile was seized and retained by the state. O'Brien said the incident took place in Lee township of Beltrami county on public land.

Neadeau was charged with taking moose during a closed season, taking big game out of season and violating the commissioner's order which established the moose season. He was fined $700 plus $230 in fees and costs and sentenced to 91 days in jail plus three-year loss of hunting privileges. The jail sentence was stayed on condition of no more arrests during a two-year probationary period.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

The Minnesota Senate recently passed an omnibus insurance bill which addresses a number of regulatory issues and makes changes designed to help the consumer deal with the often-confusing world of insurance.

The bill includes complex and comprehensive reforms, and it contains 135 separate sections. However, the highlights provided below will reflect the general direction of this legislation.

One provision requires that insurance companies will have to give 60 days' notice (rather than the current 30 days) when they increase the premiums or change other terms on commercial insurance policies. This will give businesses more time to look for alternate insurance coverage. With only 30 days' notice, they often don't have much of a choice but to stay with their current insurance company, even though they may not like the new terms.

Additionally, if an insurance company increases its premium rates by more than 25 per cent in a one-year period, the commissioner of commerce will hold a hearing to determine whether this new rate is excessive.

The bill also prohibits insurance companies from treating maternity benefits in a discriminatory manner. That is, each policy of accident and health insurance issued or renewed after Aug. 1, 1987, must include maternity benefits in the same way as any other illness covered under the policy.

Current Minnesota law requires insurance companies to give a premium reduction to drivers over 65 years of age who complete an accident prevention course. However, it does not specify the amount of the reduction. This legislation decreases the age level to 55 and mandates that the reduction must be at least 10 per cent. Specifying the amount will put some teeth into this law.

Another part of the bill requires that auto insurance policies issued in Minnesota will have to cover rented cars, unless they are rented on a long-term basis or used principally for business. Right now some people have rented cars covered on their insurance policies while other people don't. The problem is that most people don't even know whether or not they are covered, and just to be on the safe side, they buy insurance from the rental company. The new law should help to prevent this kind of duplication.

Currently, people who are covered under a group health insurance plan can continue that coverage on an individual basis when they leave their place of employment. This bill subjects group life insurance coverage to the same continuation rights and standards as health insurance coverage. It describes an employee's right to elect to continue life insurance overage when the employee is voluntarily or involuntarily terminated or laid off from employment. The employee is eligible to continue coverage until the employee becomes reemployed and obtains coverage, or for 18 months after termination from employment, whichever is shorter. It also provides for conversion from a group policy to an individual one.

In general, this insurance legislation is consumer-oriented. It attempts to control insurance premium rates so that increases stay within reasonable bounds, and it provides ways to make insurance coverage more available to those who need it.

At this writing, some differences with the House version of the bill still have to be worked out. However, the Senate author doesn't expect a great deal of change.

If you have questions or comments, please call me, Senator LeRoy A. Stumpf at (612) 296-8660, or write to me at 306 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Spuds Top Prowlers 4-3 In North Sub-Region 8AA Finals . . .

Moorhead Wins Tennis Title

Moorhead was the winner Monday in the team portion of the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA high school tennis tournament at Detroit Lakes, beating Thief River Falls 4-3 in the finals of the five-team event.

No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls defeated No. 5 Detroit Lakes 6-1 in an opening round match. No. 2-seeded Thief River Falls got by No. 3 Bemidji 5-2, while No. 1-seeded Moorhead eliminated Fergus Falls 6-1 in the semifinals to set up theSpuds-Prowlers championship match.

"We were disappointed with the loss," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, who figured the Prowlers were in position to upset the Spuds when they managed a 2-2 standoff in singles, thanks to a key win from Grant Larson over Pat Albrecht at the No. 2 spot, 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 (an 8-6 tiebreaker). Olson called it an "outstanding effort" on the part of Larson. He expected a win at No. 3 singles from Kent Holmes and got it, 2-6, 6-1, 6-1 over Moorhead's Shane Williams.

The veteran Thief River Falls coach figured the Prowlers could win two of the three doubles matches and advance to next week's Region 8AA finals against the South Sub-Region 8AA winner. Instead it was the Spuds who went 2-for-3 in doubles for the season-extending victory.

Olson said Troy Hanestad and John Dondelinger played well at No. 1 doubles, even though the Spuds' Larry Patnaude and Brian Peterson triumphed 6-3, 6-3. And a 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 win by Kevin Holmes and Jay Opdahl over the Spuds' Aaron Nygaard and Greg Lee was figured into Olson's victory formula.

But Moorhead's Andrew Charon and Paul Gudding came up with a big 7-5, 1-6, 6-2 decision over Troy Peterson and Tom Brouse at No. 3 to swing the outcome to Moorhead's favor. They overcame a 4-1 first-set deficit in the process, and were down 2-1, 30-love in the third set before coming back again.

Individual portion of the tournament was scheduled to be played today (Wednesday) back at Detroit Lakes. Top four finishers in singles and doubles will earn Region 8AA tournament berths. The Prowlers' positions include Bret Haugen and Larson in singles; Dondelinger-Hanestad and Kevin Holmes-Opdahl combinations in doubles.

THIEF RIVER FALLS runner Jason Lane's foot hit the bag before Crookston third baseman Chris Demarais applied the tag in the second inning of Monday's high school baseball game played in Thief River Falls. Lane went from second to third on an infield ground-out. Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff watched the action.

TRF Boys, Girls Ready For North Sub-Region 8AA Meet

Thief River Falls boys and girls high school track teams, after completing their regular season schedule Monday at the Roseau Twilight Invitational, will turn their attention to the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA meet Thursday in Moorhead. The 3 p.m. event will be held at Concordia College.

Top six individuals in each event, plus the top three relay teams, will qualify for the Region 8AA meet Saturday, May 30, at Brainerd.

Tom Schafer, coach of the Thief River Falls girls, expects a number of Prowlers to qualify for the Region 8AA meet. "We should do quite well," he said. "It could be the largest group we've ever qualified if things go well for us."

Tim Olson, coach of the Thief River Falls boys, doesn't have as many Region 8AA-qualifying candidates, although sprinter Paul Brandt and hurdler Brian Stark figure to be among the top North Sub-Region 8AA finishers.

"If they run to their capabilities, we could get a couple of more through," offered Olson.

International Falls won both the boys and girls titles at the Roseau meet.

In the boys competition, the Broncos scored 134.5 points, followed by Stephen with 105, Marshall County South 71, Roseau 70, Thief River Falls 51, Hallock 27, Fisher 22, Marshall County Central 20, Warroad 20, and Marshall County South (II) 6.5.

In the girls division, International Falls collected 141 points, followed by Roseau with 100, Marshall County South 67, Thief River Falls 66, Marshall County Central 58, Lake of the Woods 35, Hallock 9, Fisher 7, Stephen 6, Warroad 5, and Tri-County 2.

Lone Thief River Falls winner among the boys was Brandt with an 11.6 in the 100-meter dash. Stark wound up with a pair of seconds in the hurdles; including a 16.3 in the 100 and a season-best 43.2 in the 300.

Thief River Falls girls had a pair of winners as Christy Puetz ran a 1:01.7 in the 400 and Lynn Mueller ran an 11:58.2 in the 3200.

"We didn't see the times we wanted to see," admitted Schafer. "We were still pretty sluggish because of our (busy) schedule. But by Thursday we should be all right.

Pirates Edge Prowlers 5-4

A three-run Chuck Picard home run highlighted a four-run Crookston first inning Monday and the visiting Pirates hung on for a 5-4 high school baseball win over Thief River Falls.

Crookston lost a 10-7 game when the two teams met six days earlier, but the Pirates' fast start, coupled with righthander's Chip Brekken's teasing slow off-speed pitches, turned the tables in the rematch.

The Class A Pirates left with an 11-5 record. The Class AA Prowlers fell to 7-5.

Thief River Falls righthander Chris Nelson gave up only five hits and struck out 11 Crookston batters. But five walks and five Thief River Falls errors supplied the Pirates with base runners.

In that Crookston first inning, Brent Blake drew a lead-off walk and Chris Demarais dropped a double into left field. Blake reached third on the hit and scored on the play when the ball got by the outfielder for an error. Keith Lilliquist walked before Nelson struck out No. 4 hitter Steve Johnson and retired Brekken on a pop foul to the catcher.

Nelson had a full-count on Picard when the left-handed hitter put a fly ball up in the wind that helped carry it over the left field fence for an opposite-field three-run home run.

Brekken, on the other hand, retired the Prowlers on four pitches in the bottom of the first inning.

Thief River Falls came up with a pair of third inning runs when Chris Bjorgaard drew a lead-off walk as the No. 8 hitter in the line-up, stole second and third and scored on a one-out ground ball double into left field by Mike Bendickson. An infield ground-out moved Bendickson to third base, and he scored on a single to right by Joel Swanson.

Crookston came up with what proved to be the winning run in the fourth without the benefit of a base hit when No. 9 hitter Joe Brekken was given a one-out walk and wound up scoring on a stolen base when the play produced two Thief River Falls throwing errors.

Thief River Falls cut the deficit in the sixth as Tom Knoff singled, ended up on third on a hit-and-run ground-out with Jason Lane at the plate and scored on a long double to the left field fence by Dean DuChamp. A single up the middle by Nelson plated DuChamp for a 5-4 game. Nelson stole second and went to third on a wild pitch with just one out, but the next two hitters failed to get the ball out of the infield.

Brekken completed the task when he retired the Prowlers' 1-2-3 hitters on three pitches in the bottom of the seventh - all infield ground-outs.

DuChamp, 2-for-3, was the only Thief River Falls batter with more than one hit in the Prowlers' seven-hit offense. Brekken walked just one and struck out three. Demarais was 2-for-3 for the winners.

Girls At Region 8AA Meet Thursday

Thief River Falls girls will compete in the 1987 Region 8AA high school golf meet Thursday beginning at 9:30 a.m. in Alexandria.

Bemidji and Fergus Falls appear to be the top title challengers in the event that will send its championship team, plus the top five individuals on to the state meet June 3 and 4 in the Twin Cities.

Thief River Falls wrapped up its 1987 regular season schedule with a Monday dual meet at East Grand Forks and a Tuesday invitational meet at Detroit Lakes.

The Prowlers defeated the Green Wave 209-231, with Kelly Cornell turning in a 44, Jill Olson 51, Nancy Jorde 55, and Stacey Cummings 59.

East Grand Forks won the junior varsity portion of the meet 260-270. For Thief River Falls, Diann Egge shot a 63, Cari Offerdahl 66, Karen Schmitz 68, and Marie Gonsorowski 73.

At Detroit Lakes, Roseau won team honors with a 375, followed by Moorhead at 421, Park Rapids 433, Fergus Falls 465, Detroit Lakes 468, Thief River Falls 478, and Mahnomen 540. The Prowlers' score was inflated because the No. 2, 3 and 4 golfers for coach Al Bhul were back in Thief River Falls because of classroom obligations.

Sara Huglen headed a group of four Roseau golfers among the five medal winners with an 84. Renae Halvorson was runner-up with a 94, Missy Culp was third with a 96 and Jodell Olson was fifth with a 101.

Cornell cracked that otherwise all-Roseau top five with a fourth place 97.

Rest of the Prowlers included Karin Tyler with a 125, Gayle Borchert 127 and Bekah Bortnem 129.

Women's Slow Pitch Softball

Pepsi-Cola Bottling was a doubleheader winner Monday in the opening night of the 1987 Thief River Falls Women's Slow Pitch Softball League as Steph LeMoine and Jodi Helt both doubled in a 6-1 victory over Russell's Bar, while Helt and Shelly Anderson were both 3-for-3 in a 12-2 second game victory over the Thief River Falls Merchants.

Hair Dynamics also wound up with a pair of wins, collecting a forfeit decision over Purdy's Shoes in Game 1, then belting McDonald's 12-1 in a 10-run rule five-inning decision in Game 2.

Rainbow Nursery split a pair of 7-6 games, beating McDonald's in the opener, but losing to Geno's Body Shop by the same score in the nightcap.

Lorae Johnson, Deanne Olson and Jill Johnson were all 3-for-3 as the Thief River Falls Merchants handled Geno's Body Shop 10-3.

No score was turned in on a Purdy's Shoes vs. Russell's Bar matchup.

Prowlers May Host Lakers In Playoff Opener

North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament is scheduled to start Tuesday when the No. 4-seeded team plays host to the No. 5 team, and at this point it appears Thief River Falls will be entertaining Detroit Lakes in that first round match-up of the five-team postseason playoffs.

The winner will join the top three seeded teams for the Wednesday, May 27, North Sub-Region 8AA semifinals and finals at the site of the No. 1 team.

Coaches' seeding votes were due today. Unbeaten Bemidji has a lock on the top spot and will host Wednesday's semifinals and finals. The Lumberjacks, who beat Hibbing 7-2 Monday to stand 13-0 for the year, completed a 6-0 record against North Sub-Region 8AA foes. Fergus Falls, 2-2 within North Sub-Region 8AA, is a probable No. 2 seed, followed by Moorhead; 2-3 against the rest of the field; Thief River Falls, 1-2; and Detroit Lakes, 0-4.

Thief River Falls' limited schedule against North Sub-Region 8AA teams found the Prowlers beating Moorhead 4-2 while losing a pair of one-sided games to Bemidji, 10-0 and 21-8. The Prowlers did not face Fergus Falls or Detroit Lakes this spring.

Bemidji, a fixture atop the Class AA state poll this season, has drawn the votes with a non-stop collection of lopsided wins, including a 12-1 drubbing of Moorhead last Thursday. The Lumberjacks beat the Spuds only 3-0 in their first meeting this spring, but a five-run first inning and a six-run fourth made Bemidji an easy winner this time behind the three-hit pitching of lefty Tom Kuesel, who also contributed at the plate with a double and a grand slam home run.

Bemidji will try to close out an unbeaten regular season schedule Thursday with a doubleheader assignment against Grand Rapids.

Section 8 Format Changed

Another format switch has been announced for the Section 8 high school hockey tournament, reports Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer.

After several years of staging north sub-section eliminations based upon geography, Section 8 will switch to the step ladder system currently employed by schools in Sections 3-5-6-7.

In that method, the top four teams will again be seeded directly into the Section 8 quarterfinal field, but instead of the remaining 15 schools battling for the final four berths within their north and south geographical areas, they will be ranked by the coaches and play off in stages.

Bottom six will meet in the first round February 18 when the No. 17 seed will be at No. 16; No. 18 at No. 15; and No. 19 at No. 14.

On February 20, the No. 9 seed will host the 16-17 winner; No. 10 will entertain the 15-18 winner; No. 11 will be at home against the 14-19 winner, while No. 12 hosts No. 13.

Those four winners then advance to meet the No. 5, 6, 7 and 8 seeds on February 22 to round out the eight-team Section 8 quarterfinal field.

The 1988 Section 8 tournament quarterfinals, semifinals and finals will be played February 26, 27, 29 and March 1 and 4, at the Thief River Falls Sports Arena.

Many of the early round tournament blowouts should be prevented under the new format, but severe travel handicaps could occur should teams such as Crosby-Ironton, Alexandria and Little Falls be matched with the likes of Indus, Lake of the Woods and Hallock.

The format switch was made following a recommendation of a Section 8 ad hoc committee.

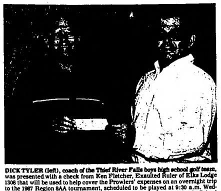
Bob Geatz led the Prowlers with rounds of 37-41 for a 78, while Jason Peterson went 40-44, 84; Steve Jung 41-47, 88; Paul Borchert 44-44, 88; Jim Breiland 40-49, 89; and Jason Tangquist 45-49, 94.

Region 8AA meet awaits the Prowlers Wednesday, May 27, at Park Rapids. Thief River Falls' six-player post-season squad will include seniors Geatz, Peterson, Jung, and Breiland, plus eighth grader Paul Borchert, with the sixth spot to be decided in a team playoff this week.

Championship team and the top five individuals will earn medals and state meet trips. Thief River Falls coach Dick Tyler is hoping to have one of the Prowlers challenge for a medal spot. Geatz, Peterson and Jung have alternated at the No. 1 spot for the Prowlers this spring. Breiland has been the team's most consistent golfer, according to Tyler, and middle school product Borchert has been a "pleasant surprise," he said.

"We just haven't been able to put two good rounds together," explained Tyler, looking at the Prowlers' penchant for middle-of-the-pace finishes throughout their 12-meet regular season invitational schedule.



DICK TYLER (left), coach of the Thief River Falls boys high school golf team, was presented with a check from Ken Fletcher, Exaulted Ruler of Elks Lodge 1308 that will be used to help cover the Prowlers' expenses on an overnight trip to the 1987 Region 8AA tournament, scheduled to be played at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 27, in Park Rapids. Golf is not a fully-funded activity in School District 564, meaning players, parents and community groups contribute financially to keep the program in operation. Thief River Falls girls will be making a trip to the Region 8AA meet tomorrow (Thursday) at Alexandria, but because of the distance involved, their overnight expenses will be covered by Region 8AA.

MCC-Middle River Adds To Win Total In Baseball

Wins over Kennedy-Hallock 7-1 Friday and Lake of the Woods 14-2 Monday hiked the Marshall County Central-Middle River cooperative high school baseball team record to 8-6 for the year heading into a regular season-ending assignment Thursday vs. Kittson County North in Humboldt.

Eight-team 1987 North Sub-Region 8A tournament seeding match-ups will be determined Friday. Play starts at the sites of the four highest seeded teams Monday. Semifinals and finals will be played Wednesday and Friday, May 27 and 29, at Karlstad.

Jon Kragness and Casey Johnson combined on a three-hit pitching effort in the victory over Kennedy-Hallock. Johnson, who came on in relief in the fourth, got the win. He also went 2-for-2 in the winner's 10-hit attack, while Tom Blazek and Dari Rokke both went 2-for-4 as Marshall County Central-Middle River snapped a 1-1 tie with a four-run fourth inning, then tacked on a pair of insurance runs in the fifth.

Rokke was the winning pitcher and had a big day at the plate against Lake of the Woods. He was 3-for-3 with a pair of doubles, a triple and three RBI in a 10-hit attack.

Marshall County Central-Middle River scored nine times in the top of the first inning Monday. Lake of the Woods came back with four hits and a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning, but Rokke then pitched two-hit shutout ball the rest of the walk, striking out eight without walking a single batter.

Craig Melvie contributed offensively against the Bears with a 2-for-3 effort at the plate, including a double and a triple and four RBI.

DNR Offers Advice On Building, Maintaining Nesting Structures

from the DNR
Division of Forestry
Warroad

It's spring again — the time our fair-weather, feathered friends return to the north country. Also, it's time for us to consider maintenance on existing nesting structures or constructing new ones.

You may be thinking it's a little late for that, since many birds are already nesting. Yet, many existing structures go unused because they are in need of a house cleaning. Also, some birds will still nest or even nest again if suitable nesting habitat is available.

Bluebird is a good example of a cavity nester. Bluebird prefers the edge of woods and open areas. It's rare to find bluebirds in vast dense woodlands. Being a cavity nester, under natural conditions, the bluebird makes its nest in the holes found in old decadent trees. These trees are generally the trees people cut and remove from the woodlots in favor of better formed healthy ones. Bluebirds and other cavity nesters will benefit from nesting boxes where suitable, natural sites are not available.

Providing homes for cavity nesting birds is a popular hobby for Minnesotan's who enjoy wildlife around their homes. Building houses according to proper specifications, placing them in proper habitat, and maintaining the houses regularly, benefits the birds and provides us with hours of enjoyment. If not built and maintained properly, these houses can become "sparrow slums", remain unused, or actually become a death trap, to desirable cavity nesting birds.

Here are some general guidelines to follow for all nesting structures:

+ Provide a hinged side, or roof, so houses can be easily cleaned out each year.

+ Don't put perches on any birdhouse. Perches will only attract house sparrows ad starlings.

+ At least four one-quarter-inch drain holes should be drilled in the floor of every flat bottomed birdhouse.

+ Do not use tin cans or metal for nests. Metal will heat up in direct sunlight, overheat the eggs and kill the young.

+ Wood is the best all-around material for houses. However, do not use wood treated with green preservative. The copper-based preservative, when exposed to water, can produce poisonous vapors.

+ Adequate ventilation is very important for small birdhouses. At least two one-quarter inch holes should be drilled near the top of both sides of all bird houses.

+ Birdhouse entrance holes less than 1 and three-eighths inches in diameter, will not admit house sparrows or starlings.

Do not build a house for "birds" — build it for a specifice kind of bird. Different species have different house size and entrance hole requirements. In Minnesota there are 40 species of birds which nest in tree cavities. Among the more common are wood ducks, barred and saw-whet owls, yellow shafted flicker, piliated woodpecker, hair and downy woodpeckers, chickadees, nuthatches, wrens, and the popular bluebird. By providing a nesting site, you can attract many different types of birds to reside in your yard or woodlot.

For more information and directions on how to build 27 different structures that will accommodate 46 different species of Minnesota wildlife, request the publication "Woodworking For Wildlife' by writing to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Box 7, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55146.

Minnesota State Parks Offer Free Admission June 7

Minnesota State Parks and the Department of Natural Resources will be hosting the annual state park open house on Sunday, June 7. Open house is a free family day to explore Minnesota's 64 state parks.

"Everyone is invited to visit and discover the natural and cultural treasures preserved in the state parks," said acting state park director Wayland Porter. "Open house is a great chance for the family to explore the parks and have a great day of picnicking, swimming, hiking or just relaxing."

Porter said that park permits are not necessary on open house. While entry is free, regular rates for such services as camping, boat rentals and firewood still apply.

"Our theme this year is Someplace Special," said Porter, "because each of the 64 state parks has a different mix of natural, hsitoric and recreational resources to entertain park guests." Porter said that he felt confident that once people experience the state parks, they will be back again throughout the year.

Interpretive programs and special events are planned at many parks in conjunction with open house. Some of the family activities include the Forestville Festival (Forestville State Park — Preston), Wildwood Days (Lake Louise State Park — LeRoy), Buffalo Days (Blue Mounds State Park — Luverne), Old Crow Wing Family Canoe Day (Crow Wing State Park — Brainerd) and Grinding Days (Old Mill State Park — Argyle).

Complete open house and state park information is available free from the DNR Information Center, Monday through Friday in the Twin Cities, telephone toll-free in Minnesota 800-652-9747 (ask for (DNR).

May Is Designated Canvasback Month Across Minnesota

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed May to be Canvasback Month in Minnesota, in conjunction with the Minnesota Waterfowl Association's spring inventory of canvasbacks and their breeding habitats within the state.

MWA is asking the public to join their efforts to help the canvasback by reporting any canvasbacks sighted in Minnesota during the month of May. Simply write down the location, date and number of canvasbacks sighted on a postcard and mail it to: MWA, 5701 Normandale Rd,. Minneapolis, MN 55424.

Information gathered from these reports will help define the canvasback range in Minnesota, as well as identify individual canvasback breeding marshes for preservation and study purposes.

This is the second phase of MWA's Operation Canvasback, and follows last fall's efforts that saw volunteers place over 200 critical canvasback habitat signs on canvasback migration and stagging waters.

At the official proclamation signing session, Governor Perpich was presented with a "Can Habitat" sign by Don Helmeke, chairman of MWA's Operation Canvasback and MWA President Brian Doble.

Minnesota harbors an important breeding population of canvasbacks distributed throughout many of the prairie marshes in the western third of the state. The female canvasback prefers to hide her overwater nest in very small, cattail-fringed wetlands. These small potholes are most vulnerable to drainage and drought and have disappeared at an alarming rate in the name of agriculture and development.

Preservation and enhancement of these vital small wetlands is a priority of Operation Canvasback, as they play a key role in the breeding biology of the canvasback, as well as numerous other species of waterfowl and other wildlife.

Minnesota Waterfowl Association is a non-profit conservation organization concentrating its efforts on the wetland and waterfowl resources within the state and is supported by memberships and donations. The handsome, limited edition print, "Carrying on the Tradition-Minnesota Canvasbacks," by noted artist Daniel Smith is available for a $35 donation and includes a 1-year membership in MWA.

A Critical Canvasback Habitat sign of flexible plastic by well known artist Jim Meger (similar to the one presented to Governor Perpich) and a window decal are also available, for a $20 donation to MWA-Operation Canvasback.

State Trail Surfacing

Trails and Waterways Unit of Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has awarded the trail construction contract for the Carlton to West Duluth segment of the Fire Trail.

Fire Trail is that portion of the Minnesota-Wisconsin Boundary State Trail which utilizes the former Burlington Northern railroad grade. This is the same railroad grade which served as an escape route for survivors of the 1894 Hinckley Fire and the 1918 Moose Lake — Cloquet Fire.

The successful bidder, Margarets Construction, Inc., of Duluth, will begin work this spring on the project, which includes 14.3 miles of asphalt surface (for bicyclists), culvert work, washout repair, excavating and seeding.

Construction will be similar to the work done two years ago on the Hinckley to Moose Lake Fire Trail, which will provide a bicycle and snowmobile expressway linking Carlton with Duluth.

On the Carlton end, the trail passes through Jay Cooke State Park and offers the unique scenery of the St. Louis River gorge. On the Duluth end, the trail passes the several deep rock cuts before offering trail users scenic overlooks of Duluth and Lake Superior.

Completion date for this project is Sept. 1, making the trail available to bicyclists later this summer, and greatly enhancing the tourism efforts of Carlton County and Duluth.

Questions or concerns regarding this or other area trail development can be directed to Kevin Arends, Boundary Trail Manager, Route 2, 701 Kenwood, Moose Lake, MN 55767.

Officer Of The Year

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Enforcement Division has announced that conservation officer Ray Jensen of Pelican Rapids has been selected Minnesota's 1987 Conservation Officer of the Year.

Jensen was chosen for the award among all of the officers in the state. "The quality of nominees this year was outstanding, and you were selected for your past and present contributions to the enforcement effort, for your outstanding knowledge of game and fish enforcement, and for your exemplary participation in community activities," said Acting DNR Enforcement Director Leo Haseman in a letter to Jensen.

Jensen started with the Department of Conservation in 1944 as a forest ranger, and worked as a crew leader in a Cloquet Valley State Forest north of Duluth. Later, he returned to work for the USDA Forest Service and in Grand Rapids, and was an assistant supervisor at the Thistledew Forestry Camp. He then transferred to the section of Fisheries at Detroit Lakes as a laborer in August 1948.

He was promoted to fish culturist, and then fisheries manager at Ottertail where he worked for nine years. He later transferred to warden service in Nov. 1960 and was stationed at Ada until 1963. He then moved to the Pelican Rapids station where he is now located.

He has been a firearm and snowmobile instructor since 1957, holding numerous classes each year.

Jensen has also been very active locally in giving presentations with local Sportsmen's groups, 4-H groups, rotarys, FFA women's groups and the Cub and Boy Scout Troups in his patrol district. He is a member of the Faith Lutheran Chruch in Pelican Rapids, a lifetime member of VFW Post 52, and secretary of the Ottertail County Peace Officers Association.

"Conservation Officer Jensen is highly respected by his fellow officers," Haseman added. "He is an example of what a conservation officer is and projects himself and the division in a proper perspective to his community."

DNR Receives Donations

A number of much appreciated private donations to the Department of Natural Resources has been received and reported from DNR stations throughout the state.

Included in these donations are:

+ A donation of $700 by the Minnesota Chapter of the Safari Club International to construct a bear trap for use by Two Harbors Conservation Officer Ray Lakso in his bear relocation efforts. Other donations to the bear relocation effort came from the Mantrap Valley and Sportsmen's Club of Park Rapids, and the Jacobson Sportsmen's Club. The donation of traps by these clubs will be used for relocation of bears in the Grand Rapids area. The traps have been built by Dick Anderson of Fergus Falls and Jim Hatlevig of Richville. They both are DNR employees who coordinate Minnesota's Advanced Hunter Education Program in northern, west central and southwestern Minnesota.

+ Montevideo Rod and Gun Club has donated $235 for new tree planting at Lac qui Parle, and materials for the construction of 20 wood duck houses, to be built by the Montevideo High School FFA Chapter. The club also donated $550 in materials during 1986 for wood duck house construction, which have been installed on the Lac qui Parle Wildlife Management Area (WMA). Over the past two years, the club donated more than $1,000 to the WMA, according to WMA Manager Ken Bonnema.

+ Waterville Sportsmen's Coub announced the donation of a 12-foot aluminum jon boat to the Area Fisheries Headquarters at Waterville. The boat is expected to be used on one and 10-acre ponds for various hatchery operations, including fertilizing pounds, setting out small seines, treating nuisance vegetation and installing aeration systems. Area Fisheries Supervisor Dick Peterson said the boat, valued at $350, is a needed piece of equipment that would otherwise not be purchased due to budget constraints.

Overpowered Boats Illegal

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is reminding boaters that it is illegal to operate a boat in Minnesota using a motor of greater horsepower than the maximum safe limit indicated on the boat's capacity plate.

"The capacity plate is usually located on the boat's transom or is attached to the craft near the steering wheel or throttle," said DNR boat and water safety coordinator Kim Elverum. He said he receives many calls each year concerning this regulation.

"It is not illegal for someone to sell a boat with a motor larger than that shown on the capacity plate," Elverum said. "But it is illegal to operate such a craft." He added, however, that most boat dealers will not sell an overpowered boat.

"A boat buyer should check the capacity plate before they purchase it," he cautioned, "especially with used boats."

"Furthermore, a boat owner may find that insurance does not cover cases where their watercraft is overpowered and has an accident," he added. "There is also no truth to the rumor that the law allows a 5, 10 or 15 per cent horsepower increase over the maximum shown on the capacity plate."

Elverum noted that the transom can also be damaged by overpowering a boat. "It may also create a dangerous situation by forcing the stern lower in the water, casuing the bow to rise and reducing the operator's forward visibility," he said.

If no capacity plate can be found on a boat, persons may write to the DNR at Box 46, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call (612) 296-3310 to obtain a brochure explaining how to estimate their boat's horsepower capacity.

Poster Contest Winners

Minnesota Conservation Federation has announced the winners of the tenth annual State National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest. This year's contest entrants had to illustrate the theme, "The Pittman-Robertson Act — 50 Years of Sportsmen Helping Wildlife."

In the senior division, grades 9-12, Wayzata senior Chris Thole's colorful "50 years of P.R. for Wildlife" took first place honors. Cory Meyer, a Raymond junior, who won the national grand prize last year, received a second place award this year. Eric George Jorgenson, a sophomore from Tyler, took third place.

Junior division winners, grades 5-8, included Erik S. Jones' "Wildlife's Rebirth", as the first place winner. He is an 8th grade student from Alexandria. Scott Jurek, a 7th grader from Proctor, took second place and Colleen Haws, an 8th grader from St. Cloud, won third place. Two awards were also presented to two honorable mention winners in the junior division — Erik Peterson of Cambridge and Thomas Jones of Alexandria.

Prizes for first, second and third place winners in each division were U.S. Savings Bonds in the amount of $100, $75 and $50, respectively. All of the winners will next be entered in the national poster contest.

DNR Receives Donations

A number of sportsmen's clubs and lake associations in the Detroit Lakes area have donated funds for the leasing of walleye rearing ponds in the Detroit Lakes Management Area. Among those donating are: Fargo-Moorhead Chapter of Walleyes Unlimited — $725 each to Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls, Clay County Winter Fishermen's Association — $300; Big Cormorant Lake Association — $100; Cormorant Lakes Sportsmen's Club — $110; Hawley Rod and Gun Club — $150; Island Lake Property Owner's Association — $75, and Floyd Shores Association — $75.

"All of these groups have greatly added walleye management in northwestern Minnesota through their donations and contributions," said Detroit Lakes Area Fisheries Supervisor Dean Ash.

Franklin Middle School

A 10-2 win over East Grand Forks Friday completed a perfect 5-0 dual meet 1987 season for the Franklin Middle school tennis team.

The Jeanne Olson-coached Spartans swept home-and-home matches from East Grand Forks and Bemidji, and added a victory in a single meeting with Detroit Lakes.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
PENNINGTON COUNTY
April 28, 1987 - 5:00 P.M.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Board of Commissioners of Pennington County met in the Commissioners' room in the courthouse in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, April 28, 1987, at 5:00 p.m. All members were present.

Minutes of the meeting held on April 14 were approved as read.

Tom Wang, Kelly Kvick and Merlin Schroeder, members of the Sno-Drifter Club, met with the Board about a snowmobile trail from Thief River Falls to Goodridge, linking up the presently existing Fourtown trail. They can possibly get a grant from the DNR for the total cost of establishing this trail plus the maintenance of the trail. This would run along the Highway No. 1 then North to Goodridge. Moved by Commissioner Grabanski, seconded by Commissioner Penning to sponsor the grant application for the Sno-Drifters to obtain funds for establishing and maintenance of a snowmobile trail. Motion unanimously carried.

Discussion was again held on the regrading of SA No. 6 and the culvert size by Gary Johnson's property. Gary Johnson agreed to put the cap on the 48" culvert if the county would install the 48" culvert. No further action taken on SA No. 6.

Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Grabanski to authorize the Chairman to set up a meeting with Lundell Mfg. to discuss the separating machinery at the solid waste facility — discuss warranty and maintenance. Chairman Hoffman set 1:30 p.m., May 12, 1987, during the regular Board meeting as the time for this meeting. The County Engineer and Attorney will draft a letter of existing problems to Lundell.

Attorney Olin read a letter from the Waste Management Board concerning repayment of the loan.

Dave Forsberg advised the Board that Dale Holtan will haul the cans to Winnipeg at $250 per load. He would be able to haul approximately 17 tons per load. Discussion was held on the compost and Dave Forsberg's report on a recycling facility and composting operation in Washington State.

Rick Nordhagen gave results of tests made on ash which turned out good. Mn Pollution Control Agency is not going to give any facility the "go ahead" to burn these pellets until the emission tests are done. The emission tests should be done this spring or early summer.

Engineer Olson recommended that Dave Forsberg be retained as a consultant to work with Rick Nordhagen and himself to point out to problems with the separating equipment before the warranty runs out.

Commissioner Grabanski left the meeting at 7:00 p.m.

Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Koop to have the cans hauled to a plant in Canada and billed to Future Fuels, Inc. Motion carried. The County will have control of the removal. Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to keep Dave Forsberg on for two weeks as consultant to the Solid Waste Officer. Motion carried.

The contract for the highway engineer expires on May 1, 1987. Discussion was held on the salary for the engineer. Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Penning to set the engineer's salary for the 1987-88 contract year at $39,000. Motion carried with Commissioner Koop voting nay.

Engineer Olson discussed equipment costs — motor grader costs $36.19 per hour to run. Recommends rate on motor grader be set at $40 per hour with minimum of $17.50 to $20. Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Koop to set the rate for motor grader at $40 per hour with minimum of $20. Motion carried.

Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to accept the ambulance contract with Midwest Ambulance Service and to authorize the Chairman to sign same. Motion carried.

Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Koop to approve reissuance of a lost warrant No. 84817 dated 3-18-87 to Jobs, Inc. without furnishing an indemnifying bond. Motion carried.

Correspondence was read from the American Legion regarding Veterans Service Office Ellison.

Correspondence was read from City regarding a low level radio active waste facility. Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to hold an informational meeting on low level radio-active waste facility. Motion carried.

Read correspondence from NW Chapter of MN Viewers Assoc., Inc. asking $100 annual dues from Pennington County giving us one voting member. The Board felt they needed more information on what purpose this association serves.

Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Koop to approve DNR permit for Ron Hamre for work on Red Lake River bank, permit No. 87-1186. Motion carried.

Correspondence was read concerning Quin-County Health Service from Kittson County.

Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Koop, the meeting was adjourned until the next regularly scheduled meeting on May 12, 1987. Motion carried.

RC And D Program Still Alive At SWCD Offices

Resource conservation and development (RC and D) program is still alive. It has been changed from the original concept in that iut does not have money for assistance. It has become an assistance method for developing project plans and then assisting in finding ways of developing funding, notes Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician with the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD.

Many of the original project measures which were identified as needed 15 years ago have been completed through various means. A couple in the Grygla area include:

(1) The Grande Corner recreation area and rest stop. Through many local efforts plus a grant to Spruce Grove township, many improvements have been made. The 4-H club planted trees obtaied from Minnesota department of natural resources, forestry division. Picnic shelters have been buit and a softball diamond has been developed.

(2) Snowmobile trails. Through a grant about 12 years ago, the shelter and trail northeast of Grygla were developed. The Fourtown snowmobile club has continued to develop trails and maintain them through local efforts along with some grant money.

"It seems like the efforts in identifying needs were effective in getting support for needed measures," Rundell said. "If you know of a good, needed project, contact the soil conservation office and see it there can be something developed to continue to improve our area. RC and D is a method of helping ourselves through assistance in planning and developiong project measures.

You buy the jug. We'll buy the drinks all summer long.

Twelve graduating students at Marshall county central high school are honor students. These 12 students maintained a "B" average (3.0 or better) at the high school, grades 9 through 12.

Graduation on May 29 will be a special occasion for Jon Kragness, Darin Lee, Dan Newland, Brian Timm, Kevin Olsen, Corey Green, Donell Folden, Darin Rokke, Becky Berggren, Danni Halvorson, Jodi Foss and Kari Larson. These 12 students deserve special recognition for their efforts throughout their high school years.

Jon P. Kragness, the son of Dave and Jan Kragness, Newfolden, has not only maintained a high grade point average but participated in athletics and other activities at MCC. He lettered six years in baseball and won the Golden Glove award in 1985 and 1986. He was the football manager and lettered six years in football. He earned four letters on the basketball team. And, he participated in band and choir. He won state star ratings for solos and ensembles four years. He has also had lead roles in musicals, served on the yearbook staff and is a National honor society member. Last year he was selected as alternative to Boys State and won the Scholar Athlete award.

Jon has been active outside of school also. He has been treasurer of senior league at Bethlehem Lutheran church and presently works as an assistant in Newfolden's summer recreation program. In 1985, Jon won the first place grand prize in the Red River Valley Historical Society essay contest.

Jon plans to major in math and engineering at North Dakota State University in Fargo, ND.

Darin Lee, the son of Marlin and Joan Lee of Newfolden, is another active honor student. He was a member of the speech team for six years, a member of the Knowledge Bowl team for four years and a member of the band. He earned star ratings two years in regional and state competition as a member of the saxophone quartet, and he played in the varsity and pep bands. He also had roles in two school musicals. As a sophomore, Darin won the district Soil and water conservation essay contest and placed second in regional competition. He is a member of the National honor society.

During the summer months Darin works for the city. He has been accepted at Moorhead State University.

Dan Newland, the son of Robert and Olivia Newland of Newfolden, has participated in contest speech for six years at MCC, winning the region meet in discussion this year and participating in the state meet. He was a member of the Knowledge Bowl team during grades nine through 12.

Dan was named a National Merit Scholarship finalist, and won the Bausch & Lomb science award and was a Voice of Democracy contest winner. As a 4-H member for 10 years, Dan was a state trip winner. This fall he plans to attend Moorhead State University, where he has received a scholarship.

Brian Timm, son of Ronald and Renae Timm of Viking, has participated in Knowledge Bowl and speech at MCC. He was on the Knowledge Bowl team in grades 10 through 12, and was a member of the speech team for three years. As a freshman, Brian won the Minnesota Museum of Natural Science award. He has been in 4-H since he was in fifth grade. He plans to major in aeronautical studies at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

Kevin Olsen, son of Robert and Darlene Olsen of Viking, has been especially active in music. He has been a band member since grade seven. He lettered four years and earned six state medals and eight district awards for solos and ensembles. As a member of the choir his senior year, Kevin won two state medals and two district awards in competition.

Kevin has also participated in other activities. This year he participated in the state speech meet after winning at the district and regional levels. He is a four-year letter winner in speech. Other activities include participation in one-act plays, Knowledge Bowl and school musicals. He took third place in the Voice of Democracy essay contest as a junior. He has been a 4-H member since fourth grade.

He plans to attend the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, where he will major in music.

Corey Green, the son of Duane and Yvonne Green of rural Middle River, included football, basketball, track and choir into his high school activities. He was also a class officer in his junior year and as a senior, he served on the student council and participated in the school musical. In addition, he was active for many years in the Ringbo Bobcats 4-H club.

He plans to attend the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Goodridge School Honors Students And Teachers

As part of a monthly effort to acquaint the public with students and teachers, Goodridge public school has chosen teachers and students to be featured in a newsletter for the months of April and May. Teachers include Betsy Sunram, Diedre Nordin, David Dahlen, John Rahn, and Wayne Ditmer. Students include Robin Sjulestad, Sonya Groven and Tami Quam.

Betsy Sunram, formerly of Ponsford and a graduate of Park Rapids high school, now lives in Thief River Falls and teaches German and art in both the Goodridge and Grygla high schools.

Betsy enjoys teaching in a small school because of the close relationship a teacher has with her students and the fact that teaching and living in a rural setting is most relaxing.

Betsy studied three years at Bemidji State University and received her bachelor of science degree from the University of Minnesota. Betsy has a double major in German and art.

Her hobbies include traveling, sewing, reading, hiking, cross-country skiing and pottery.

Betsy enjoys teaching. In March of this year, she accompanied two students from each of the two schools, Goodridge and Grygla, to Germany on a two-week tour along with a number of other students from across Minnesota.

Diedre Nordin was born in Karlstad and is a graduate of the Karlstad high school. She attended the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, ND, and graduated from St. Cloud State university with a degree in speech therapy. Diedre shares her expertise with the Thief River Falls school district and Goodridge.

In teaching, her enjoyment is seeing children move through the various programs that she is responsible for and watching the student blossom as their progress in speech continues to develop.

Betsy Sunram

Diedre Nordin

David Dahlen

John Rahn

Wayne Ditmer

Diedre and her husband Jan have three children, Kate, Adam and Bailey. Diedre's hobbies include singing in the church choir and at weddings, biking and some traveling.

David Dahlen is a native of the Goodridge community and a graduate from Goodridge high school. He graduated from Bemidji state university in 1974 with a major in math training in computer science. He was a long term substitute teacher in the district until he started as a full-time instructor during the 1986-1987 school year.

David believes that teaching in a small school system has great advantages because "teachers can recognize a student's problems in the classroom before they get, so to speak, out of hand," David said. "We do a lot of long hand math as a student must still learn how to push a pencil."

His busy teaching schedule includes four classes of math and two computer classes. Last fall, he also taught classes in word processing and computer programming.

David and his wife Carol, a medical secretary at Northwest Medical center, have two children, Rachel and Travis. Besides spending time with his family and work, he enjoys radio control airplane flying and traveling with his family.

John Rahn hails from Burlington, IA. He graduated from high school in Burlington, in 1977. He spent two years attending Western University in Kentucky and received his bachelor of science degree from Georgia Southern university. He is now working on his masters at North Dakota State University in Fargo.

John enjoys coaching basketball at Goodridge because the students have a real positive attitude. He is looking for a good year in basketball for the 1987-1988 school year.

It is his first year of basketball coaching at Goodridge along with teaching several classes of health

NOTICE

INFORMATIONAL MEETING ON A LOW-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE FACILITY

Minnesota is a member of the Midwest Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact. Those states include Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio & Wisconsin. The Compact has been seeking a volunteer state to host the 1st Regional Low-Level Radioactive Waste Facility. In absence of a volunteer state the first state will be designated by the end of June 1987.

This is an important issue for this region as we do generate low-level radioactive waste and the Federal Government has mandated that a site be selected by January 1, 1993.

Pennington County will hold an informational meeting on:

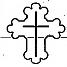
Scriptures Selected by The American Bible Society



Memorial Day is a time for honoring those brave men and women who died for their country, that we might continue to live in peace and freedom. How best can we honor them? Certainly, it is important to hold ceremonies, to place flowers on the graves of those near and dear to us. These are public displays of private grief.

There is another way that we can honor these great men and women, however. That is in upholding the principles that they gave "the last full measure" to defend. Study the constitution—here we find the principles upon which this nation was founded. Then make every effort to live by these principles.

This Memorial Day pay tribute to the brave men and women who have died for America and continue through the year to honor them by upholding those values that they died to protect.

Her future plans are to attend Northland community college before going to Bemidji State university for a major in social work.

Darin Rokke, the son of Dale and Kathy Rokke of rural Newfolden, has been very active in athletics at MCC. A six-year letterman in baseball, Darin was an all-conference honorable mention selection as a junior. He earned four letters in basketball and received all-conference honors as a senior and honorable mention as a junior. He lettered three years on the football team and received all-conference honorable mention honors this past year. He also participated in choir and the school musical. At Bethlehem Lutheran church, Darin is a member of the senior league. He will study engineering and math at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

Becky Berggren, the daughter of Newell and Loretta Berggren, Newfolden, participated in a one-act play, musical, FHA, speech, M Club, band and choir during her high school years. In addition, she served as captain of the volleyball team her senior year and is senior class vice president. She was selected homecoming queen and is a member of the National honor society. She won second place in an essay contest sponsored by Red River Valley Historical society.

Becky was first runner-up in the recent Miss Newfolden pageant, belongs to her church youth group and participated in 4-H. Next fall she will attend the University of North Dakota to major in psychology.

Danni Halvorson, the son of Loretta Halvorson, Viking, and Gene Halvorson, Warren, was very active in sports and other activities. He was captain of the basketball and football teams as a senior and was an all-conference selection in basketball as a junior and senior. In football, he was named all-conference as a senior and was honorable mention in his junior year.

He also participated in choir and won state medal awards in ensemble competition. He served on the student council in grades 7 through 12, was vice president as a junior and president as a senior. Danni is M Club vice president this year and has been a member since the ninth grade. He plans to attend Moorhead State University this fall.

Jodi Leah Foss, the daughter of Marvin Foss, Middle River, and Marlene Foss, Newfolden, has been active in athletics at MCC, as well as FHA.

Her athletic ability is evident from the numerous awards she has received, which include: basketball all-conference in 1985, 1986 and 1987; Most valuable award in basketball in 1986 and 1987; volleyball all-conference in 1986 and 1987; and Most Valuable award in track one year.

Jodi has also been active outside of her school activities. She is active in her church youth group and volunteered as a Bible school teacher. She has also been involved in community education through assisting with the elementary gymnastics program.

She plans to attend the University of Minnesota at Crookston, where she will major in business.

Kari Larson, the daughter of Arnold and Vernice Larson of rural Newfolden, is a good example of another active honor student. She has been in one-act plays, musicals, speech, choir, band and three-act plays at MCC. She was volleyball manager and president of the M Club and is FHA president. She has also been a cheerleader and was class president as a sophomore.

Kari was president of her 4-H club in 1985 and is in her church youth group. Her future plans are to major in child care and development at the University of Minnesota at Crookston.

Special thanks to the New River Record for much of the information on these exemplary students.

and United States history. He also has first grade through fourth grade physical education and seventh through tenth grade as well. Before coming to Goodridge he was an assistant basketball coach at Moorhead state university.

John has a great love for sports of all kinds but of course basketball is his favorite. Naturally his hoobbies include attending sport functions along with hunting and fishing. He just got a new boat so he is looking forward to the first day of fishing season.

John and his wife Jean are expecting a new addition to their family but until that happens their dog Nasa takes up some of the spare time.

Wayne Ditmer teaches adult ag farm management and has spent thirty years in the classroom. He was raised on a farm at Velva, ND, and graduated from North Dakota State University in 1954 with a bachelor of science degree in agricultural education. He spent two years in the military and when he returned to civilian life he had a rating of battalion S3 and was in charge of operations and training.

Wayne started teaching at Mott, ND, in 1956, and taught there for 28 years before moving to Thief River Falls in 1984 where he taught in both post-secondary and adult farm management. He began teaching at Goodridge in 1986. During his years of teaching he has received his masters degree from North Dakota State University. He has also attended classes in River Falls, WI.

Wayne's hobbies include gardening, working with machines, and repairing them. He is a member of the Masonic lodge and Eastern Star, Goodridge Lions club and is active in church.

His family includes his wife Beverly who has taught for 22 years and three sons. The family does a lot of traveling and when time allows, his relaxing moments are spent reading.

Wayne enjoys the area because the farmers in the area are very cooperative. He looks forward to having more farmers join his program.

Robin Sjulestad, the daughter of David and Mary Ann Sjulestad, is in the first grade in Goodridge school. She has one sister Shannon, who is in the fourth grade and a brother Adam, who is not in school yet.

Robin likes to play outside and likes Goodridge school because all of her friends are there.

Robin's hobbies and talents include drawing and coloring. Her favorite subjects in school are math and handwriting. She has received awards in both Girl Scouts and physical education.

Sonya Groven, the daughter of Sherman and Jean Groven, is in the eighth grade. She has two brothers Shawn and Scott. Her favorite subjects include English, art, and industrial arts. Her special achievements include being chosen class representative and receiving the President's physical fitness awards. Her extra-curricular and co-curricular activities include band and manager for girl's volleyball and basketball.

Her hobbies and talents include gymnastics, and oil painting. She also likes animals of all kinds.

Sonya belongs to the pep club in school and she likes the community of Goodridge because "it's smaller and you know everyone."

Tami Quam, the daughter of Curtis and Donna Quam, is in the 12th grade. She has one sister, Carla, and three brothers, Tommy, Kurt and Donavon.

Her favorite school subjects are algebra and sciences. Her special achievements include being chosen for homecoming queen, the honor society and honor band in Bemidji.

Tami enjoys playing volleyball and playing the saxophone in the Goodridge band. Her extra-curricular activities also include volleyball, and varsity cheerleading for boys and girls. Tami also belongs to, and is president of the student council, and is the secretary and treasurer of the band, and vice president of her senior class.

Tami likes Goodridge school because the school is small, the teachers spend more time helping and getting to know the individual personally and not just by their face, and it is small enough for all the students to know each other.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Caribou And Oil

Following comments are written by Susan Moya, manager of energy and natural resources policy for the U.S. chamber of commerce. Response from others with a differing viewpoint are encouraged:

The environmental roadblocks being raised by opponents to opening the Arctic National Wildlife refuge to oil production are unwarranted. The record speaks for itself. There is no reason to delay, but there are many very important reasons not to delay.

The Arctic National Wildlife refuge in northernmost Alaska is an area of wintertime ice and snow with a summertime of 24-hour sun raising the temperature to a mere 40 degrees. Until Congress decides otherwise, all oil production activities, including exploration, are banned.

A small part of the 18 million acre refuge, the 1.5 million acre coastal plain, is believed to harbor the nation's largest remaining oil reserve, equal to the nearby Prudhoe Bay oil field which accounts for about one-quarter of our domestic petroleum production. The area could hold as much as 9.2 billion barrels of recoverable oil, according to the Interior department.

But the area is also the calving ground for 180,000 Porcupine Caribou, the nation's largest migratory caribou herd. Therein lies the problem.

There is no question that the United States needs the oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge — or "Anwar," as it's often called. A recent major study published by the Energy department concluded that a continuing dependence on imported oil poses a threat to our security which could last into the next century.

If things don't change, it predicted, by 1995 the United States will be importing half of its oil, far above the present 38 per cent which itself is up from 27 per cent just a year ago. At the time of the 1973-1974 oil embargo, we were importing 33 per cent.

It is obvious that if this nation were to rely on other countries for half of its oil we would be open to blackmail and the severe pressures resulting from foreigners' ability virtually to shut us down.

We know of only one area which might have the large oil reserves necessary to make a difference — Anwar — and the only way out of the worsening situation is to get started on development as soon as possible.

But "soon" in the oil production business is not very soon at all. If permission were granted today for exploration, drilling and production, it would be 10 to 15 years before the first drop of crude began to flow, just when a decline in production is expected at Prudhoe Bay.

In mid-April, the Interior department joined the business community in calling for Anwar to be opened for development. Now it is up to Congress.

Many environmentalists are opposed strongly to any development in the area, predicting dire consequences if it is opened. Their greatest worry is about the Procupine Caribou herd, which they say will be devasted if any oil-related activity is allowed.

But does development of the coastal plain in Anwar really pose a threat to the herd? The existing evidence is overwhelming that the caribou would prosper in the midst of a producing oil field.

Remember the raging caribou controversy more than a decade ago when plans were being made for opening the Prudhoe Bay field and construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline?

Then, as now, environmentalists were predicting a disaster for the caribou, in this case the smaller Central Arctic herd which migrates through the Prudhoe Bay area. They were also predicting serious damage to the tundra, permafrost and other forms of wildlife.

What has happened since 1974 when pipeline construction started and 1977 when Prudhoe Bay production began? Why, the caribou are doing just fine, thank you. Not only has the Central Arctic herd of caribou survived, it has grown from an estimated 3,000 animals in 1972 to about 13,000 at latest count. This is a four-fold increase in 13 years.

The predicted adverse impact on other forms of wildlife and the delicate arctic environment itself also did not take place. It is interesting to note that the same environmentalists who were predicting disaster in the 1970s are predicting disaster today. But they are just as wrong today as they were then.

Development of Anwar does not pose any more of a threat to the Porcupine Caribou herd than development of Prudhoe Bay posed to the Central Arctic herd. The environment and other forms of wildlife are equally safe.

The record in northern Alaska shows that the petroleum industry is sensitive to the environment and responds to legitimate environmental concerns. All lessons learned at Prudhoe Bay will be applied to Anwar.

This nation must not become even more dependent on foreign energy and the way to avoid that is to open Anwar. To say that our national future depends on the oil we could get from the Arctic National Wildlife refuge is but a slight exaggeration.

On the north slope of Alaska we have not one, but two, national treasures — the Porcupine Caribou on the surface and the black gold beneath it. We can and must take advantage of both.

Let's get on with it.

Treat It Like Your Own

"Help, Hope, Healing" is the theme for the 33rd annual soil and water stewardship week to be observed May 24-31 under sponsorship of the National Association of Conservation districts. The following comments on treatment of soil and water are presented by Cecil Johnson of The International Coalition headquartered at Moorhead:

"Treat it like your own." That's the way I was taught. And application was firmly made to everything from the neighbor's dog to his piano bench. We had neither dog nor piano at our house, but the same rule of conduct was stubbornly insisted upon by the parents in charge. Perhaps at your house as well, and the old-fashioned notion still has a lot going for it. Goodness knows, a lot of property would be better off today if this precept were still in style.

But sometimes we misplace the ownership labels on people and things. As, for example, when we count our lives as altogether our own, and therefore conclude too quickly that we are free to do with our lives whatever we wish and please, often with consequences varying from the unfortunate to the disastrous.

We make the same mistake when we regard all the soil and water in the world as our own private property for the kind of use that will bring us the greatest personal benefit for right now, regardless of the aftermath and outcome for other people. Over the years, such practice has resulted in world-wide prostitution of our limited natural resources that we can no longer afford to "treat as our own."

To continue on this selfish and uncaring course will most certainly mean the wasting of the soil that grows the food we all eat, the poisoning of the water we all drink, and the polluting of the air we all breathe.

In order to get the right ownership labels back on people and things, a centuries-old custom is being revived for celebration on May 24, otherwise known as Rogation Sunday. On this special Sunday which introduces soil and water stewardship week extending through May 31, we all are invited to participate in a variety of activities that will lead us to a heightened awareness of the tremendous responsibility that is ours to manage the resources of a Gracious Providence for the greatest good of all the people—"Not like our own," for those resources belong to Another and the properties are only for our caretakership.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The tunnel of love ride at an amusement park was temporarily closed for repairs and maintenance. The repairmen apparently had a sense of humor, for the explanation sign on the ticket booth simply stated, "Out of Ardor".

The burglar had cruised the neighborhood and noticed an elderly couple placing suitcases in the trunk of their car. Late that night he broke the lock on the back door and entered the dark house. As he made his way into the living room a voice said, "I see you and Jesus sees you." The burglar froze in his tracks. "I see you and Jesus sees you," the voice said again.

Cautiously the burglar turned on his flashlight and shined it in the direction of the voice. The light revealed a parrot on a perch. "I see you and Jesus sees you," the bird said.

"Be quiet, you stupid bird!" the burglar laughed. Then his flashlight picked up a pair of eyes beneath the parrot's perch, and a huge Doberman Pinscher bared its teeth. "Sic 'em Jesus," the parrot said.

The reason children seem so happy and carefree is that they don't have any children to worry about.

An obese lady was put on a strict diet by her doctor who also recommended plenty of exercise. Several weeks later he noticed she had shed a few pounds.

"Did you find it tough to avoid cake, candy, ice cream and all the other goodies?" he asked.

"Indeed I did," she agreed.

"And what sort of exercises did you do?" he inquired.

"Climbed the walls," she replied.

SBA Explains Its Private Sector Initiatives Program

The Private Sector Initiatives program is a cooperative, outreach program designed to increase the effectiveness of Small Business Administration programs, particularly in providing management assistance training to the small business community.

It combines the resources of trade associations, corporations, foundations and professional societies along with SBA to respond to the changing needs of small business.

The main focus of this program is to enlarge the capability of SBA to provide valuable services to small businesses through cooperative, jointly-sponsored activities with the private sector, particularly at reduced costs. Ways in which the private sector helps SBA in delivering these services include the following:

— Through co-sponsoring management training programs — courses, conferences, clinics, seminars and workshops.

— Through providing speakers, panelists, and moderators for training programs.

— Through providing training facilities, equipment, and informational materials.

— Through offering one-on-one counseling to small business persons.

— Through helping small business persons identify and find adequate solutions to problems.

— Through publicizing the many free services available to small business persons on the national, state and local levels.

— Through asssisting in the preparation and delivering of management assistance via radio, television and the print media.

For additional information contact the local SBA district office or SBA, Office of Private Sector Initiatives, 1441 L Street, N. W., Room 317, Washington, D.C. 20416. Telephone (202) 653-7881.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

In this city who is responsible for keeping yards clean, the owner or the renter?

A house in our neighborhood was converted into a multi-family HUD rental. What used to be a garden and flowers is now a rat nest. Their back yard and alley are used for dump sites with loose unwrapped litter blowing around.

The owner blames the renters, the renters blame it on each other, and the welfare department says, "We just pay out the money."

But it is the neighbors who have to look at the mess, and it is the neighbors who must continually pick up the filthy stuff after it rolls into their yards. I have developed a bad elbow, a bad knee, a bad back and a bad temper cleaning up their litter every day.

It is sickening to see people in U.S. cities walking around in their own waste. Big strong healthy young people throw their waste on the ground for someone else to pick up after them. What is so cute about throwing trash on the ground?

I hope the city will do something about this problem. Here are some suggestions:

(1) If young people on welfare are too lazy to clean up their own mess, cut their checks until they do. This is the type who give welfare a bad name anyway.

(2) Landlords could hire the cleaning done, then raise the rent to cover the charge.

(3) Landlords should have written house rules regarding the care of their property. If renters damage or reduce the value of the property, evict them immediately.

(4) The welfare department should counsel their subjects. Some college and high school students need this, too.

(5) The city should issue fines for dirty lots.

In Minnesota, penalties for littering are: For cigarette butts or wrappers, $25; for a bottle or tin can, $100; for large amounts, $300, with additional fines to cover the cost of the clean-up.

Thank you for helping.

To The Editor:

This letter is written concerning the front page article in Monday's issue of the Times regarding Charlie Oakes and the Thief River Falls Activity Center.

I would like to know why if Mr. Oakes felt that the issue concerning Mrs. Sigerud and Mrs. Johnson as of May 14 was an internal matter, he has now decided that it is a public matter? He was given an opportunity prior to May 14 to make his statement to the Herald but refused. Is he not now also in violation of his own policy making?

I find it repugnant to read the one-sided article in the Times. Why weren't Mrs. Sigerud and Mrs. Johnson contacted by Mr. Hill before the printing of his report like Ms. Bailey did Mr. Oakes?

Not everyone subscribes to both papers and the Times article definitely reflects a biased attitude. If the Times is going to use other newspapers' articles as sources for their stories, why not include more than bits and pieces?

I wonder how Ms. Bailey, the Herald reporter, feels being accused of writing a biased story? Maybe she was not given a chance to defend herself just like Mrs. Sigerud and Mrs. Johnson.

As a parent who is very concerned about the rights of the physically and mentally handicapped, I find it hard to believe that an agency providing services for these clients would have a policy prohibiting staff or employees from contacting the media with concerns that they feel should be made public. I would certainly think twice about using that agency as it would lead me to believe they may have something to hide.

I have enclosed the editorial from the Grand Forks Herald. I would like to see the Times print it in all fairness to Mrs. Sigerud and Mrs. Johnson.

Sincerely,
Marie Wiseth

Farm Conditions Give Indications Of Upward Turn

Results of a Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis survey indicate that regional agricultural conditions show signs of turning upward.

Federal Reserve economist Stanley L. Graham reports that 52 per cent of surveyed bankers in midwestern agricultural states said first-quarter net farm income in their area was greater than a year ago, while only five per cent said income was lower. The first quarter improvements in farmers' income were mainly due to:

+ Expanded government farm programs;

+ Increased profits from livestock sales — mostly cattle and hogs.

+ Lower prices for land rents, feed, fertilizer and fuel; and

+ Lower interest rates

In addition to the favorable news about farm income, the survey indicates that area farmland values declined very little — if at all — in the first quarter.

The survey also indicates a lower percentage of farmers with serious financial problems. Since March of 1986, 3.9 per cent of the farmers in the region went out of business due to financial stress, and 7.8 per cent partially liquidated assets. Both rates are substantially below those reported over the year ending in October of 1986.

Graham reports the quality of agricultural loans and liquidity at rural banks improved in the first quarter. The loan-to-deposit ratio at regional banks declined, on average, to 52 per cent in late March, down from 54 per cent in December and 59 per cent a year ago.

The survey results are based on the late-March responses of 102 bankers in rural areas of Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and northwestern Wisconsin.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

They say there are always two sides to every issue, but for the life of me I cannot make any sense at all of the arguments against reform of our liability and tort laws.

To be sure, there are many outspoken opponents of reform, including trial lawyers and consumer activists like Ralph Nader. But while they rant and rave loudly against reform, their words are long on volume and short on logic.

The general thrust of their argument is that the insurance industry, not the legal system, is primarily responsible for the liability insurance crisis. Insurance companies are making money hand over fist, they contend, and could easily afford to write liability policies if only they weren't so greedy.

But there is a fundamental flaw in that line of reasoning. Insurance companies are businesses, not charities, and as such are engaged in the process of making money, not giving it away. It isn't a matter of greed. Rather, it is a matter of ethical, moral and legal responsibility to stockholders.

There is nothing mysterious about the insurance business. As in any business, it basically boils down to making certain the income exceeds the outgo.

An insurance company has two main sources of income — money paid to it in premiums for policies and money made through investments of those premium dollars.

An insurance company has one main expense other than personnel and administrative costs — paying insurance claims. Thus, it is imperative that every insurance company make certain its income from premiums and investments will exceed its payout for claims.

To accomplish this, they make projections based upon experience. They are able to surmise, for example, that a driver with a clean record is less likely to have an accident than one with three drunken driving convictions. The cost of an insurance policy, whether it be for cars, houses or life, is based upon proven experience used to project the payout on claims.

Today, we see the cost of liability insurance going through the roof, in some cases unavailable at any price, and the reason is simple. The law has become so open-ended and unpredictable that insurance companies can no longer make rational projections of what the payout on claims will be. Liability insurance has become a form of Russian roulette that insurance firms are reluctant to get involved in, and wisely so.

There is one, and only one, viable solution to this crisis. We must bring reason and restraint back to liability law. We need product liability reform on the federal level and tort law reform on the state level. Until such reforms are achieved, liability will remain totally unpredictable and the cost of liability insurance, when it is available at all, will remain out of sight.

DO THE YELLOW PAGES TAKE TOO BIG A BITE OUT OF YOUR ADVERTISING BUDGET
IF THE ANSWER IS YES, THE TIMES CAN SHOW YOU HOW TO TRIM YOUR YELLOW PAGE BUDGET AND STILL GET RESULTS.
SOME MYTHS AND FACTS
Myth: Yellow Page advertising is creative, active advertising.
Fact: It's hard to be creative when you have to limit your message. Harder still when you realize you can only change that ad once a year. Yellow Page advertising by necessity is stagnant, passive advertising. Your products change. Your services offered change. Your prices change. Your customers change. So should your advertising.
Myth: Yellow Pages sell products.
Fact: Yellow Pages are not designed to sell. They are intended to be a directory. That's why you can't advertise the prices of your services or products. And, often you can't advertise that you are the best or the biggest. You really can't tell the reader why he should choose you over your competitor. Plus, many consumers shop for convenience and will pick a store close to their home or office — regardless of size or ad or brand names and product. Remember, the purpose of advertising is to sell goods and services, as well as build high levels of recall.
Myth: Yellow Pages create brand awareness.
Fact: Brand awareness or store image are important parts of your advertising plan. If Yellow Pages did in fact build awareness, then you would see large ads for Wards, Walgreens, Shopko, Target or even Northwestern Bell or AT&T themselves in the Yellow Pages. But, you don't see these advertisers using the Yellow Pages to create awareness of their product or store.
Myth: It's best to have your ad at the beginning of a classification in the Yellow Pages.
Fact: Yellow Pages are designed with big ads at the head of the classification, and small ads last. And you are told that in order to get to the head of the list you need to buy the biggest ad. But biggest isn't always best. See for yourself. Pick up the phone book and find your ad. Nine times out of ten, you start at the back and flip pages toward the front. When you do, you'll see the smallest ads first.
Myth: Yellow Pages reach a large audience that reads them regularly.
Fact: The actual number of copies of the Yellow Pages which are distributed is often misleading. Many households receive more than one copy, not to mention multiple books in offices which may never be used. Also, the Yellow Pages are closed about 90% of the time, and are used by the average adult about 3 times a month or 34 times a year. By comparison, look at your newspaper's total circulation. The newspaper reaches your target audience 104 times a year, giving you much greater exposure.

Kelly Leppala Studies Robotics At NDSU As Member Of Club

Kelly Leppala of Thief River Falls, a member of the Robotics club at North Dakota state university in Fargo, is receiving hands-on experience while applying what she has learned in the classroom by reasoning, designing and assembling a robot.

Leppala is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dablow of Thief River Falls. She is active in the Society of Women Engineers and the American Society of Mechanical Engineering.

The Robotics club consists of 19 members serving on five committees exploring and planning the various mechanisms needed to develop a modular robotic device that will be expandable, micro-processor controllable and self-powered. The group of ambitious engineers has the opprotunity to experiment, test and work in the field of robotics, gaining experience while expanding on classroom theory.

Construction of a robotic device begins with the carriage. Tim Etherington is president of IEEE (Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers) and spokesperson for the carriage committee. He explained that the carriage is a mechanical platform with wheels driven by motors.

The carriage consists of a platform 13 inches wide and 18 inches long supported by two six-inch diameter wheels that rotate independently on a single axle and one six-inch diameter front wheel that drives and steers the carriage. The entire carriage is constructed of aluminum to minimize weight. The three-wheeled carriage is driven and steered by stepper motors.

A motor capable of rotating in either direction, the stepper motor will start and stop at various mechanical rotational positions. The shaft (rotor) moves in precise angular increments for each input change directed to the carriage. It allows for control of position, velocity, distance and direction.

Controlling and moving a device are the most fundamental concerns in robotics design. The operating system employed by the carriage constructed in 1985 wasn't fully implemented at that time and contained several bugs that needed to be worked out. Members of the Robotics club have been working on the drive circuit problem.

"We have a design on paper and now we're at the point of putting it together and testing it," Etherington said.

Robotics club members serving on the carriage committee with Etherington, a senior majoring in electrical and electronic engineering, are Tom Van Wie, a freshman majoring in electrical and electronic engineering from Fargo, ND; Paul Ireland, a senior majoring in engineering physics from LaMoure, ND; and Tom Stacey, a senior majoring in electrical and electronic engineering from Hopkins.

The carriage, viewed as an intelligent device, will accept control commands to direct its actions. An onboard microcomputer, the host, serves as overall robotic controller and command interpreter by executing commands directed by a different higher level computer via radio link.

"It is very specialized due to the host's ability to control everything, each module has its own microcomputer controlled by the host," said Paul Ganfield, spokesperson for the host committee.

The group utilizes spare parts and equipment available in the engineering department including the personal computers (PC).

Ganfield, a junior majoring in electrical and electronic engineering from West Fargo said, "The toughest problem has been working with a computer system that is not multi*tasked*."

Christine Bring, a junior majoring in electrical and electronic engineering with a computer option from Galesburg, ND; Rodney Nielson, an electrical and electronic graduate student from New England, ND; and David Merbach, a senior majoring in electrical and electronic engineering from Wahpeton, work with Ganfield on the host committee.

"There are two ways to operate the robot," said Etherington. "One is what we call real time. This is where somebody will sit down at a PC and type in a command on the keyboard telling it to move forward so many feet. The radio link would send that message to the host. Then it would send that command to the computer on the carriage control module which would control the motors and move robot.

"The other way would involve a whole sequence of commands developed on the PC and these commands would be compiled and embedded in a program. The complete program would be sent to the host computer. Then the host computer would execute the program."

These operation methods would enable the robotic device to do a single action immediately while someone watches or it can carry out a series of actions programmed for a later time.

The connection between the PC and host computer, the radio link, has been researched and is close to being tested, said Etherington. Members working with the radio link are Jeff Haugen, majoring in computer engineering from Ely, and Bernadine Goerger from Wahpeton, ND, Dave Bisel from Eagle Bend, Racheel Yuhanna from Nigeria, Brian Allmaras from New Rockford, ND, and Roy Bandy from Fargo, ND, all majoring in electrical and electronic engineering.

Another area being researched by other members of the Robotics club is vision-ultrasonics.

Committee members including Mark Menzie, majoring in mechanical engineering from Fargo, and Megan Everett, majoring in electrical and electronic engineering from Fargo are investigating forward vision for the robotic along with ultrasonics. These would be used for object detection and object avoidance.

The fifth committee is composed of Leppala from Thief River Falls and Carrie Illies from Wahpeton, ND, mechanical engineering students, and Joe Check, an electrical and electronic engineering student from Rochester. They are researching designs for a controlled pneumatic limb.

The goal of the Robotics club is to have the robot be autonomous. "The carriage will be moving by the end of this quarter," said Etherington. "Another goal the group has for the robot is to program it to navigate through an interior environment sensing and avoiding walls and objects."

An ongoing goal of the group is getting people involved by allowing them to work with a project that directly correlates with what they are learning in class and will use in the future.

Development of future projects depends on funding. Presently, the members use available equipment and parts from the engineering department. Some students spend their own money on materials for the robot. Areas of funding are being investigated by club members.

Ernie Anderson, professor emeritus and advisor of the Robotics club, would like the club to develop into a mock company. This would give students first-hand feel for an organization.

"Students would gain teamwork experience regarding what is involved with getting a design concept all the way to a completed project," Anderson said.

Medical Center To Be Smoke Free By March 1, 1988

Effective May 15, Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls began phasing out smoking within the facility by the establishment of a limited number of areas in which smoking will be permitted.

Recently, much attention has been focused on a national, state and local level about establishing hospitals and other health care facilities as smoke free environments. In Minnesota, the Minnesota Coalition for a Smoke Free Society 2000 has established a goal that all Minnesota hospitals will be smoke free by 1990. This goal had been endorsed by many groups, including the Minnesota Hospital association, Minnesota Nurses association, Minnesota Medical association, American Cancer society and American Heart association.

Currently, 27 Minnesota hospitals, (both small and large) have either already adopted smoke free policies or have made the commitment to achieve a smoke free environment in the near future.

After studying the smoke free issue, the Northwest Medical center board of directors unanimously adopted a policy regarding the establishment of a smoke free environment. Northwest Medical center is now committed to becoming a smoke free facility by Mach 1, 1988. In mandating this change, the board of directors allowed for the provision of inteim smoking lounges to be established, with the intent that these lounges be phased out by no later then March 1, 1988.

Employees at Northwest Medical center will be provided with smoking lounges separate from patients. Visitors will be asked to use the north lobby area to smoke. Patients and residents will be allowed to smoke if they first have a prescription from their physician.

"This policy direction represents a challenge for all of us at Northwest Medical Center. However, it is a challenge which is being addressed and met by a number of similar organizations, and one which will impact quite positively on the quality of care delivered at our facility. The support and cooperation of visitors and patients is appreciated," stated Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at the medical center.

June 1 Is Magic Date With IRS For W-4 Filing

Most people think of April 15 as the only tax deadline. June 1 is not a "tax deadline" but it is a very important date for workers to keep in mind this year, according to C.D. Switzer, director of the IRS in Minnesota.

If a worker has not filed a new form W-4 or W-4A with his or her employer, there are many good reasons to do so before June 1, 1987. "When a good faith effort has been made to file a withholding form before June 1 and then later it is found that too little tax has been withheld from wages, IRS will not impose a penalty," Switzer said.

The waiver of the penalty does not apply to income from non-wage sources, such as self-employment income and investment income.

Generally, people can avoid the penalty if their withholding plus estimated tax payments during the year equal at least 90 per cent of their tax liability for the year, or 100 per cent of their tax liability for 1986. The penalty is nine per cent of a person's underpaid tax.

Another reason to file a new W-4 is that many of the deductions and credits people used in the past to claim additional withholding allowances have been either reduced or eliminated by the new tax law. "If the tax law changes mean you have to have more tax withheld from your paycheck, it's better to have that start now, than near the end of the year," Switzer said.

The most significant items repealed include the deduction for a married couple when both work (Schedule W), income averaging (Schedule G), and the charitable deduction for persons not itemizing. Long-term capital gains are fully taxable for 1987. Also, consumer and investment interest and Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs) have new limitations.

There is free tax help available. Call Tele-Tax at 1-800-554-4477 and listen to tape number 999. It will tell about the W-4 and the new W-4A form. A free IRS booklet, publication 919, "Is My Withholding Correct?", has more details on income tax withholding.

TRF Study Area Preferred Site For OTH-B Radar

To the delight of some, concern of others and interest of most, the United States Air Force released an environmental impact statement Friday which specifies the Thief River Falls study area as the preferred site for location of a radar receive site. Preferred site for the system transmitter has been announced as Amherst, SD.

Col. James Lee, director of the Over-the-Horizon radar systems directorate at Hanscom air force base in Massachusetts, told the Times Friday that the study site west of Thief River Falls was listed as a preferred site largely because of the larger area of land available to site receive antennae for the system. Its topography is also such that the site preparation will have minimal environmental impact, he said.

The colonel said he and the air force were appreciative of the active participation of people in the community, at initial scoping meetings through to the final hearing and comment period.

"The final hearing in particular showed intense interest," he said, "both among the proponents of the project and people opposed. The people involved conducted themselves extremely well and are to be commended for their interest and decorum."

While the preferred site status in the environmental impact statement is not a final approval, it is not likely that any changes will be made before a "record of decision" is filed by the office of the Secretary of the Air Force about the end of June. Continuation of the process is also contingent upon Congress funding the project.

In anticipation of the issuance of the record of decision, the air force will send a letter to all landowners in the proposed site area, announcing a public meeting to explain the process of land purchase or lease. Col. Lee said the leasing of property so that it could remain in the family name was first brought up at scoping meetings here and was given approval as an added mitigation measure. The meeting with land owners would be expected to be held this July or August.

Col. Lee said the air force has no particular preference to buy or lease and likely would not choose one method of land acquisition over the other. He said that although the real estate division of the U.S. army corps of engineers would be the agent for acquisition, he expects to personally return to this area prior to the landowner meeting to do some follow-up work.

The air force will be looking for approximately 2,400 acres of land which will be in four sites approximately 10,000 feet long and half a mile wide. Two of the sites will be located in a diagonal position facing southwest and southeast, and if that positioning creates remnants of property which can not be conveniently farmed or maintained, the air force will acquire that additional property, Col. Lee said.

Because the receive antenna will be continuous for about 8,000 linear feet, it may be possible that existing roadways will be closed and re-routed around the site. Such roads can be in close proximity to the security fencing, he said, and traffic patterns are such that it is not believed the sites will affect well-traveled roads.

Col. Lee also said that an advantage of the site was that location of the receivers could be accomplished with very little change to the existing contour. This would mean that drainage courses should not be affected.

While the air force and corps of engineers will be working with land owners through the end of September in an attempt to nail down specific site areas, no contracts can be signed until at least October when the next fiscal year begins. Construction would not get underway until the spring of 1989 and a three-year construction period would mean the project would not be operational until the early to mid 1990's.

Construction would be accomplished by a system contractor (General Electric is the system contractor for one phase of the OTH-B program) which would be encouraged to subcontract work locally, Col Lee said. The system contractor would also conduct the operation and maintenance once the system became operational, hiring the technical personnel required to operate the site.

T.R.F. OTH-B RADAR STUDY AREA

JAY BRUNNER, director of the Northwest Regional Development commission since its offices were transferred from Crookston to Thief River Falls last year, has resigned as director of the organization. Brunner moved here from Alaska to take over the directorship. Resignation was made to the commission's personnel committee and a search for a successor has begun.

Property Likely To Be Available For OTH-B Siting

When the U.S. air force and the real estate division of the U.S. army corps of engineers comes into the area looking for land to site its OTH-B radar receiver antennae, they are likely to find a number of land owners willing to lease or rent their property.

That is the assessment of Don Stewart, executive director of Jobs Incorporated of Thief River Falls, who said the organization has a list of 24 to 26 people in the study area who have indicated they would be willing to discuss sale or lease of their property.

"During the course of the winter we have had a number of people in the study area contact us and ask if there was anything they could do or if anything was being done that would help them arrange for sale or lease of their land," Stewart said. "Within that group there may be one or two or more who, if the location and configuration were right, could supply the air force with all of the land it needs for the entire project."

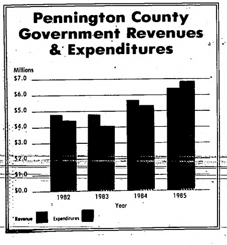
Carlson Releases Financial Health Profile For County



State Auditor Arne Carlson said today that his survey of financial profiles for the Minnesota's 87 counties found good management on the part of local governments.

"Overall," Carlson said, "county governments appear to be operating prudently and adjusting well to changing economic conditions in their counties. However, some regions of the state continue to show signs of financial stress due to the continued recessions in the farming, mining and timber industry areas."

One of the most positive findings in the survey, according to Carlson, is that counties are attempting to maintain their fund balances. "Although our office has been recommending for several years that fund balances be strengthened," he said, "we know this is difficult to do with continued unemployment, an overall decline in property values, and the increasing shift of responsibilities and programs from federal and state to local governmental units."

"A healthy fund balance assures sufficient cash flow for normal operations," Carlson continued. "This protects a county in the event of a financial emergency." Pennington county's year-end general fund balance was $740,461, which was 13.4 per cent of total current expenditures.

The 1985 population for Pennington county is estimated by the State demographer to be 13,880. This is a decrease of 3.7 per cent from 1982 to 1985 and a decrease of 1.1 per cent from 1984 to 1985.

Pennington county's indicated market value decreased by 17.3 per cent during the period from 1984 to 1985 compared to the statewide average decrease of 2.0 per cent for the same period.

Retail sales in the county increased by 21.7 per cent from 1982 to 1985. During the same period, the statewide average retail sales increased by 28.5 per cent.

There were 515 people receiving AFDC assistance in 1985 compared to 458 in 1984 and 391 in 1982. Any increase reflects a need for expanding human services.

The county government's total revenues per capita were $462.02. Current expenditures were $398.03 per cent capita as compared to $421.73 per capita statewide. This represents an increase of 7.1 per cent from 1984 to 1985 and a 33.4 per cent increase from 1982 to 1985. Total expenditures (including capital outlays) were $486.39 per capita, a 30.4 per cent increase from 1984 to 1985.

The county's general obligation debt was $171.83 per capita in 1985. Its special assessment debt was $7.20 per capita.

Debt service was 4.6 per cent of total revenues. Carlson said this statistic is important because it reflects the portion of future revenues which has already been committed.

Carlson said that while county fund balance and debt service requirements are good barometers of financial condition, they should be analyzed in a broad context.

"Elected officials and county managers should review finances carefully, spot long-term trends and consider unique local circumstances before reaching conclusions based on one or two statistics," he said.

Extend Producer Payments For MN Ethanol

Minnesota Senate and House of representatives passed HF 777 on the final day of the 1987 legislative session. The House vote was recorded as 114 yeas and 17 nays; the Senate vote was 59 yeas and 4 nays.

HF 777 called for extension of the producer payments until June 30, 2000, for ethanol produced in Minnesota. Also included in the bill was an appropriation of $200 thousand for the biennium, for the purpose of promoting ethanol. The promotional funds are to be administered by the commissioner of agriculture.

Amended version of HF 777 that was passed by the legislature differed from the original version, in that the requirement for unleaded fuels to contain 10 per cent ethanol, was deleted.

"We don't feel that this legislation was as strong a commitment as the legislature could have made in setting an energy policy that would also address environmental issues dealing with carbon monoxide," said Gayle Bergstrom, president of the Minnesota Corn Growers association.

"Also it shows the continued de-emphasis towards agriculture by the state legislature, but we cannot totally blame our elected officials for lack of interest, until the agricultural community is willing to publicly get involved in ag issues."

TRF Study Area Preferred Site For OTH-B Radar

people expected to be employed full-time once the site is operational would be security personnel hired under federal civil service. At present those entry-level jobs pay about $20,000 per year, the colonel said. Again the emphasis will be on finding people in the local area to fill the positions. Only two or three uniformed military people would be connected with the site.

Col. Lee said that once final approval and funding area received, construction will proceed simultaneously with the transmit site at Amherst, SD, the receive site near Thief River Falls and the main operational headquarters at the Grand Forks air force base.

While acknowledging that the South Dakota site was met with considerably less opposition than the proposed Wheaton site, Col. Lee said that a major consideration in the Amherst area — similar to the Thief River Falls area — was the much larger area available from which to secure the operational sites needed.

The final environmental impact statement consists of two volumes, each over an inch thick, Col. Lee said. The printed statements used a process by which a number of the letters were reduced to half size so that more than one could be printed on a page. Had all testimony and written comments been included in regular form, he said, the EIS would have involved about 1,500 pages.

Col. Lee said the documents were being sent by first class mail from Washington on Friday, the same day the contents were announced, and should be received by the middle of next week. The Times has requested a copy and when received it will be available for public review by anyone interested at this office. A copy should also be available at the Thief River Falls public library.

Dr. Ed Bratrud, 98

Alexandria — Funeral services were scheduled for Saturday, May 23, at the First Lutheran church of Alexandria for Dr. Ed Bratrud, who died last Monday at the Knute Nelson Memorial home in Alexandria surrounded by members of his family. Interment was to be in Spring Valley. Rev. Milton Bratrud officiated at the service.

Olaf Edward Bratrud was born at Root Prairie, near Fountain, in Fillmore county, Nov. 7, 1888, youngest in a family of seven children of Olaf Christian Bratrud and Elsie Thorgrimson Bratrud. Ole Bratrud immigrated from Norway to America in 1847, and homesteaded in Root Prairie in 1853.

Dr. Ed graduated from Spring Valley high school in 1907, and attended the University of Minnesota for six years, graduating with a bachelor's degree and master's degree. He interned at City and County Hospital in St. Paul, as did his brothers, Dr. Theodor and Dr. Arthur before him. He spent several years with the Gopher football squad at the University and summers, with the Forest Patrol and railroading.

After his internship, he spent two years in Fertile and then came to Warren with his brothers Theodor and Art and Dr. Milan at the Bratrud Clinic, founded by Dr. Theodor after study in Austria. The brothers passed up an opportunity with the Mayo brothers in Rochester in favor of their own clinic.

Dr. Ed Bratrud was elected to membership in the American College of surgeons in 1921, and to the American Urological association in 1930. Dr. Theodor financed and built the St. Luke's hospital in Thief River Falls in 1929 and 1930, but died before the move there in 1931. Dr. Ed became chief of staff at St. Luke's and the Bratrud clinic, and served in that capacity until he retired in favor of his son, Dr. Theodor Edward Bratrud, in 1946.

Both Dr. Ed and Dr. Ted ceased medical practice at Thief River Falls in 1956, Dr. Ed retiring and Dr. Ted moving to Arizona, where he died in 1976.

Dr. Ed was an avid outdoorsman, with his work in the forest service of the north woods increasing his desire for conservation of natural resources. He chaired the Northwest Association of conservation clubs for many years. One of the accomplishments of the club was the creation of the Roseau Wildlife Project.

Dr. Ed was a member and part time chairman of Governor Youngdahl's and Governor Anderson's Conservation Advisory commission, which passed judgment on many controversial matters of hunting, fishing, drainage and mining.

He and his wife, Lois, designed and built their retirement home on the Northeast shore (Neewana Beach) of Lake Geneva, where he explored the Lakes Region and lived out his life.

Like his father before him, a staunch and dedicated Republican in the Lincoln tradition, Dr. Ed was vice-chairman for U.S. Representative Harold Hagen in the old eighth district, and was delegate to the 1948 Republican convention at Philadelphia, seeking to elect H. Stassen.

In a letter to Dr. Ed in May of 1986, President Reagan thanked him for his friendship, his "Spirit of the West" and his patriotism and lifelong support. James Bratrud, grandson of Dr. Ed, stated, "It was a fitting tribute to a humble man, possessed of great integrity and a love for his fellow man. His legacy will endure." Bratrud ended his tribute to his grandfather with the following excerpt from the Hippocratic Oath: "With Purity and with Holiness I will pass my life and practice my art."

Property Likely To Be Available For Radar Site

Stewart said his office had been inundated with news media people throughout much of the day Friday after the announcement of Thief River Falls as a preferred site was made. One television news helicopter was re-routed here while on a flight to Wheaton in anticipation that the transmit site would be recommended there. The transmit site was given an Amherst, SD, preference instead.

Pleased with the announcement because of the potential economic impact for the area, Stewart said it caught him more or less unprepared because he has been giving more attention recently to other possible projects for the area. He noted that much of his optimism about the OTH-B project here was expressed in the comments he made to the OTH-B hearing in Thief River Falls November 20 of last year.

"Any project, no matter what its nature, has impacts on the area where it is sited," Stewart said at that hearing. "Early in our (Jobs Inc.) involvement we asked many of the same questions that have been raised by concerned citizens since the first hearing on the draft environmental impact statement was held in Grand Forks in September.

"Obviously, because of the nature of our organization, we cannot afford to be involved in a project that would be detrimental to the safety or well-being of the citizens of our area. We believe that such issues have been adequately addressed and that this receiver facility, which is largely a passive installation, represents no threat to public safety.

". . . . We were and continue to be assured by the air force that no one will be forced from their home, that land will be acquired at fair prices only from willing sellers, and eminent domain (condemnation) procedures will not be used if they can possibly be avoided."

Stewart also pointed out in his testimony that there are at least two sites of adequate size for the complete facility that would require no relocation of roads, no destruction of woodlands or wetlands, and would be over a mile from the nearest homestead.

Prior to receiving a scheduled call from Col. James Lee, director of the OTH-B radar systems directorate at Hanscom AFB in Massachusetts, the Times attempted to contact Don Dyrdal, primary spokesman for the group actively opposing the siting in this area. Dyrdal was out of state for a few days and unavailable for comment.

Others involved with opposition chose not to be quoted, indicating that they believed they had represented their positions earlier as best they could but were apparently unable to convince the air force not to locate the site in this area. They said they still have some of the concerns expressed at the final hearing, but that they didn't expect any further opposition efforts now that a decision has apparently been reached.

The question arose about what would happen if a farmer had placed his land in a long-term conservation reserve program and then wanted to sell or lease the land to the air force. Phil Bergland, director of te Pennington county ASCS office which administers the conservation reserve program, said he would expect that such a landowner would be released from his contract in order to make land available to the air force for its defense program.

"That would seem to only make sense," he said.

But although the land leased by the air force for the receive sites would basically be maintained in a conserving use, the landowner would not be allowed to rent to the air force force and still receive a CRP payment. Such a circumstance, known as double-dipping, would be frowned upon by the U.S. department of agriculture.

Although the Thief River Falls and Amherst, SD, areas stand to gain some 50 jobs each, and real winner economically is likely to be Grand Forks, ND. The headquarters facility to be constructed at the Grand Forks air force base will be expected to employ about 350 people.

Annual Preschool Screening Clinic In TRF June 1-3

On June 1-3 the Thief River Falls public schools will be conducting the annual preschool screening clinic, designed to check the current status of children ages three and one-half to four and one-half in the areas of vision, hearing, speech, language and development.

The screening is conducted by trained professionals from the public school system and the county public health services and is provided at no cost to the parent.

Those who have a child who falls within the ages of three and one-half to four and one-half who will not turn five prior to Sept. 1, 1987 and have not been contacted by the school system, are asked to please call Roxi Nicholson at 681-2700, extension 240, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Preschool screening is a program intended to assist parents in making their child ready for entry into school. For answers to further questions, contact the office of the superintendent, Thief River Falls public schools, 681-2700, extenion 291.

Pamphlet Shows Bunk Bed Danger

A sleeping child tucked safely and snugly in a bunk bed hardly looks like a potential accident victim. However, since 1973 at least 18 children have died, and each year between 20,000 and 30,000 suffer injuries in bunk bed accidents.

To help parents with bunk beds protect the safety of their children, the National Safety Council is offering a new brochure, "Operation Bed Check." The colorful six-panel pamphlet lists the most common hazards associated with bunk beds and describes how consumers can safeguard their families from injuries. Included are tips on:

+ Helping to protect against falls and entrapment;

+ Securing mattress supports and guardrails;

+ Eliminating hazardous gaps between guardrails and mattress; and

+ Maintaining a bunk bed.

For a free single copy of "Operation Bed Check", send a stamped (22 cent) self-addressed business-sized (No. 10) envelope, along with your request to Department PR-BB, National Safety Council, 444 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60611. Bulk quantities are also available.

Dear Readers,
How can we best memorialize our dead? One suggestion made is to list the finest qualities of our loved ones who have passed on . . . then to make a firm resolve to cultivate those fine qualities in our own way of life. It could work wonders, in a generation or two, to produce a happier life style.
Respectfully,

The cologne supposedly is made from the finest imported perfume oils, and the deodorant is of the roll-on variety. Apply these substances once a week, and your favorite dog or cat will never be accused — even by its worst enemy — of suffering from pet odor." (Norman County Index)

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am writing in response to the ad in the Times 5-20-87, second section, page 10, announcing the closing of the Satellite Drive-In.

I cannot believe the management (Jerry Hickerson) blaming the Pennington County Sheriff's Dep't. for his loss in business.

To blame them for your business failing is ridiculous. I think their main objective is to protect, not persecute or harass. With all the attention given to drinking and driving, one would think Mr. Hickerson could understand their actions.

There have been a lot worse things happening in Thief River Falls over the last few years than the loss of six or seven part-time, low-paying jobs.

I myself am no saint, as I have done my share of drinking, etc., at the very same drive-in, both as a minor and an adult. As some of your lost customers are now doing, I've had to pay my dues for my actions.

Perhaps instead of blaming the Sheriff's Dep't., we and you should thank them. They may have saved a life ..... perhaps yours.

Thank you,
Craig Larson

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

A Real Button Popper!

For those who believe their conduct many miles away from home isn't all that important, or that responsibility for community promotion is best left to professional organization, the letter received recently by Supt. of Schools Leo Ruberto in Thief River Falls should be an eye-opener.

While the letter was not written for public release, we don't think that Dr. Alan D. Eastman of the Phillips 66 Company in Bartlesville, OK, would mind if we shared his comments. They are a real community button-popper! Dr. Eastman writes to the superintendent of schools as follows:

Dear Sir:

I was recently in Minneapolis on business and ran into some of your young people on a band trip; I thought you would be interested in my impressions. I was eating breakfast in the hotel dining room when a group of high school kids came in to eat. They were nicely dressed, the girls in dresses and the boys in tie and jacket, and comported themselves so maturely that it was hard to believe that they were high school students.

I started a conversation with those at the adjacent table, and discovered that they were from Thief River Falls, and that, in addition to looking good, they were capable of intelligent conversation. When I paid my bill, the clerk was surprised to learn that the group was a high school band; she had thought they were models getting ready to do a Sears catalog or something, because they were so well dressed and behaved!

You and the facility and parents of your school district deserve high praise for raising and training such an outstanding group of kids. And the students themselves deserve a good pat on the back for showing that they can have fun (which they obviously were doing) without passing the bounds of good judgment.

I only hope that my kids will be such good examples when they are old enough to go on band trips. Unfortunately, here in Oklahoma the odds are not too good; there are just too many cowboy types who think that rowdiness is the only way to have fun.

I've never been to Thief River Falls, and may never get there, but it must be a wonderful place to produce such students, and by extension, such parents and school personnel.

Sincerely,
Alan D. Eastman

Now doesn't something like that brighten up your day?

What A Change!

Bjorn Bjornson, brother of the late Val Bjornson who was Minnesota state treasurer for many years, writes a column in the Minnesota Newspaper association's weekly bulletin from time to time. One of his recent offerings contained the following comments:

What a change 50 years can make! I'm not referring to the inexorable changes that time brings to us all as we grow older. I was struck by the change that time has brought to public attitudes when I read a 50-years-ago column in my hometown newspaper, The Minnesota Mascot. I was editor of the paper at that time, but I have no recollection of the news item I am about to quote; it was most likely a routine report that must have appeared in all Lyon county newspapers fifty years ago. Here it is:

"The Lyon County Welfare Board, at its meeting on April 8, adopted a resolution which will deny direct relief to any car owner or gambler. Gilbert F. Flynn, county relief worker, in explaining the action of the board, said that it had been brought to the attention of the board that many people receiving direct relief from the county relief office own and operate automobiles and that many persons who are heads of families seeking direct relief are in the habit of playing cards at various card parlors in the county and in other ways spending money that they may earn from time to time, without using such money for the purchase of necessities for their families."

When this appeared in the Minnesota Mascot of April 16, 1937, President Roosevelt was in his second term. WPA and other federal alphabetical agencies had been functioning for four or five years, but the depression was still rampant and unemployment was at or near an all-time high. Those were tough times, that were sometimes met with tough measures.

Can you imagine what a loud outcry there would be today if welfare recipients were denied their automobiles, an occasional game of gin rummy, or their TV sets, video cassette recorders, movies, etc. My guess is that there would be a revolution within the hour.

Figuring Profit On Assets

A recent article by Bob Dunaway, editor of Farm Credit Services' "Farming" magazine, gives some interesting information and suggestions on how farmers can look at evaluating their operations. Not everyone can do a lot about it, but most can do something to effect improvement.

"You need to get a decent profit percentage on your total assets, both borrowed and equity capital," Dunaway said, and that comes as no new news to anyone. "Ideally, you ought to get a rate of return on assets equal to the rate you're paying for borrowed money or the rate you could get on your own money invested in CD's— plus a few extra percentage points to pay for the risk you're taking in farming. If you can't do that, why bother taking risk and doing all the work?

"Return on assets isn't the easiest financial concept to get a handle on, but it's a doggone good measure of how you're doing," Dunaway said.

In analysis of farm records summaries by Farm Credit Services of St. Paul, the high one-third profit farmers averaged a 6.05 per cent return on assets. They were paying all their costs out of earnings, living quite well and still adding to their equity. They were carrying a debt load of 42 per cent of their total assets. Their average interest rate was about 9.85 per cent, putting their break-even return on assets at about 4.1 per cent (42 x 9.85 per cent).

The low one-third have an average negative 3.17 per cent return on assets. They don't have enough earnings to pay their costs, and are digging into their equity to pay some of their farm expenses, interest and all their living costs.

In dollars, they sold an average of $149,475 of farm production but their total farm costs averaged $190,810—a $41,335 loss. They also spent $18,867 for living, thereby pulling a total of $60,202 out of their equity. Off-farm income averaged $11,362, reducing the equity depletion to $48,840.

"At the rate they're going, they'll be broke in four years," Dunaway said. "What's happening is they're living off depreciation, having to sell assets or are borrowing more money against their assets to live. It's like a giant slide—the further down you get, the faster you go."

If a farmer is paying an average of 10 per cent interest and owes 40 per cent of the total value of his assets, he has to get a four per cent return on his assets to break even (40 x 10 per cent). A farmer with 100 per cent debt has to get a 10 per cent return to break even. At zero per cent debt, a farmer should realize that he could have earned seven or eight per cent if the capital was invested somewhere else.

The formula used to figure return on assets is: Net farm income plus interest paid minus living expenses over average value of farm assets. Converted to dollars, that formula for the top third profit farmers in the Farm Credit Services study would look like this:

$$\frac{$36{,}932 + $26{,}067 - $24{,}770}{$631{,}653} = 6.05\%$$

In figuring each farm's return, an accrual basis must be used. For example, if the return for 1986 is being figured, grain produced in 1985 but sold in 1986 shouldn't be included. But grain produced in 1986 and sold in 1987 should be. Supplies bought in 1985 and used in 1986 should be considered, but supplies bought in 1986 for use in 1987 shouldn't. Interest also must be figured on a January 1 to December 31 basis. Farm living expenses usually must be estimated but must include taxes owed for the year as a living expense.

"You need to figure your return on assets every year," states Steve Sonka, University of Illinios agricultural economist. "Nobody hits the top every year—nor do many land on the bottom year after year. But you can improve your chances by figuring return on assets and using the result to evaluate your management.

YOUR TIMES

by Rep. Allen J. Quist
District 23B

Several weeks ago the Minnesota House of Representatives passed an amendment which I authored to require an AIDS blood test before a Minnesota marriage license can be issued. The House passed that amendment by more than a two to one margin. And a recent poll quoted in the "Wall Street Journal" indicates that over 80 per cent of the United States public supports it as well. Unfortunately, the Senate killed the proposal.

This is why the amendment is so important:

Several officials in the World Health Organization are predicting that AIDS will claim one hundred million lives worldwide within the next few years. They are also predicting that some countries will lose one-fourth of their entire population to AIDS.

We already have 30,000 Minnesotans with AIDS. Just the cost of providing medical treatment to those individuals will be $4 billion, $1,000 for every man, woman and child in the state of Minnesota. Meanwhile, the incidence of AIDS continues to double every twelve months.

Research on AIDS strongly suggests that there will be no vaccine available before the mid-1990's at the earliest, and many experts feel that it may well be impossible to develop any vaccine at all, the reason being that the AIDS virus mutates so rapidly that no single vaccine will be effective.

In our country AIDS is now spreading just as rapidly among heterosexuals as among homosexuals. The disease is brought into a community primarily by the homosexual act of sodomy, but once the disease is rampant, heterosexuals become readily infected as well. And because the virus changes so rapidly, it may develop a capability of spreading in a much more casual way than is now the case.

Meanwhile, the Minnesota Department of Health is using only 1-70th of its budget to deal with AIDS — a pittance. We have the disease of the century staring us in the face, and the Department of Health is unable to adapt itself in such a way as to make major efforts toward AIDS control. The Department of Health is apparently trapped by turf-protecting bureaucracy that plagues all too many agencies of government.

It is my position that the state of Minnesota must begin to take strong steps to prevent major penetration of the AIDS virus into the straight population. One such step is a premarriage blood test. Over 90 per cent of AIDS carriers are unaware of that fact, and if one marriage partner is carrying the AIDS virus, the other partner is almost certain to become infected as well. If the mother is infected, 90 per cent of the children will never see their tenth birthday.

A pre-marriage blood test for AIDS will become law in Minnesota — the only question is when. How many parents and children must die of AIDS before the legislature has the moral courage to take action?

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

On May 19 I attended a County Welfare Board meeting. I was pleased to see our political process at work with so many people on hand to express their opinions in support of having only one DAC in Thief River Falls.

I was profoundly shaken by the opening remark of the board chairman saying they were not going to rescind any earlier decisions. In so saying he implied, 'thanks for coming everyone, but no thanks to your opinions. Just give us your vote next time we run'.

I feel there is only a need for one DAC in Thief River Falls, but I'm not surprised at what transpired. I know when Charlie Oakes left the ODC, Peter Lavalier was very upset and would not give Charlie his vacation pay. He also told Charlie he would run him out of business.

When you consider that Peter Lavalier is a close friend of Gary Erickson, Pennington County Welfare Director, you can see the possibility where new referrals are likely to go. Hence, the ultimate demise of the Falls DAC.

I feel the commissioners who commented about competition were not properly advised or thinking clearly! If we need two DAC's then we need two school systems, two welfare agencies, and so on.

In closing. . . What did I learn? I learned that the 'behind the scenes' political process works very well. . . the open meeting or "grass roots" not too well; but then, why should Thief River Falls expect more than Washington, D.C., with the Iran-Contra affair!

Respectfully,
Terry R. Maddy

TRF Junior Third At Region 8AA Golf Meet . . .

Cornell In State Meet Field

Kelly Cornell, a Thief River Falls junior, came up with a tie for third place at the 1987 Region 8AA girls high school golf meet to earn a berth for the second straight year in the Class AA state meet, scheduled to be held June 3-4 at the Majestic Oaks Golf Course in suburban Ham Lake.

Host Alexandria won Region 8AA championship honors with a 398, followed by Rocori 411, Moorhead 417, Little Falls 421, Thief River Falls 434, Detroit Lakes 458, Brainerd 471, and Fergus Falls 482.

Championship team, plus the top five individual finishers, gained state meet berths.

Sherry Senden of Alexandria and Julie Jamieson of Moorhead shared first place honors with 96. Cornell and Shannon Monahan of Alexandria were just one stroke back at 97. Gretchen Smith of Brainerd and Julie Johnson of Little Falls tied for the fifth and final state meet spot at 98, and Smith won out on a playoff hole. The other ties were not broken.

Ironically, Johnson was eliminated in a similar state meet playoff at last year's Region 8AA meet — a three-way tie that included Cornell, who surprised most observed as a 1986 sophomore.

This spring Cornell and Senden were considered the Region 8AA favorites, according to Thief River Falls coach Al Buhl.

"Kelly did a nice job," said Buhl. "There's quite a difference in being a surprise and being a favorite. I thought she handled the pressure really well."

Cornell had rounds of 48-49 on a waterlogged course. "I thought you would need a 95 to qualify for state," explained Buhl, "but considering the circumstances, the scores were fine. The fairways played well, but the greens were poor."

The rains, which included two inches that fell Wednesday night, continued through the first couple of holes Thursday, subsided, then fell periodically during the day. Wet weather had prohibited the cutting of the greens, greatly affecting the scores.

Cornell, after starting with a triple and a double bogey, recovered to shoot par on four of the next six holes to stay among the leaders.

Thief River Falls; other scores included a 110 by senior Gayle Borchert, a 113 by junior Stacey Cummings, and a 114 by junior Jill Olson.

High School Tennis Tournament . . .

Haugen Reaches 8AA Field

Bret Haugen, a Thief River Falls junior, will be the Prowlers' lone representative at the 1987 Region 8AA high school tennis tournamernt this week in Brainerd.

Haugen's season was extended by a runner-up finish in the singles portion of the North Sub-Region 8AA individual tournament Wednesday at the Southgate Racquet Club in Fargo.

Top four singles and doubles finishers at the North Sub-Region 8AA meet earned Region 8AA berths. They will be joined at the Wednesday event by the top four finishers from the South Sub-Region 8AA singles and doubles competition.

Region 8AA team championship match will be played Tuesday. Moorhead edged Thief River Falls 4-3 last Monday in the North Sub-Region 8AA finals. St. Cloud Tech beat St. Cloud Apollo for the South Sub-Region 8AA team title.

"After being the team runner-up, I was hoping we would get more people to advance in the individual tournament," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, "but the draw had something to do with that. The kids did well."

Moorhead seventh grader Paul Jeffries, the tournament's No. 1 seed, defeated the No. 2-seeded Haugen 6-0, 6-1 in the finals. The match was closer than the score might indicate, pointed out Olson, but Haugen simply didn't come up with the points.

Haugen, after a first round bye, reached the finals by beating Steve Grinnell of Moorhead 6-4, 6-1 and by defeating Scott Wollmering of Bemidit 7-6, 6-0.

"Bret played well," said Olson.

Grant Larson, another Thief River Falls junior, was the Prowlers' second singles entry. He received a first-round bye, then lost a quarterfinal match against Wollmering 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

It was an all-Moorhead final in doubles as No. 7-seeded Joel Johanson and Pat Albrecht upset No. 1-seeded Larry Patnaude and Brian Peterson 6-3, 6-2 for the title.

Thief River Falls' John Dondelinger and Troy Hanestad drew a first round bye in doubles play and lost to Detroit Lakes' Scott Carlson and Brad Harris 6-2, 7-5 in the quarterfinals.

Freshmen Kevin Holmes and Jay Opdahl of the Prowlers were eliminated in first round action by Johanson and Albrecht 6-3, 7-5.

In the South Sub-Region 8AA matches, the top four singles players were Dave Jussila, Tech; Rob Rebischke, Apollo; Mike Musty, Brainerd; and Greg Mischee, Alexandria.

South Sub-Region 8AA doubles qualifiers were Luke Wilken-Dan O'Shea, Tech; Brad Pauley-Wade Bresnahan, Tech; Mike Headley-Brent Gunsbury, Brainerd; and Tony Ross-Jeff McPhee, Apollo.

North Sub-Region 8AA matches were moved from Detroit Lakes to Fargo Wednesday because of rain.

Sweeping changes are apparently in store for Tri-County High School athletic teams after the Karlstad school board voted May 18 not to renew most of the School District 353 coaching contracts for the 1987-88 school year, reported the North Star News in Karlstad.

The move involved four coaches and five coaching positions. The board voted not to renew the teaching contract of non-tenured physical education instructor and head volleyball coach Cindy Ogden, and under advisement by the superintendent, the board also made a separate motion to eliminate her coaching contract.

Erick Heath was also released from his teaching position. Heath, also head boys track coach, has been working under a waiver for the past few years as the district EBD instructor. He does not hold certification in that area and the board is required to release him from the position each year and advertise for a certified instructor.

Two other head coaches — Jeff Westberg, head football and head girls basketball coach, and Ron Ruud, head boys basketball coach — were also removed from their positions following a lengthy discussion.

Westberg, also a junior high track coach, may be re-offered one of the positions for the coming year. Officials were concerned that three coaching positions could possibly create a problem on Westberg's classroom abilities. He is a former Northland Community College football player.

Board member Rich Sele moved to remove Ruud from the head boys basketball position, citing a visible lack of discipline on the court as his reason for the motion.

High school principal and athletic director Earl Lutz commented that he had not seen any instances of discipline problems on the team. Board member Dan Nordine stated he would favor the motion because of philosophical differences. He said he felt that a head coach should be instrumental in influencing the total basketball program in the school, including all of the lower grade team.

The vote passed 6-1 in favor of not renewing the contract.

— News From Minnesota DNR —

Moose Permit Deadline

With the walleye season just begun can moose hunting be far behind? Not quite, but you've got to act fast if you intend to be one of the 5,200 hunters eligible to participate in Minnesota's every-other-year moose hunt coming up this fall. June 15 is the last day you can apply for a moose permit.

As in previous seasons, moose permits must be applied for by hunting parties of four people. If granted a permit, each group of hunters will be required to purchase a $200 license.

Only Minnesota residents are eligible and applicants must be 16 years old or older before October 10, 1987. A Minnesota driver's license or state ID card is required to apply for moose, bear and antlerless deer permits.

A computerized drawing will select 1,300 moose hunting parties for the season. Hunters issued licenses for any Minnesota moose season since 1977 are not eligible for this year's hunt, because of a 1982 law requiring successful applicants to sit out five seasons.

Applications are available from the DNR wildlife field offices, and the six DNR Regional Headquarters in Bemidji, Brainerd, Grand Rapids, New Ulm, Rochester and St. Paul, and at the DNR License Center in St. Paul. For more information call 1-800-652-9747 and ask for the DNR Information Center.

Beacon On Upper Red Lake

Boaters and anglers on the eastern end of Upper Red Lake will have an easier time finding their way back to shore, or back to the mouth of the Tamarac River, thanks to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR has installed a strobe light on a 40-foot pole at its Waskish Fisheries complex on the eastern shore of Upper Red Lake just north of the Tamarac River. The beacon operates on both daytime and nighttime modes, flashing a powerful beam every three seconds.

"It's the kind of navigational aid commonly found on the east and west coasts, to help guide ocean-going vessels," said Mark Wallace, building maintenance supervisor for the DNR Northwest Region. "Under the right conditions, it should be visible all the way to the west end of Upper Red Lake." The beacon was in-place and operational on May 14, in time for the fishing opener.

DNR first began to realize the need for some kind of guidance device after the Waskish Fire Tower, no longer in use, was dismantled three years ago. Many local citizens and members of the Northern Beltrami Development Association expressed concern over the loss of the tower because it was used as a landmark by boaters to help guide them back to the Tamarac River and places on shore. "The new DNR beacon is an improvement over the old Waskish Fire Tower," said Wallace. "It provides a 24-hour-per-day landmark and should be visible in bad weather when it's needed most."

Funding for the new beacon came from the Federal Boat and Water Safety fund, a portion of the federal marine fuel tax that is returned to the states for boat and water safety projects.

Free Day At Parks

Minnesota State Parks and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources are hosting the annual State Park Open House on Sunday, June 7. Open house is a free family day to explore Minnesota's 64 state parks.

The open-house day is a great chance for vacationers and local residents alike to explore the parks and spend a day picnicking, swimming, hiking or just relaxing.

Theme for the parks this year is "Someplace Special" and emphasizes the fact that each state park is unique and offers a different mix of natural, cultural, historic, and recreational resources to entertain and educate park visitors.

No motorized vehicle permits will be required on the open-house Sunday. Actual admission to the parks is free year-round for visitors who bicycle or hike into the parks, permits are only required for motorized vehicles. Regular rates for such services as camping, boat rentals, and firewood will still apply on open-house day.

Interpretive programs and special events are planned at many parks in conjunction with open house. There are 11 state parks in the 21-counties that make up the DNR Northwest Region: Zipple Bay Stare Park on Lake of the Woods, Hayes Lake State Park south of Roseau, Lake Bronson State Park east of Hallock, Old Mill State Park east of Argyle, Lake Bemidji State Park, Itasca State Park north of Park Rapids, Little Elbow Lake State Park in Mahnomen County, Buffalo River State Park east of Moorhead, Maplewood State Park east of Pelican Rapids, Lake Carlos State Park north of Alexandria, and Glacial Lakes State Park southwest of Glenwood.

Complete open-house and state park information is available free from the DNR Information Center; call toll-free 1-800-652-9747 (ask for DNR).

— Outdoor News —

Bud Grant, former Minnesota Vikings head coach, and Loral Delaney, world-class trapshooter and dog trainer, have teamed up to help stop poaching in Minnesota.

The two donated their services recently to make several television public service announcements for TIP (Turn In Poachers), Inc.

Grant, who is honorary chairman of TIP, and Delaney are asking Minnesota citizens to "join the team" and stop poachers from destroying our fish and wildlife heritage.

Through TIP, citizens help enforce Minnesota's fish and wilflife laws by reporting violations. Callers don't have to give their names and may receive a reward of up to $1,000. Over the past five years, approximately 60 per cent of the callers have refused rewards — stopping the poacher is reward enough for them! The TIP hotline numbers are 800-652-9093 or, in the Twin Cities metro area, 297-3999.

The public service announcements, created by Advertising Brainstorms and produced by US Studios, both of Minneapolis, began to appear on Minnesota television stations May 15.

Chippewa Forest Survey

Chippewa National Forest is enthused to announce two milestones for wildlife on the Forest.

During the 1987 Spring Bald Eagle Survey, 125 breeding pairs of eagles were counted. This is a record number for the Forest, which already holds the highest breeding density of Bald Eagles in the continental United States.

In addition, a pair of breeding Trumpeter Swans was discovered during the eagle survey. Trumpeters' populations have been near extinction throughout its range and absent from Minnesota for over a hundred years. The birds are the only breeding Trumpeter Swans outside of Hennepin County.

The Chippewa pair, originally from the Hennepin County flocck, had four offspring last year. Trumpeters were transplanted to the Detroit Lakes area by the Minnesota DNR a few weeks ago, but the Chippewa swans are the only pair who chose their home on their own. National Forest biologists are enthused because the site chosen by the swans is one of 43 impoundments constructed on the Forest.

When it comes to defense, some insects really use their heads. According to National Wildlife magazine, the bombardier beetle fights off predators by spraying an irritant from its abdomen while doing a headstand. A related beetle, which has no poison, manages to scare off enemies by imitating the same headstand.

Women's Slow Pitch

Rain postponed Wednesday's four sets of doubleheaders in the Thief River Falls Women's Slow Pitch Softball League.

This week's schedule, altered because of the Memorial Day holiday, will find a regular Monday slate of games being moved to Tuesday night, and because of conflicts with the Thief River Falls Men's Slow Pitch Softball League schedule, the women's games will be played at sites other than the usual slow pitch complex on Highway 1, east of the Thief River Falls Area Vocational-Technical Institute. Alternate sites include Field 5 — Eastside Park; Field 6 — Northland Community College; Field 7 — fairgrounds; Field 8 — fairgrounds fast pitch diamond.

Wednesday Night Division games will not be affected by the holiday schedule.

Outdoor News

Minnesota residents will be able to fish without a license the weekend of May 23-24, if they are accompanied by a youngster, age 15 or younger.

The occasion is Minnesota's second annual "Take a Kid Fishing Weekend". The event was authorized by the Minnesota Legislature in 1985 in a bill that allowed adult Minnesota residents to fish without a license on one specified weekend each year if they are accompanied by a minor, age 15 or younger. The idea behind the legislation was to encourage Minnesotans to pass along a tradition of fishing as family recreation and to promote fishing in general.

According to statistics gathered by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, 48 per cent of Minnesota residents do some fishing. The average Minnesota angler fishes just over 15 days per year.

North Sub-Region 8AA Baseball . . .

Prowlers, Spuds To Meet In Semifinals

First-year Thief River Falls head coach Tracey Wensloff received a pleasant surprise when results of the coaches seeding voting for the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament gave the Prowlers a much higher ranking than he had anticipated.

Post-season play starts Tuesday when No. 5-seeded Detroit Lakes will be at No. 4 Fergus Falls.

Tournament semifinals and finals will be played Thursday (not Wednesday as previously announced) at Bemidji. The No. 1-seeded Lumberjacks will play the Fergus Falls-Detroit Lakes winner in a 10 a.m. semifinal, with Thief River Falls and Moorhead squaring off in a match-up of the No. 2 and No. 3 seeded teams at 12:30 p.m.

Championship game will be played at 3 that afternoon.

Wensloff figured his team would be playing Tuesday. He anticipated a No. 4 ranking for the Prowlers, and thought they would be hosting Detroit Lakes that afternoon, with a win meaning an all-to-quick semifinal encounter with the powerful Lumberjacks.

Instead, Thief River Falls will be playing a Moorhead team the Prowlers beat 4-2 in the Spuds' four-team invitational tournament back on May 2. Thief River Falls' only other encounters with North Sub-Region 8AA competition this spring included a pair of one-sided losses to Bemidji by 10-0 and 21-8 scores.

"We only played three region games, so the win over Moorhead must have figured pretty heavy in the voting," noted Wensloff, who said the draw was a real break for the Prowlers, who are looking forward to a rematch with Moorhead. "Anytime you don't have to face a team like Bemidji until the finals, its a break," said Wensloff. "I think we can play with Moorhead. I think our chances of reaching the finals are pretty good."

Beyond that...Wensloff wouldn't say.

Fergus Falls routed Detroit Lakes 13-0 in a recent late-season regular season match-up after edging the Lakers 7-6 earlier this year.

Area Sports Briefs

Weather Affects Sports Schedule

Wet weather had an effect on the local high school sports schedule on three fronts, forcing one cancellation, causing one postponement, and prompting one site switch.

Individual portion of the North Sub-Region 8AA tennis tournament, originally scheduled to be held at Detroit Lakes Wednesday, was switched indoors to the Southgate Racquet Club in Fargo because of the rain.

A Thief River Falls baseball game at Warrond Thursday afternoon was canceled. Because the Prowlers were already booked with games Friday at Roseau and Saturday at home against Lake of the Woods, and because the Warriors start post-season play Monday, there was no time to reschedule the contest.

Day-long boys and girls North Sub-Region 8AA track meet at Concordia College in Moorhead Thursday was washed out and rescheduled for Friday.

TRF Softball Team Will Be At Metrodome

Jewel Box, a Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball team, will be playing Hasty of Monticello in the 14th and final game of the 1987 Metrodome Marathon June 5-6 in Minneapolis for the benefit of the Minnesota Special Olympics and the Minnesota Softball Hall of Fame, and as a salute to the sport of softball in the state by the Minnesota Twins.

Minnesota Sports Federation and the Twins will join forces for the event to give recognition to softball, the state's No. 1 team-participation sport with just over one million players.

Immediately following the Friday, June 5, Twins vs. Texas Rangers 7:05 p.m. American League West Division game at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome, two recognized softball powers — Budweiser of Crystal and Rudd's Roofing of Bloomington — will square off at approximately 10 p.m. to mark the start of 15 straight hours of softball competition under the Dome.

In addition to teams from Thief River Falls, Monticello, Crystal and Bloomington, the Metrodome Marathon will include representatives from Winona, Little Falls, Ogilvie, Oklee, Excelsior, Fergus Falls, Windom, Montrose, Waverly, Owatonna, Maplewood, Coon Rapids, Cottage Grove, St. Cloud, Mankato, Pipestone, Silver Bay, Red Wing, Apple Valley, Proctor, Halstad, and Rochester.

Jewel Box is scheduled to face that Monticello team at 1:40 p.m. Saturday, June 5. That's a pretty attractive draw. Aardvark Ent. of Fergus Falls, for example, has a scheduled 3:10 a.m. Saturday start against the Windom Merchants. The Oklee A's will be playing Pink Diamond of Ogilvie at 12:50 a.m. Saturday, June 5, in the third match-up of the night-morning.

A ticket for either the Friday or Saturday night Twins-Rangers game is needed to enter the Metrodome for the softball games. Participating teams, randomly selected through a statewide drawing of interested clubs, had to sell a minimum of 100 tickets for either the Friday or Saturday Twins-Rangers games; had to pay $100 participation fee; and had to secure a sponsor to pledge a minimum of $75 to the Special Olympics.

Forsberg-Aune Receives NCC Honor

University of North Dakota senior cross country and track runner Kristy Forsberg-Aune of Thief River Falls has been named one of eight Honor Athletes by the North Central Conference.

Nominations are based on academic performance, athletic ability and performance and leadership and participation in campus or community activities.

Forsberg-Aune, majoring in elementary and special education, carries a 3.33 grade point average.

She was a two-time national qualifier in cross country and a four-year letter-winner in track and cross country for the UND women.

She serves on the Council for Exceptional Children, is a volunteer for Special Olympics and works with the park board in handicap recreation.

The eight nominees are eligible for the Stan Marshall Award as the top female student-athlete in the North Central Conference. The winner will be chosen in June.

The course is open to all youths who will attain the age of 12 during 1987. A firearms safety certificate is required of all youths who wish to hunt between the ages of 12-15.

Youth Baseball Registration Set

Wheels For Life Bike-A-Thon Will Be May 30

Riders for the Saturday, May 30, St. Jude Children's research hospital Wheels For Life Bike-a-thon are presently asking the community to pledge a contribution for each mile they ride.

"Every mile our bikers go earns money bringing us closer to a cure for cancer. The life-saving study of childhood cancer at St. Jude has become critical to children all over the world," says Bike-a-thon chairman Kathy Mehrkens. "Let's show we care. Help this cause," Kathy said. "Your generous pledge encourages riders. After the event, help them get the money to us quickly."

The ride will begin at Oakland Park Road at 1 p.m. and arrows will point the way to the site. "If you haven't been asked to sponsor a rider, but are interested, please call 964-5624 and a rider will contact you," Kathy said.

"Each rider gets a lap card at registration," Mehrkens said. "Every time riders pass checkpoints, we initial the card. At the end of the ride, we check and sign the card to show that the rider earned what the sponsor pledged." Riders return to sponsors to collect pledges.

Riders can get sponsor-registration forms at Hardee's, The Times, the law enforcement center, KTRF radio station, and Franklin middle school. There will be prizes for the rider collecting the most money within ten days after the event.

WIC And EPS To Conduct Clinics In Area In June

Women, Infants and Children (WIC) supplemental nutritional educational program is being held the month of June.

Infants and children up to the age of five and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be eligible for the program. The sponsoring agency is very interested in enrolling pregnant women in the program because prenatal nutrition is a vital part of producing a healthy baby. It is important to apply for WIC early in the pregnancy but no proof of pregnancy is required.

All potential clients must call or write the 4-county EPS/WIC Service at 745-4004 and complete an application.

Early and periodic screening will be offered at this time to children six months through 13 years of age. EPS checks hearing and vision, hematocrit determination, urinalysis and physical assessments, Denver developmental testing and dental assessments and gives instruction in care of teeth. Appointments must be made one month in advance. Schedule for WIC and EPS clinics for June is as follows: June 4, Red Lake Falls community center; June 5, Oklee community center; and June 19, Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

Immunizations will be given at all WIC and EPS clinics from 9 to 9:30 a.m. only at a cost of $3 per immunization.

For further information concerning the WIC and EPS programs, call or write: 4 County EPS/WIC Service, Courthouse, 208 E. Colvin, Warren, MN 56762, phone 745-4004.

COMPUTERIZED MESSAGE SIGN at Norwest Bank in Thief River Falls came a'tumblin' down Thursday evening shortly after 8 p.m. The sign broke loose from its moorings on the side of the building facing Third street, folding down against the wall and later toppling over to cause minor damage to the roof of a car parked at the curb. There were no injuries although stores were open Thursday night and there were shoppers downtown when the sign fell. Whether or not the sign will be replaced has not yet been determined.

Stangeland Tries To Block Nuclear Waste Funding

U.S. Rep. Arlan Stangeland has urged Appropriations Sub-committee on Energy and Water Development Chairman Rep. Tom Bevill and ranking minority member John Myers to delete all funds for the second-level nuclear waste repository possibly located in Minnesota. Bevill's committee is responsible for funding of high-level nuclear waste sites and is expected to consider funding for the siting process in June.

"We successfully cut all funding for the second nuclear waste siting for 1987, and I'm confident we can do it again for '88," Stangeland said. "There's no more need for that second site today than there was a year ago and the simplest short-term solution is to delete all funding."

Stangeland's conversation with Bevill and Myers indicated continued pressure from Stangeland following a written communication earlier this month in which Stangeland also urged Bevill to endorse language indefinitely postponing the second high-level waste repository process.

"The nuclear industry is not producing the amount of nuclear waste that was originally projected," Stangeland continued. "We need time to reassess this situation so that we can get Minnesota off the Department of Energy hit list altogehter."

Once funding for 1988 is cut, Stangeland says he'll introduce legislation that will postpone development of the second nuclear waste site until well into the 21st century.

"Without funding for 1988, and with postponement after 1988, it is very likely that our scientific community will determine safer means of disposing of nuclear waste," Stangeland continued. "It is ridiculous to consider putting a toxic nuclear waste dump in a state containing three major water systems (Great Lakes, Red River, Mississippi River) like Minnesota does. I am confident we can beat the DOE and its unjustified attempts."

MN Ag Statistics Service Conducts Annual Survey

Minnesota agriculture is measured in bushels, acres, tons, head, dollars and other standards. Now underway is the state's most comprehensive ag survey of the year. Conducted annually by the Minnesota agricultural statistics service, it's a measure of Minnesota's 1987 crop acreages, mid-year livestock inventories and grain in storage.

"With higher costs and lower returns, farmers are looking long and hard at making the right choices for their individual farms," says Carroll Rock, director of the service. "Our survey results remove some of the 'unknowns' for farmers by giving them solid facts on what's going on in production agriculture."

The service uses field interviewers as part of the process for getting information from farmers. Mail surveys also pull in crop and livestock information. "No matter which method we use," says Rock "we continue to keep individual information confidential."

Rock stresses that farmers' reports are combined into a state total. "And a pretty accurate one at that," he says. "We're usually within a few percentage points of the actual numbers."

The service will release information on 1987 crop acreages on July 9. The same report will also show estimates of yield and production for several major crops. Information on June 1 hog and pig, cattle and grain stock inventories is slated for release June 30.

No Public Input On Groundwater

Disappointment in the lack of public input at a public meeting to discuss the availability and location of adequate groundwater was registered by several city councilmen Tuesday night.

In view of the number of letters to the editor in The Times, it was disappointing to council members that no one from the public showed up for the meeting which was advertised in articles in The Times and on the air by local radio stations. Mayor Bob Carlson and councilman Milan Borsheim said it was disquieting to hear only one side of the issue presented.

Len Rodman of Black and Veatch, engineers and architects, Kansas City, MO, and Larry Cole of the Minnesota department of health, gave an informative presentation on the availability and location of adequate quantities of groundwater. The study was based on available resource material from state and federal geological surveys.

According to the report presented to the council, "Previous contact with the United States Geological survey indicated the best potential for groundwater is in the beach area approximately 10 miles west of the city."

Rodman said the well supply would have to be able to provide four million gallons of water a day or 2,800 gallons per minute to be adequate for Thief

Co. Veteran's Service Officer Given Warning

Pennington county veterans service officer, John Ellison, received an official warning from the Pennington county commissioners Tuesday evening. Ellison was warned about his appearance, conduct and job competency.

The warning was prompted by two letters received by the commissioners from local veterans' organizations listing a number of complaints. County commissioners also brought up the fact that Ellison has been charged with driving while intoxicated when representing the county at a veterans service officer conference in Detroit Lakes.

The county commissioners received a letter from American Legion Post 117 in Thief River Falls, and a letter from the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793. Both letters were received by the commissioners prior to Ellison being charged with DWI. Both letters stated they were written at the request of the clubs' general councils.

Ellison was given the opportunity to have the meeting closed and the discussion held away from public scrutiny, because it was deemed a personnel matter. Ellison decided, however, to allow the meeting — in which he responded to the complaints in the letter — open to the public.

Ellison has held his job for less than one year. The job was created through a joint agreement between the veterans' organizations in Thief River Falls and Pennington county. He is on probation until around September 9.

At the county board meeting he did not offer his resignation nor did the council request his resignation. The county board strongly suggested, however, that he give consideration to the seriousness of the complaints made against him by the service organizations.

County board chairman Roger Hoffman read a list of complaints about Ellison, which included: failure to give attention to matters of his appearance in public as a representative of the service organizations and county; drinking alcohol in several local bars during working hours; making derogatory comments about people in public; giving misleading information; not being readily available; loss of driver's license as a result of a driving while under influence of alcohol while representing the county.

Ellison responded to the complaints pointing out that part of the problem may be a result of animosity among service organization members who applied for the job he was eventually hired to fill. He also said that it was an unfortunate reality that some of the clients he must serve and investigate "spend much of their time and money, money received from the government, in the local bars" where he has been observed. He said he was unaware of any instance where he might have given misleading information. He said that in a situation where he is unsure of what to do he calls the experts.

He admitted he lost his driver's license temporarily because of a driving while intoxicated charge. The incident apparently took place when Ellison was in his official capacity as a representative of the county. Ellison had been sent to Detroit Lakes to a veterans service officer conference. He said it was a personal mistake and one which he has paid for dearly. He said he did not believe he has done the community a disservice, and has done a great deal of good as its veterans service officer.

The county board said he was to

"Kids Teaching Kids" At Goodridge

"KIDS TEACHING KIDS" is the title of a program conducted recently at the Goodridge public school, according to Duane Howard, sixth grade teacher. Sixth graders and some seventh graders were involved in the program where they learned about drug and alcohol abuse and traffic safety and taught what they had learned to students in other grades. In the photo above, sixth graders (left to right) Jerr Parnow, Mike Pittman and Wyatt Anderson are shown during one of the presentations.

"Kids Teaching Kids" is the title of a program conducted recently at the Goodridge public elementary school under the direction of sixth grade teacher Duane Howard.

Sixth graders and some seventh garders at the school taught students in lower grades about drug and alcohol abuse and traffic safety. The program is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety administration and supported by several state agencies.

"Teaching is accomplished through peer education," Howard explained, "and these students teach kindergarten through sixth grade students. Many activities such as use of videos, role-playing, films, discussions and demonstrations took place. Each grade had different lessons, presented by a group of two to three students."

Activities involved students in decision-making, developing positive attitudes and encouraging a lifetime of good safety habits, Howard added. "Students tutoring other students in learning has proven to be very effective in almost all areas of learning," he said.

Among information presented were statistics that students could understand, such as the chance being 50-50 that alcohol will be involved in fatal automobile crashes. Traffic accidents are the number killer of young people and a common cause of injury or death to children is being crushed by adults in the vehicle not wearing safety belts.

"When considering the number of traffic accidents annually, the death toll is equal to a 727 passenger jet

"In an accident, being thrown from the vehicle is 25 times more dangerous than being belted in place. On the average, we can expect to be in a vehicle crash once in 10 years. For one in 20 people, the crash will be serious. Understanding and remembering these traffic safety concepts is important and helpful," Howard said.

MN Farm Bureau Encouraged By Vo Tech Funding

Farm Bureau is encouraged that farmers will continue to receive service from vocational technical education with the help of $1.4 million in funding approved by the Minnesota Legislature.

Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation, said Farm Bureau "fully supports proper funding of this educational service" which includes high school vocational agriculture departments and farm management programs.

"Agricultural education is very important to us," he added. "Both existing and beginning farmers need the kind of education provided by these programs."

"Another service equally important to farmers is the University of Minnesota extension service," Lokensgard said. "These valuable programs also need to be properly funded. However, $580,000 was removed from the extension service budget which could mean some programs may suffer."

"The extension service serves a vital role in our farming operations as well as providing information and many services to today's farmer," he said. "In addition, extension is managing farm mediation which takes both time and funding."

Farm Bureau supported adequate funding for the extension service throughout the session, Lokensgard said, "and we hope extension will be funded in the future with no cut backs."

Old Mill Park Will Note 50th Anniversary Year

Old Mill state park 13 miles east of Argyle, open and ready for summer visitors, is celebrating its 50th anniversary and there is a long list of special programs and events planned for public enjoyment.

"In addition to the special events, Old Mill now offers a variety of new services and facilities for our visitors," states Leonard Anderson, park manager.

Two new projects were completed last fall as gifts from Aid Association for Lutherans branches in Radium and Warren. Branch 1515 from Radium purchased and installed a play area and park bench in the picnic area near the beach, and Branch 6397 provided electrical hook-ups in the campground.

"The three services added last year (campsite reservations, picnic shelter reservations and group discounts) were very pupular and are offered again this year. Campsite reservations make packing and the drive to the campground more relaxed as you are assured of a site when you arrive," Anderson said.

"If you are planning a family reunion, church picnic, company picnic or any large gathering, the picnic shelter reservation and group discount would be a good package deal. To reserve sites for camping or the picnic shelter or for more information on the group discount call the park headquarters at 437-8174."

Last year Old Mill had a 33 per cent increase in campers and a 60 per cent increase in winter use. This year with electrical hook-ups and the new play area, along with services added last year and the pool improvements that have been made over the last few years, the staff and management are anticipating a very good 50th year. Already this year attendance and vehicle permit sales are well ahead of last year at this time.

Tax Refund Status Now Available With Phone Call

Now an IRS service can give you the status of your tax refund check, according to C. D. Switzer, director of the Internal Revenue service in Minnesota.

If you mailed in your 1986 federal income tax return at least ten weeks ago and your refund check hasn't shown up yet, then dial toll-free 1-800-554-4477.

"This automated service is easy to use, particularly if you have a copy of your federal tax return at hand," Switzer explained. "A pre-recorded message will guide you step-by-step through the process."

Use the push buttons on your touch-tone or tone-signaling phone to enter such information as the exact amount of refund expected, your filing status and your social security number. This computerized service will then tell you whether your refund check has been sent out and, if so, when. If there is a problem with your return, it will tell you what it is or advise you to call the regular IRS tax information service for further assistance.

This refund service is available Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. for people with touch-tone or tone-signaling phones. People with conventional rotary or pulse-dial telephones can reach the service during normal business hours — Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

The art work will be on exhibit and available for sale between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. on the campus mall. In case of rain the event will be moved inside the food service building.

Visitors to art in the park will have a chance to view and buy art works from virtually every medium, according to Pat Mattson, who chairs this year's event.

Artists are already registered in the areas of acrylics, oil, watercolor, pen and ink, photography, rosemalling, woodworking, batik, stained glass, calligraphy, prints and craft items including baby quilts, pillows, doll clothes, silk and dry flower arrangements, straw hats and designer sweatshirts.

Slide Show Has Message About Caring For Land

"Take Pride in America" is a national public awareness campaign that aims to strengthen the sense of shared responsibility for the land.

The campaign encourages everyone to take pride in our nation's natural and cultural resources and to demonstrate that pride through "hands-on volunteers" work in our communities.

The U.S. department of agriculture has produced a slide set that explains more about the campaign and what individuals and groups are doing to improve our resources.

The show is suitable for upper elementary through high school, civic groups, fishing and hunting clubs and many others. To borrow the slides, contact any office of the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation service in Minnesota.

Ag Department Allows Furadan To Fight Beetles

Minnesota department of agriculture has issued notice of a special local-need registration on Furadan CR-10 to control Crucifer and Striped flea beetles to aid the production of rape seed intended solely for export to Canada.

The commissioner of agriculture said it is in the public interest to issue the special registration and that use does not have the potential for unreasonable environmental effects.

There is an estimated 3,000 to 10,000 acres of rape seed planted in Minnesota annually with an estimated market value of $400,000. The rape seed is exported to Canada to be refined into an edible oil.

This registration will remain in effect until May 12, 1992, unless it is cancelled by the Minnesota department of agriculture or the request is withdrawn by the manufacturer. Citizens have until June 24, 1987, to file written comments with the Commissioner of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55107.

YOUR TIMES

by Governor Rudy Perpich

We have just completed a remarkable legislative session, one which has brought Minnesota far-reaching tax reform, the largest investment in education in our history, and a new commitment to economic development in rural Minnesota.

I believe the Legislature deserves credit for one of the greatest sessions in our history.

The people of Minnesota can take pride in public officials who propose and adopt innovative solutions to the problems of our time. Every year, Minnesota receives favorable mention in national publications for our approach to public policy.

Let me cite just one example this year. We now have a plan that will allow high school dropouts, or students at risk of dropping out, to attend any high school in the state or one of our alternative programs.

Many times, students have problems in school — lack of self-esteem, poor motivation, inability to get along in a particularly school.

Yet, after a few months or years out of school these same students realize that they will need a high school education and more to attain success. This program offers them a helping hand and an open door back into school. It's one of our innovations in education which will receive national mention.

We will provide nearly $3 billion for public schools over the next two years, an increase of more than 14 per cent. A new funding formula worked out by the legislature offers a fairer distribution of state funds to both large and small school districts.

In higher education, we will provide $1.6 billion, an increase of 11 per cent. All of the higher education systems — AVTIs, state universitites and community colleges, and the University of Minnesota, now have a clearer definition of their missions.

Two of the major items from the 1987 sessions are tax reform and economic development. In each case, I believe they can truly be called landmark legislation.

In my state-of-the-state and budget messages last January, I asked for an income tax system that could be understood by all, with the same lower rates for everyone, and no special tax privileges for anyone.

And I also insisted that every dollar of the so-called federal tax "windfall" be returned to income tax payers of Minnesota. Both of those things were done. The people are the winners.

First, let me explain about the "windfall." There was no big pot of money available from the federal government. Rather, the windfall would have been reaped by the state if we conformed to the federal tax law and did not lower our rates.

I insisted that we lower the rates to make sure the windfall went to citizens of Minnesota, not to government.

We now have a simple, nine-line tax form that about two-thirds of us can use next year when we file our taxes. And the rates will be six per cent and eight per cent. They'll be the same for everyone, with no more loopholes and no special deductions for the wealthy.

This is a tax bill that reduces taxes for the average Minnesotan.

It appears that more than 90 per cent of Minnesota taxpayers will pay less combined state and federal income taxes than they did this year.

Another bill will create and fund the Greater Minnesota corporation. This will be our new vehicle for economic development, particularly in rural areas. It will be a public corporation, with a board chosen from among the best minds of the country.

We have modeled this after the Thomas Edison program in Ohio and the Ben Franklin fund in Pennsylvania, and put out own unique Minnesota stamp on it. This corporation will be able to help entrepreneurs, finance research and turn technology into jobs.

As the New York Times said in a recent article, it is ventures such as this at the state level that are charting a path for the nation.

There is much more to report, but I want to say again that the people of Minnesota can take pride in the hard work and the innovative approaches to public policy which have occurred this year.

Minnesota is preparing itself for the future.

Grant Goes To Our Saviour's Christian Academy

Our Saviour's Christian Academy, Thief River Falls, has been awarded a $3,000 grant for the 1987-88 school year from AAL, a fraternal benefit society based in Appleton, WI.

The money will be used to assist in the development of the Spanish language program at the school. Local high schools determine their needs in three general areas: faculty and staff development, program enrichment and constituent relations.

The grant is part of AAL's Lutheran high school enrichment program, which this year will provide nearly $500,000 to more than 100 Lutheran high schools in the United States.

Last year, the grants helped 826 Lutheran high school teachers seeking advanced degrees, state certification or other professional development.

In addition, schools used the grants to enhance computer courses, business classes and career guidance programs. Other courses were developed and improved for college-bound students, and to teach basic skills.

In the area of constituent relations, the grants were used for newsletters and church bulletin inserts, and to develop recruiting and fund-raising programs.

"AAL recognizes the importance of Lutheran high schools and is committed to serve and support them," said Barbara Kuxhaus, administrator of AAL's high school grants.

AAL funds many educational support programs, which this year will provide more than $4.5 million to students and the schools they attend. Other AAL grants provide millions of dollars to Lutheran institutions and other not-for-profit organizations, and provide support for AAL members who conduct volunteer activities through 6,600 local branches across the nation.

MEA President Says Legislature Lays Groundwork

The 1987 session of the legislature laid the groundwork for many of the long-range goals of the Minnesota Eucation association, according to MEA president Robert Astrup.

"Though we are extremely disappointed at the level of funding provided for elementary and secondary schools, we believe the recently concluded session was historic," Astrup said. "We've witnessed major tax reform, which in the long run will benefit education.

"The legislature created a budget reserve and the mechanics to protect it," he continued. "That will assure that schools have a stable funding base. Achieving such stability in funding — protecting schools from the trauma of budget cuts in fiscal crisis — was a primary goal of the MEA.

"And, the legislature recognized inequities in funding between school districts. Unfortunately, legislators attempted to correct those inequities with too few dollars.

"We are also pleased with funding increases provided for community colleges, state universities and AVTIs," Astrup said. Increases to higher education totaled 11.2 per cent for the biennium.

Astrup stressed that MEA's primary disappointment was the level of funding provided for K-12 schools. "Legislators have proclaimed that they have provided funding increases to K-12 education totaling roughly 14 per cent, but that is a misleading figure. It includes $90 million for property tax relief, and $60 million which had already been spent to pay off a debt in the teacher retirement fund. When these figures and others are subtracted from the increase, total new dollars available to school districts to pay for books, teachers and computers increased roughly seven per cent for the next two years. And that simply is inadequate!"

Astrup noted that both houses of the legislature recognized that K-12 funding was inadequate, and in a rare move, each added funds to the K-12 budget in the final days of the session — the House increasing its appropriation $29 million, and the Senate $20 million.

"We are convinced that both bodies recognize that the dollars for quality education just aren't there," Astrup concluded. "We assume, therefore, that the legislature will act in 1988 to correct that situation."

Ag Commissioner Asks Rescinding Of Docking Fees

Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Nichols has asked the chairmen of the Boards of Cargill Inc. and ConAgra, Inc. to rescind their newly-imposed dockage fees on grain trading vessels at the Port of Duluth-Superior. Nichols also asked the Minnesota Congressional delegation to join him in persuading the two corporations.

Nichols said the dockage fees — the first ever charged for use of the Port of Duluth-Superior since the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1959 — may harm the port's competitive nature and probably was a major influence in the port not participating in the recent Soviet wheat purchase.

In a strongly-worded letter to the Minnesota Congressional delegation, Nichols said that Cargill of Duluth and ConAgra of Superior have betrayed the American farmer by imposing tariffs that are not conducive to stated commitments toward development of world trade.

Cargil accounted for 150,000 tons of the most recent sale to the Soviets and was given surplus grain by the government to meet the costs of the competition.

Up to $4,800 per average three-day stay must now be paid by shipowners to dock at one of the companies' elevators. Nichols said this cost would inevitably be passed back to farmers because shipowners cannot afford the added expense.

"These fees are an outright insult to farmers affected by low commodity prices," Nichols said. "It seems to me that officials of these two grain giants, who successfully advocate a policy of reducing grain prices farmers receive in order to be competitive in world markets, would position their elevators in a manner that would not discourage world trade.

"Instead, these companies betray farmers and the port's longshoremen — just to make a few extra bucks off foreign vessels."

Announcement of the dockage fees was made shortly after the International Longshoremen's association of the Port of Duluth-Superior agreed to take a $3.27 hourly cut, reduce work force size by 33 per cent and eliminate numerous loading restrictions, all of which resulted in significant cost savings to the port.

Farm Bureau Head Is Alarmed By Tax Increases

The public should be alarmed at the tremendous tax increases imposed by the 1987 legislature, according to Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

Lokensgard, reviewing the results of the 19-week session, said it appears the bill will result in an increase of well over $867 million "when one considers all of the changes and new taxes."

The tax package did afford farmers a reduction in farm property taxes of about 10 per cent, but those rates would have declined even without legislative action, due to lower farmland values, he said.

"Land values decreased between seven and 10 per cent on a statewide average in 1987," Lokensgard said, "so our taxes payable in 1988 should have been seven to 10 per cent lower with no legislative action."

"Obviously we're pleased with the legislative actions that provided a little more than 10 per cent in tax relief," he said. "It's only fair that we should pay lower taxes because of these lower land valuations. Meaningful property tax relief for agriculture was our top priority during this legislative session and we will continue to work for this relief."

The Farm Bureau leader did have praise for the change in school aid formula that will result in more aid for rural school districts. "Rural schools have long been treated unfairly by the formula and we're pleased with the changes that should provide them with a better aid package," he said.

County Veteran's Service Officer Given Warning

take the discussion as a warning and should take into consideration all the issues brought up during that discussion very seriously.

Also in attendance at the meeting was Roger Bengston, Ellison's immediate supervisor. Bengston is not Ellison's employer but the service officer who provides several counties with the method of operation. In that capacity, Bengston said he evaluated Ellison's performance as good. In fact, Bengston said Ellison picked up on things faster than many others in a similar position. In response to a question from a commissioner, Bengston responded, "yes", Ellison's work was "up to snuff".

Commissioner "Skip" Swanson said he, too, had talked to several people. Swanson said the individuals in the welfare department, with whom Ellison dealt on a regular basis, were very complimentary of his work.

The county chairman concluded that he only expected Ellison's best effort and hoped that in the future things will improve.

Pennington county will soon be the new owner of the Job Service building in Thief River Falls. Pennington county struck a deal Tuesday night with Jim Winjum, owner of the building which houses the State Job Service. Details of the purchase have not entirely been worked out, but the purchase price was set at $150,000 to be paid off during a nine and one-half year period.

The building will continue to house the State Job Service and the Pennington county welfare offices will be moved there. Gary Erickson, director of Pennington county social services, said the move from the basement of the Pennington county courthouse will increase the space available from 3,000 square feet to 4,500 square feet (both figures include use of hallways).

Welfare cases in Pennington county have been on the increase. Erickson said he hoped the case load would decrease with a decrease in population, but that had not been the case. He was not sure what to expect in coming years. The new space at the building would obviously help relieve increased case file needs.

The original asking price for the building was $210,000.

A compromise on rebuilding of state aid highway six was reached Tuesday evening. Pennington county commissioners and nine concerned landowners along the proposed reconstruction project reached a compromise to build the highway.

The compromise involved displeasure with the downsizing of a culvert. One commissioner described the confrontation as "experience versus calculations."

Gary Johnson, a landowner along state aid highway six, disagreed with a recommendation to downsize a culvert along his property. Johnson said experience gained by him and his father indicated a need for a larger culvert than the size recommended by the county engineer.

Wayne Olson, county engineer, said funding of the project is based on population on guidelines set by the state. Under the guidelines and computations set into such plans for reconstruction of highways, a larger size culvert was not justifiable and would jeopardize the entire project.

The compromise finally reached was to split the cost of a 48-inch culvert between the county and Johnson. The road will also be put back on the five-year plan. Construction on state aid six could begin as soon as the spring of 1988.

Lowell Enerson of the Red Lake Watershed district provided commissioners with an update on a water management project on the Red Lake Indian reservation and a water connection ditch between the Red Lake river and Clearwater river.

Enerson said he was not sure what transpired during the last hours of the Minnesota legislative session, but thought the funds for the water management project on the Red Lake Indian reservation were available. The proposed project calls for dikes that would impact upon roughly 9,600 acres of land. The site of a dike would be four miles north of highway one. Water collected by the dikes will be dumped into the Red Lake river.

Enerson said a number of specifications need to be ironed out yet. He said such details include when dumping times will occur. He said the project should be of great value to Pennington county.

Enerson said a recent meeting brought out a lot of questions raised by proponents and opponents of a connection ditch to handle high water on the Red Lake river which would connect with the Clearwater river.

Enerson said opponents of the project basically include individuals living along the Clearwater river. Proponents of the project include rice growers and people living along the Red Lake river.

Enerson said the specifics of the project have not been determined, but it would be approximately four and one-half miles long and divert high water on the Red Lake river to the Clearwater river. Several more studies need to be done on the project before it can be considered.

Pennington county highway department is looking for a larger building to house equipment and allow for repair work to be conducted inside during the winter months. The site would be a permanent site for the highway department, not just a seasonal location. The commissioners passed a resolution to pursue all possibilities and bring it back to the commission for consideration.

On May 24 at 11:34 a.m. a car driven by Norman Midthun, Thief River Falls, was stopped in traffic at a red signal light facing south on Second street at the intersection with highway 32. Stopped behind the Midthun vehicle was a car driven by David Yonke, route two, Thief River Falls. A car driven by Chad Numedahl, Thief River Falls, ran into the Yonke car causing it to strike the Midthun vehicle. Damages were estimated at $300 to the Midthun vehicle. Damages were estimated at $300 to the Midthun vehicle, $1,600 to the Yonke vehicle, and $400 to the Numedahl vehicle. Leonard Yonke, a passenger, complained of a sore left elbow and nose. POLICE NEWS. Assaults. On May 20 police received a report of an assault that occurred at the Best Western men's restroom earlier in the evening. The incident is under investigation.

On May 20 at 3:19 a.m. police were called to 313 South Riverside where an assault was reported. Blake McGuire, Thief River Falls, had answered a knock on the rear door of his residence and upon opening the door Henry Collier, 19, Thief River Falls, forced his way into the house. He was accompanied by a companion. McGuire was pushed and punched in the face, causing severe bruises and a laceration over his left eye. Blake's brother, Scott McGuire, came in to assist and was also shoved by Collier. Collier then grabbed a female occupant, Nancy Rae Olson, 20, Thief River Falls, and dragged her outside. Olson broke free and ran and Collier and his companion left. When officers arrived they attempted to find Ms. Olson. They received another call to return to the residence. Collier had returned and was then placed under arrest for assault. He also admitted to vandalizing McGuire's vehicle the same day. McGuire was arrested for assault and charged with criminal damage to property.

On May 26 police received a call for assistance at the Northwest Medical center where a fight was reported in progress. When police arrived, Danny Zek, 43, Thief River Falls, was arrested for fifth degree assault and is in custody. Charges are pending in court.

No Public Input Given At Meeting On Groundwater

River Falls now and in the future. The probable cost for developing the new wellfield and constructing the transmission main to the city was estimated at $4,115,000.

Other considerations which would have to be built into such a plan would have to include removal of manganese and iron and softening of water. According to Rodman and the report presented to the council, "To provide reliable softening and iron and manganese removal, we anticipate the probable cost of the treatment plant modifications to be $2,000,000. These modifications would be similar to those proposed for phase II with the exception that the pretreatment facilities would not be required. We, however, would recommend the addition of induced draft aeration for removal of carbon dioxide. This aeration step reduces chemical feed requirements and sludge production."

Rodman said the city tested 18 different wells in the county. The results of these tests indicated that the water was extremely hard and held high amounts of manganese and iron.

Total cost of digging about five wells and getting the system operational would probably exceed $6,115,000 or $3,615,000 more than proposed cost to Phase II

The cost of Phase II construction, which would basically reduce the turbidity problem and general maintenance and repairs to present equipment, is estimated at $2,500,000. Such repairs and modifications do not take into consideration modifications to the sludge ponds, which in either case would have to be made. Rodman said if well supplies were dug, the sludge ponds would have to absorb 33 per cent more sludge than the current ponds, creating an even bigger problem.

Rodman said the use of groundwater does not appear to be cost-effective when compared to upgrading the existing plant.

Thief River Falls does not have a bacteria problem with its water, said Larry Cole of the Minnesota department of health. Approximately 20 samples of water are taken for bacteria studies at the water treatment plant each month. Phase II construction would, of course, eliminate the outside possibility of bacteria problems coming from high turbidity.

Cole said dead animals in the river are certainly unsightly, but they do not cause contamination of water supplies. The current water supply receives sufficient treatment to eliminate any bacteria coming from dead animals floating in the river, he said.

A need for more handicapped parking zones was seen in the downtown area of Thief River Falls. The issue of handicapped parking zones in the downtown business district was raised when the council approved of a handicapped parking stall on LaBree avenue. Police deputy chief Duane Holland said it was his opinion that more handicapped parking stalls were needed in the downtown area, although the issue should be researched further.

One of the councilmen said he had had requests for more handicapped parking stalls in the downtown district. A motion to refer the matter to a meeting of the police department and the public safety board was approved by the council.

A little arm twisting was accomplished Tuesday night when the council agreed to send a letter to the Northwest Regional Development commission concerning an application for a loan from the revolving loan fund. The city of Thief River Falls originally made a contribution of $25,000 to the loan fund, which guarantees the city loans for businesses to total $50,000. If the funds allotted for the city are not used by next fall, the money could flow to a general fund for use by all of the cities in the revolving loan fund program.

Don Stewart, community development director, said the hold up with the loan was due to a request from the regional loan fund for personal guarantees. A request for personal guarantees would require signatures from the 18 investors in the project, which makes it an unlikely event.

Support of the senior nutrition program by Lutheran Social Services was agreed to along with a stipulation that the wide disparity between what Pennington county receives in services and other counties receive in services be investigated. Councilman J.J. Womack said a wide disparity exists with Pennington county on the short end of the stick.

Womack said the city pays more for fewer services than other cities in nearby counties and the reason for that disparity should be investigated.

Womack and Mayor Carlson asked Judy TeBeest, local director of the program, what would happen if the city provided only the funds that would adequately represent what the city receives. TeBeest said that under similar situations in the past, she believed the board of the Lutheran Social Services nutrition program would probably withhold services to the amount withheld by the city. TeBeest said the cost per county and city is arrived at from a historical analysis.

It was the worst turnout for a board of review ever, according to Mayor Bob Carlson. The board of review on May 13, the time set aside for citizens to complain about perceived and actual discrepancies in their taxes, attracted only three complaints this year.

Mayor Carlson asked Gerard DeHaan, county assessor, if the reason why so few people turned out was due to frustration. Mayor Carlson suggested that the reason people did not show up was because they feel they are unable to do anything about it.

DeHaan said he felt the reasons were probably inclusive of frustration with the system and belief that commercial properties would receive a 20 per cent tax credit next year. The status of a 20 per cent tax credit on commercial property is uncertain, however.

Northland Nature Photo Contest Winners Named

Winners of the eighth annual Northland Nature Photography contest and exhibition have been announced by the contest's co-sponsores — the Northwest Regional Library system and the Agassiz Regional Environmental Education council.

This contest was open to the public and all entries had to be representative of northern Minnesota. Photographs were judged in three categories — scenic, wildlife and environmental message with color and black and white divisions in each category.

Winning overall grand champion was Mrs. Clifford (Marlis) Glennen of Roseau. Mrs. Glennen's photograph was in the environmental message category and depicted driftwood on a lake shore. She will receive a grand champion ribbon and a check for $25.

All places receive a ribbon and first place winner in a division also receives a book of his or her choice that has a retail value of $25 or less.

Placing in the scenic color division were William Meiers of Red Lake Falls with first place for a photograph of a frosted bridge; Don Gustafson of Thief River Falls with second place for a photograph of a lake in the fall and third place for a photograph of Maple Leaf Drive.

Paulette Odette of Thief River Falls captured first place in the scenic, black and white division with a picture of frost while, in that division, Diane Colby of Thief River Falls took second place with a photograph of a moonlit evening and Alice Hofstad of Plummer took third place with a marsh photograph.

Don Stewart's photograph of a Canada goose took first place in the wildlife color division. Stewart is from Thief River Falls. Bruce Goldstrand of Lake Bronson took second place in this division with a photograph of a coyote. Third place went to James Elmquist of Warroad for his photograph of an owl.

Capturing first and second places in the wildlife, black and white division was Alice Hofstad of Plummer. Her first place photograph featured a chipmunk while her second place photograph was of geese.

As always, the environmental message category was the most difficult to judge, according to the contest judges, since judging must be based on the message conveyed as well as photographic skill. First place in the environmental message, color division went to Alice Hofstad of Plummer for a photograph of a burned-out area. Marlis Glennen of Roseau took second place in this division with a photograph of a wooden wagon wheel; while William Meiers of Red Lake Falls took third place with a photograph of a ski trail.

Judges for the contest were Marv Lundin, Ray Nelson and James Solsten. All were very pleased with the quality of the photographs this year. For example, one noted there were four photographs not among the top three in the scenic, color division which in another year may have been winners.

All photographs entered in the contest will be on display at the following Northwest Regional Library branch libraries on the following dates: June 1-June 16, Thief River Falls; June 17-June 27, Hallock; July 1-July 11, Warroad; July 13-July 23, Roseau; July 24-August 4, Greenbush; August 10-August 21, Godel Memorial Library (Warren); and August 27-September 7, Red Lake Falls.

Zak and Person Promoted With Extension Service

Howard Person, Pennington county extension agent, ag and Deborah Zak, county extension agent, home economics and county extension director, have been promoted from assistant professor to associate professor in the University of Minnesota extension service. The promotions become effective July 1.

According to Patrick J. Borich, dean and director of the Minnesota extension service, the promotions recognize Person's and Zak's professional growth and achievement as extension educators in the county.

"I am delighted to announce this promotion" Borich said. "While it does not change Howard's or Deborah's responsibilities or assignment to the county, it is a mark of distinction for them as university faculty members."

Extension agents, located in every county, provide informal outreach education as part of the University of Minnesota's threefold land grant mission of teaching, research and educational service.

Glenn Johnson Named Appraiser For Farm Credit

Glenn Johnson

Glenn Johnson, Warren, has been named appraiser for Farm Credit services (FCS) of Grand Forks. Johnson, a 28-year veteran of the Farm Credit system, will appraise real estate in the 10 northwestern Minnesota counties that are part of the Grand Forks FCS ag lending cooperative. He will work out of the association's branch office in Warren.

Johnson is a native of Thief River Falls. He grew up on a farm near St. Hilaire and graduated from Lincoln senior high school in Thief River Falls. Johnson served in the U.S. Navy for four years and he attended Concordia college, Moorhead, and North Dakota state university, Fargo, ND, where he studied soils agronomy.

Johnson began his career with the Farm Credit system on July 1, 1959, as a fieldman — a position now called loan officer — for the National Farm Loan association (NFLA) of Warren. The NFLA later became the Federal Land Bank association (FLBA). In 1967 Johnson was named manager of the Warren association. Under his leadership during the 1970s, the association peaked at 1,200 member-borrowers with a loan volume of $105 million.

In October of 1980 the association merged with the FLBA of Grand Forks and Johnson was named branch manager of the Warren branch office. Following a second merger in 1985 that created FCS of Grand Forks, Johnson was named senior loan officer for the Warren branch office.

During his Farm Credit career, Johnson has farmed part-time and has been involved in community affairs. He has been active in the Warren Chamber of Commerce and its committee. He is a member of the Warren Lions club, American Legion Post 27 and Our Savior's Lutheran church in Warren where he has served as president and secretary of the council.

Johnson and his wife, Doris, have two grown daughters, Diane and Emilie.

Small Percentage Of Ag Land Is Foreign-Owned

As of Decembver 31, 1986, a total of 241,304 acres of agricultural land in Minnesota was owned by foreigners. This compares with total privately-owned ag land of 36,204,000 acres. Thus, foreign ag land holdings constiture less than one per cent of all privately-owned ag land in the state.

Foreigners have reported ag holdings in 49 states. Only Rhode Island reported no foreign-owned ag land. Maine has the largest foreign holdings but much of it is timber owned by three large companies.

Deleting Maine, most foreign investment is concentrated in the South and West, which contain 38 per cent to 33 per cent, respectively, of all reported foreign holdings of U.S. ag land. Oregon and Hawaii follow Maine as having the largest proportion of reported foreign ag land to all private-owned ag land in their states.

Milk Production In State Down By Nine Per Cent

For the first four months of this year, milk production in Minnesota is running nine per cent below last year's level. That compares with only a three per cent decline in the 21 major states. April output in Minnesota totaled 896 million pounds versus 975 million last year. Production per cow averaged 1,080 pounds, up 20 pounds. Total milk cows at 830,000 head were down 90,000 head.

In the 21 major states, April milk output totaled 10.38 billion pounds, a two per cent decline from the same month last year. Production per cow was 29 pounds higher while milk cows were down 437,000 to 8.78 million head.

If producers in the 29 states not surveyed followed the 21-state trend, U.S. milk production would total about 12.2 billion pounds.

Bemidji Favorite In Sub-Region 8AA

It'll be Bemidji vs. Detroit Lakes at 10 a.m. and Thief River Falls vs. Moorhead at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA high Thief River Falls played just three Bemidji State University.

Winners will meet in the title game at the same site at 3 that afternoon.

Post-season play started Tuesday when Detroit Lakes erased a 4-0 seventh inning deficit in knocking off Fergus Falls 5-4.

By virtue of a vote by the coaches of the five participating schools, the tournament's No. 1 seed and home field edge went to the Lumberjacks. The Prowlers were a surprise choice for the No. 2 spot, while the Spuds were tabbed No. 3, the already-eliminated Otters No. 4, and the Lakers were picked No. 5.

Thief River Falls played just three North Sub-Region 8AA-counting games this spring, beating Moorhead 4-2 while losing a pair of starts to Bemidji 10-0 and 21-8.

The Prowlers feel confident they can duplicate that earlier win over the Spuds, according to Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "Depending on how well our pitchers throw, I think we should end up in the finals," said Wensloff. "That's my prediction. We know we can beat them (Moorhead)."

In order, Wensloff's pitching staff is headed by junior Chris Nelson, sophomore Dean DuChamp and senior Tom Knoff. That line-up could be altered, however, if Nelson isn't fully recovered from an ankle sprain suffered in Friday's 8-4 win at Roseau.

Offensively, Knoff, senior Kory Joppru, plus juniors Jason Lane and Joel Swanson are the Thief River Falls leaders, pointed out Wensloff, whose team went 9-5 this spring.

Bemidji is the overwhelming tournament favorite. The Lumberjacks closed out their first unbeaten regular season since 1957 Friday by sweeping Grand Rapids 2-0 and 5-1.

Actually, pointed out Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer, the first game was officially recorded as a 7-0 forfeit when Grand Rapids coach Bob Streetar refused to leave the diamond after being ejected for arguing a ball-and-strike call in the fifth inning.

Tim Knudson had an abbreviated no-hitter in the opener, and came on in relief to end a Grand Rapids threat in the nightcap for a save.

Bemidji had just four hits off Jack Kinnunen in the first encounter, but scored twice in the third when Corey Boyer walked, Rob Aitken doubled and Knudson beat out an infield single. Aitken and Knudson both picked up RBI with their hits.

The game ended abruptly in the fifth when the Indians' Todd Hunter took a called third strike for the first out, launching the argument between Streetar and plate umpire Rick Cochran. After several minutes of heated debate, Cochran kicked Streetar out of the game. He retreated to the dugout, but refused to leave the field, bringing on the forfeit.

Tom Kuesel picked up the win in the second game while pitching against Grand Rapids ace Brett Holum. Neither team hit the ball, but both had plenty of base runners because of walks. Kuesel gave up just three hits, but walked 10 before leaving in the sixth. He had walked only 11 all year before that start. Holum surrendered just two hits, but the Lumberjacks gained nine walks.

Bemidji and Detroit Lakes met early this spring, with the Lumberjacks winning 16-2, a score that was inflated by a nine-run Bemidji seventh inning outburst.

Boys, Girls High School Track . . .

14 Prowlers Reach 8AA Meet

Fourteen Thief River Falls athletes will compete Saturday at the 1987 Region 8AA boys and girls high school track and field meet at Brainerd.

The state meet-qualifying event starts at 11 a.m. Top two finishers in each of the individual events, plus the first place relay teams, will advance to the Class AA state meet next week in Osseo.

Five boys and nine girls will represent the Prowlers at the Region 8AA meet after qualifying with a top-seven finish in the North Sub-Region 8AA competition Friday at Moorhead.

Moorhead won both the boys and girls team titles. The Spuds took the boys trophy with 90.5 points, followed by Bemidji with 83.5, Detroit Lakes 48, Fergus Falls 34, and Thief River Falls 12. The Spuds captured the girls crown with 74 points, followed by Bemidji with 72, Detroit Lakes 43, Thief River Falls 35, and Fergus Falls 28.

Thief River Falls had a single winner at the meet, postponed from Thursday because of rain, as Paul Brandt won the boys 100-meter dash in 11.67.

Next best performance for the Thief River Falls boys was a third by Scott Grove with a persons-best 53.69 in the 400. Sophomore Rick Looker turned in a strong 23.95 for a fourth place finish in the 200 where he met a season-long challenge by beating the highly-regarded Brandt, who had a fifth place 24.07.

"We ran well," reported Thief River Falls boys coach Tim Olson. "For some, they peaked. There were a couple of small disappointments, but overall, I was pretty happy."

Thief River Falls girls didn't come up with any first place finishes, but they had six second place efforts, including two by seventh grader Jodi Kruta who had a 13.27 in the 100 and a leap of 15-10 in the long jump.

Cindy Kruta was a close second in the 300-meter hurdles, where her 47.80 was just one-hundreth of a second behind the winner.

Chirsty Puetz was second in the 400 with a 1:01.4.

The other second places came in the relays. Rhonda Rothschadl, Lynn Mueller, Puetz, and Peggy Cruz ran a 9:58.1 in the 3200, while Cindy Kruta, Teri Efteland, Christy Holthusen, and Cruz went 4:17.2 in the 1600.

"We had a pretty good day," said Thief River Falls girls coach Tom Schafer. "The times we ran were very good."

A state meet berth will be hard to come by for those 14 Thief River Falls Region 8AA participants, admitted both Olson and Schafer. Brandt has a shot in the sprints, and Cindy Kruta ranks among the favorites in the 300 hurdles, but personal improvements will be the Prowlers' biggest goals this week.

TRF Baseball Team Finishes At 9-5 . . .

Prowlers Beat Rams, Bears

Wins over Roseau and Lake of the Woods closed out Thief River Falls' regular season schedule and will send the Prowlers into the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament with a 9-5 record.

Thief River Falls doubled Roseau 8-4 Friday and shut out Lake of the Woods 13-0 Saturday.

Chris Nelson pitched a one-hitter as the Prowlers beat the Rams for the second time this spring. He struck out six, but hit three batters and walked four. Combine that with four Thief River Falls errors, and the end result was a closer score than Thief River Falls' 9-0 victory when the two teams met here May 15.

"We really didn't beat them," said Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "They beat themselves. We did just enough things to win."

Thief River Falls mustered just four hits — two of them from Tom Knoff. But the Prowlers jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first on three walks, an error and back-to-back run-producing singles by Knoff and Jason Lane. They tacked on a single run in the second, two more in the fourth and another one in the seventh. Roseau had two-run frames in the fifth and six innings.

An 11-run second inning staked Thief River Falls to its 13-0 make-up game win over visiting Lake of the Woods.

Sixteen Thief River Falls batters went to the plate in the second inning. Seven of them collected hits. The Prowlers closed out the shortened 10-run rule victory with a pair of runs in the third.

Dean DuChamp turned in a two-hit shutout for the mound win, striking out eight and walking one. The Prowlers came up with 11 hits, including 3-for-4 performances by Kory Joppru and Knoff. Sophomore Todd Brandon was 2-for-2 in a varsity debut late in the game.

"Kory hit the ball extremely well," pointed out Wensloff. "All of his hits were hit extremely hard. Knoff hit the ball well, too."

MCC-Middle River Wins 8A Quarterfinal Game

Kraig Melvie came through with a three-run fifth inning double Tuesday to lift Marshall County Central-Middle River past Warroad 6-3 in the 1987 North Sub-Region 8A high school baseball tournament quarterfinals.

Warroad took a 3-1 lead into the bottom of the fifth, but Darin Rokke tripled, Corey Olson beat out an infield single and Corey Johnson drew a one-out walk to load the bases for Melvie.

The winners added a sixth inning insurance run to assure themselves a spot in the tournament semifinals today (Wednesday) vs. top-seeded Crookston.

Rokke picked up the pitching decision. He gave up nine hits, but struck out 11 and walked only three. Mike Flick was the losing pitcher, with Tim Fast appearing in relief in the fifth inning.

Rokke was 3-for-3, including that lead-off triple in the fifth and a double, in the eight-hit Marshall County Central-Middle River attack.

"It's a big win; they all are at this time of the year," acknowledged Marshall County Central-Middle River coach Sam Gebhart.

The game, originally scheduled as a Monday home contest for the higher-seeded Marshall County Central-Middle River Squad, was postponed by rain and rescheduled Tuesday in Karlstad, site of the tournament semifinals today and championship game Friday at 1:30 p.m. Tri-County and Roseau were to meet in today's second semifinal encounter.

Marshall County central-Middle River, weathered out of a final regular season start last week against Kittson County North, is 9-6 for the year. It was the third meeting with Warroad this spring. Warroad won the first match-up 7-2 back on April 24, but Marshall County Central-Middle River won a 4-3 rematch on April 30.

Minnesota State Parks and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) are hosting the annual State Park Open House on Sunday, June 7. Open house is a free family day to Explore Minnesota's 64 state parks.

"Everyone is invited to visit and discover the natural and cultural treasures preserved in the state parks," said acting state park director Wayland Porter. "Open house is a great chance for the family to explore the parks and have a great day of picnicking, swimming, hiking or just relaxing.

Porter said park permits are not necessary on open house day. While entry is free, regular rates for such services as camping, boat rentals and firewood still apply.

"Our theme this year is 'Someplace Special'," said Porter, "because each of the 64 state parks has a different mix of natural, historic and recreational resources to entertain park guests." He said he is confident that once people experience the state parks, they will be back again throughout the year.

Interpretive programs and special events are planned at many parks in conjunction with open house. Some of the family activities include the Forestville Festival (Forestville State Park — Preston), Wildwood Days (Lake Louise State Park — LeRoy), Buffalo Days (Blue Mounds State Park — Luverne), Old Crow Wing Family Canoe Day (Crow Wing State Park — Brainerd) and Grinding Days (Old Mill State Park — Argyle).

Complete open house and state park information is available free from the DNR Information Center, Monday through Friday toll-free in Minnesota 800-652-9747 (ask for DNR).

Township Fire Warden Honored

A Park Rapids man who has worked as a local fire warden in the region for 27 years recently was named Minnesota Township Fire Warden Of The Year for 1987 during ceremonies at the DNR office in St. Paul.

Richard Gartner, 63, who farms near Park Rapids, was chosen for the contribution he has made toward fire suppression in the region. "He has personally been credited with deterring the incidence of wildlife in the region," said Smokey Hills Foresters Ron and Linda Norenberg.

Recently, Gartner put in 15 hours of fire suppression in the Park Rapids area and continues to serve the area in this capacity.

"Richard Gartner had demonstrated a strong concern for natural resource conservation and management through his work as a member of the Itasca State Park Advisory Board, the Hubbard County Parks and Recreation Board, the county land classification committee, the county soil and water conservation board, the county agricultural stabilization service and conservation service board and the Little Mantrap Sportsman's Club," said DNR Commissioner Joe Alexander in presenting the annual forestry award.

As a teen, Gartner first worked for Itasca District Ranger Vern Miller and later for Norm Zauche, Smokey Hills District Ranger. He responded to the intital attack on fires in Arago and Two Inlets Townships.

In 1978, he spent two months on suppression and mop up of the 25,000 acre Huntersville fire and in 1980 he worked two days on the Dorset fire east of Park Rapids.

He works closely with forestry on other projects, and was instrumental in the planning and construction of the campground at Hungryman Lake in the Two Inlets State Forest in 1967. He's been caretaker of the campground ever since. He has also been involved in organizing the Forest Riders Snowmobile club, which has constructed and maintained snowmobile trails in the Two Inlets State Forest since 1974.

He was a town board member for 13 years. Each summer, he and his wife volunteer at the Headwaters 100 bicycle race. The Park Rapids Chapter of the Eagles Club named him Eagle of the Year for 1975, recognizing his efforts in community service.

MSHSL News

MSHSL Officials

Minnesota State High School League offers diversified programs for individuals and teams, designed to interest, motivate, and challenge high school students who participate in athletic and fine arts activities.

Helping to make the various 30 activity programs sponsored by the MSHSL fair and equitable for students are the more than 5,000 game officials and judges who are registered, trained and evaluated by the League for all athletic and fine arts programs.

Each year the MSHSL provides rules interpretation meetings for girls and boys interscholastic sports and adjudicating clinics for judges of fine arts activities. During this 1986-87 school year, a total of 132 rules interpretation meetings were conducted by 38 clinicians in various sports activities, and adjudicating clinics have been held for judges of speech, drama, debate and music activities.

In addition to registering more than 4,000 athletic officials, the MSHSL certifies judges of fine arts activities and registers judges for speech, drama and debate. The League also assigns judges to music contests.

MSHSL actively participates in research and development of interscholastic athletic playing rules. Minnesotans are involved on National Federation Rules Committees. This school year six individuals are serving on committees: Orv Bies, MSHSL Executive Director, Chairman-Track and Field, and Chairman-Telecommunications, and Advisory-Football; John Bartz, MSHSL Assistant Director, Chairman-Ice Hockey, and Member in Football; Larry Larson, MSHSL Administrative Assistant, Member-Records Committee.

Others include Don Meyers, MSHSL Board Member, Fridley, Wrestling; Jerry Seeman, Fridley, Basketball; and Barbara Seng, Henry Sibley (Mendota Heights), MSHSL Consultant, Speech.

Number of officials and judges registered in each activity is as follows:

Basketball—1,569; football—1,043; baseball 835; volleyball 772; music 717; softball 713; speech 429; hockey 324; wrestling 282; girls gymnastics 226; soccer 179; swimming and diving 136; track and field 77; girls synchronized swimming 27; boys gymnastics 20.

Feed Your Tree

Is your tree hungry? Yes, trees need feeding too, almost the same as humans. Trees need nourishment, air and water, according to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry Peronnnel in Warroad.

How do you know when your tree needs a feeding? Trees show symptoms of malnutrition. These symptoms should be taken as signs that food, water, air, sunlight, or combinations of these, are desperately needed. The following are symptoms that may indicate your trees are telling you a meal is overdue:

1. Die back (loss of leaves or needles at the very top).
2. Sparse crown (top) foliage.
3. Discolored leaves or needles.
4. Dead limbs abnormally abundant.
5. Unusually small leaves.
6. Unusually short twig and leader growth.
7. Bark, trunk, or limb damage from a storm or during house construction.
8. Abnormal insect activity.
9. Obvious disease presence.

In the forest, nature usually provides trees with all the needed nourishment, from decayed leaves, twigs, plants and animals on the forest floor. Trees on home properties do not have the same ideal conditions. In nature a tree grows on a particular site because competition eliminates the ones that are not well adapted. Ornamentals are sometimes planted under soil and climatic conditions that are not ideal.

To feed your tree use a well balanced fertilizer. Commercial preparations specifically designed for yard trees are available. It's often suggested to punch holes in the ground within the root zone and apply a recommended amount of dry fertilizer. A couple tablespoons per hole is a good amount to use. Another guide is tree diameter: one inch use one pound, two inches use three pounds, three inches use five pounds, six inches use 18 pounds, 12 inches use 48 pounds. Caution should be used not to over fertilize. Over-fertilizing can burn the roots and even kill your tree.

Extreme caution should also be taken when fertilizing trees within the first three years of planting. Avoid fertilizers heavy on nitrogen for feeding newly planted trees (first six months). A light feeding of 5-10-5 fertilizer, or bone meal, is adequate at the time of planting.

When fertilizing, wet the ground thoroughly prior to application and again immediately after fertilizing.

Another way to fertilize is to broadcast dry food on ground near the crown perimeter prior to rainfall.

Applying or injecting a liquid fertilizer to the root zone is still another method.

Roots restricted by driveways, walls and buildings may need to be fed more often. Again, caution may have to be exercised, to avoid burning the roots.

Best times to feed trees are late fall or in late March and April. Feeding should take place at least once a year.

Root systems also need oxygen. Heavy soils often lack oxygen. Studies show that aerating the soil around trees is very beneficial. Simply punching small holes 8 to 10 inches deep in the ground over the root system will provide aeration.

NWF Wetlands Center

National Wildlife Federation (NWF) has established a new Prairie Wetlands Resource Center in Bismarck, ND to protect freshwater marshes in the Dakotas and Minnesota. These marshes, which are threatened by continued drainage and conservation to cropland, are among the nation's chief breeding grounds for waterfowl.

Through the Center, the Federation will seek better enforcement of federal laws protecting wetlands and the enactment of stronger state protection laws. The Center will also promote the acquisition of key waterfowl habitat by government agencies and private groups, and will establish education programs to reach farm organizations, youth groups, and others.

Prairie Wetlands Center will be supported in part by a $25,000 grant from Waste Management, Inc. The Federation has named Wayne Baron, a longtime NWF employee, as director of the new Center. Since 1978, Baron has served as NWF regional executive for the North Central Region, headquartered in Mandan, ND. A graduate of South Dakota State University, he also served as executive director of the North Dakota Wildlife Federation.

"The freshwater marshes of the northern prairie are among America's most critical wildlife habitat, supporting tremendous numbers of waterfowl," said NWF president Jay D. Hair. "Unfortunately, millions of acres of prairie wetlands have already been destroyed, and conversion to cropland continues. The Federation has made saving what remains a key priority."

According to government estimates, nearly 48,000 acres of wetlands in the Dakotas and Minnesota are converted to cropland every year.

William Y. Brown, environmental affairs director for Waste Management, Inc., said, "We are pleased to give our support for this undeniable conservation priority, and we hope that other companies will also support the Center."

National Wildlife Federation is the nation's largest conservation organization, with more than 4.6 million members and supporters and 51 affiliate organizations nationwide. A private, non-profit organization, the Federation was founded in 1936.

States Receive Federal Fish, Wildlife Payments

States will receive a record $248 million in federal aid funds for sport fish and wildlife restoration for fiscal year 1987, Secretary of the Interior Don Hodel announced.

Funds are distributed to states, commonwealths, territories, and the District of Columbia to finance programs beneficial to sport fish and wildlife resources under the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration Act, commonly known as the Dingell-Johnson program, and the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act, known as the Pittman-Robertson program. Both programs are administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Over $108 million will be made available to states to carry out wildlife restoration projects under the Pittman-Robertson program, which celebrates its 50th anniversary this year. Funding for this program comes from an excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, pistols and revolvers, and certain archery equipment. One-half of the taxes on handguns and archery equipment is distributed to the states to finance hunter education programs.

Since the Pittman-Robertson Act was signed in Septmeber 1937, over $1.5 billion has been distributed to states, making possible the successful restoration of many of this country's most popular wildlife species, including the white-tailed deer and the wild turkey, both rare or absent throughout much of the nation 50 years ago. Moreover, several species which had neared extinction during the early yuears of this centruy, such as the wood duck and pronghorn, have been brought back to relative abundance in much of their former ranges.

States will receive $140 million for sport fish restoration projects under the Dingell-Johnson program. Much of this money comes from excise taxes on fishing equipment (base funds). Legislation in 1984 created the Wallop-Breaux expansion program, significantly increasing the funding sources for sport fish restoration by including a share of motorboat fuel taxes, import taxes on imported fishing equipment and pleasure boats, and excise taxes on previously untaxed fishing equipment (expanded funds).

Typical projects through the Sport Fish Restoration Program are development or improvement of public access facilities, acquisition of lakes or other public access areas for fishing, improvement of fish habitat, and fishery research. Under the Wallop-Breaux amendment, states are required to obligate at least 10 per cent of their annual apportionment for motorboat access. In addition, they may obligate up to 10 per cent for aquatic resources education programs. Coastal states are required to allocate new revenues to marine and freshwater projects proportional to the number of coastal and freshwater anglers estimated to reside in the state.

Distribution of sport fish restoration funds to the states is based on the land and water area and the number of fishing license holders in each state. Distribution of wildlife restoration funds is based on land area and the number of hunting license holders in each state. Distribution of hunter education funds, part of the wildlife restoration total, is based on the relative population of each state.

Final apportionment announced recently represents the total funding available to each state for fiscal year 1987 under the Dingell-Johnson and Pittman-Robertson programs. This total reflects $60 million in additional funding since the preliminary apportionment was made on September 26, 1986.

Attached tables show the distribution of 1987 funds by state.

DNR Proposes Plan To Help Lakeshore Property Owners

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has proposed a plan to help lakeshore property owners in northwest and west-central Minnesota save both time and money in obtaining the necessary permits to repair "ice-push" shoreline damage this spring, according to Merlyn Wesloh, DNR regional administrator for the Northwest region.

Ordinarily, individual landowners seeking DNR permits to alter or restore shoreline property must have their permit applications reviewed by local officials in their county zoning office, local watershed district, and soil and water conservation district office; and pay a $50 application fee. Local officials then have, by law, up to thirty days to review the permit application.

Under this one-time, emergency permit proposal, Wesloh explained that the DNR itself will seek to make a general permit application on behalf of all lakeshore owners in a county and seek prior approval from local county, watershed and soil and water conservation officials; thereby saving individual landowners both the $50 application fee and the waiting period.

Wesloh said letters requesting approval of the emergency permit proposal have been sent to county zoning officers, watershed district officials, and soil and water conservation district officials in 13 counties that the DNR has identified as having the potential for a large number of requests for shoreline repair permits. These counties include Otter Tail, Douglas, Pope, Grant, Stevens, Becker, Mahnomen, Polk, Clay, Beltrami, Hubbard, Clearwater, and Lake of the Woods. Other counties in the northwest region could be included if enough interest is shown by landowners and local officials.

Weshloh emphasized that, if this new procedure is accepted by local officials, individual landowners must still have their shoreline damage inspected and the repair project approved by the DNR area hydrologist. Once a site is inspected and approved, the DNR hydrologist will issue a repair permit on the spot at no cost to the landowner.

Wesloh also stated that landowners and contractors must still comply with all the usual requirements for shoreline projects. This special permit procedure only applies to ice-ridge repair and other minor, ice-related damage. Landowners wishing to make other shoreline alterations must make a regular permit application to theDNR.

For more information, lakeshore property owners should contact the DNR hydrologist in their area. There are four area hydrologists in the northwest DNR region: Brent Johnson in Thief River Falls at 218-681-7789, Kirk English in Bemidji at 218-755-3973, Bob Merritt in Detroit Lakes at 218-847-1579, and Terry Lejcher in Fergus Falls at 218-739-7576.

Nest building is not for the weak. According to National Wildlife magazine, a cliff swallow may make some 1,400 trips carrying mud from a creek to its nest site on the side of a barn. To do so, the swallow will burn up the equivalent of more than half its weight in body fat.

Area Sports Briefs

Post-season competition was scheduled on two fronts today (Wednesday) for Thief River Falls high school athletes.

The Prowlers' Bret Haugen was scheduled to compete in the singles portion of the 1987 Region 8AA individual tennis tournament at Brainerd. The meet had a 9 a.m. start.

Thief River Falls boys were scheduled to participate in the 1987 Region 8AA golf meet at Park Rapids. Tee-off time was 9:30 a.m.

North Sub-Region 8AA baseball tournament semifinals and finals will be played Thursday at Bemidji. Thief River Falls will meet Moorhead in a 12:30 p.m. semifinal match-up.

Fourteen Thief River Falls boys and girls will compete in the Region 8AA track and field meet Saturday at Brainerd starting at 11 a.m.

Thief River Falls' Kelly Cornell is already a state meet qualifier and will compete in the 1987 Minnesota State High School League Class AA state girls golf tournament June 3-4 at the Majestics Oaks Golf Course in suburban Ham Lake.

Another Thief River Falls golfer, Northland Community College freshman Dave Onkka, has qualified for the 1987 National Junior College Athletic Association national tournament June 9-12 at Odessa, Texas.

Scott Novak Will Play Hockey At Des Moines

Thief River Falls senior Scott Novak, a four-year regular in the Prowlers' high school hockey line-up, has indicated he will play Junior A hockey next year with Des Moines (IA) Buccaneers of the United States Hockey League.

Novak, named the Prowlers' Most Valuable Player Award winner following the 1986-87 season, will be at the Buccaneers' training camp beginning August 23.

An all-around performer who was used as a center, wing and defenseman for the Prowlers, Novak will be trying to prove to major college scouts he can handle the physical demands of hockey. His skills are unquestioned, but lack of size and back-to-back season-shortening injuries as a high school junior and senior left college scouts wondering about Novak's post-high school hockey potential.

A growing number of high school players who were originally passed over by the colleges, have gone on to star in the USHL and have been rewarded with college hockey opportunities.

Several Thief River Falls skaters have played over the years at Des Moines.

Michelle Olson Receives Tennis Honors

Michelle Olson, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, was one of the members of the South West State University women's tennis team in Marshall who received post-season awards following the 1987 spring sports season.

The Pintos' tennis team went unbeaten in regular season dual meet competition for the third straight year, and all six team members were named to the all-conference and all-district teams as Southwest State won the league crown for the fourth straight year and the district title for the fifth year in a row.

Olson finished with a team-best 26-3 record at No. 3 singles and was 25-5 at No. 1 doubles as the Pintos finished 17-1 overall.

Meeting On Low-Level Radioactive Waste Site On Thursday

Discussion of a low-level radioactive site proposal will be held during an informational meeting scheduled by the Pennington county board of commissioners for 7 p.m. May 28 in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

A panel of speakers has tentatively agreed to speak on the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed waste site. They include Dagmar Romano of the Minnesota pollution control agency, John Closs of Northern State Power, Dick Anderson of the Minnesota Institute with concern for public health, and Harry Rosefeldt.

The radio-active waste to be stored at the proposed site includes waste generated from states belonging to the Midwest Interstate low-level radioactive waste compact. Those states include—Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin.

It is not certain that a site will be located in Minnesota, but a public hearing has been scheduled to discuss the possibility of a site and the options that go along with that decision. Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio have been selected as possible hosts for the one site. Minnesota is considered a long shot. Despite being considered a long shot, communities in Minnesota have requested they be considered as a possible host site.

For the purpose of this site, low-level radio-active waste is defined by what it is not: (1) spent nuclear reactor fuel; (2) high level waste from the reprocessing of spent nuclear reactor fuel, or nuclear weapons production reactor fuel; (3) transuranic waste (nuclear weapons production by-products with atomic numbers greater than that of uranium); or (4) uranium mining and milling residues. Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio have been selected as possible host states of a low-level radioactive waste site.

According to information provided by the Midwest Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Commission, Low-Level radioactive waste comes in such diverse forms as contaminated lab equipment, luminous dials, sealed radiation sources, wiping rags, protective clothing, hand tools, vials, needles, test tubes, animal carcasses, filter and liquid resins, and reactor internal components. It generally contains relatively small, but potentially harmful, amounts of radioactivity.

Low-level radioactive waste is not as dangerous as high-level and transuranic wastes and requires less rigorous isolation from the environment for a shorter period of time. Approximately 2.7 million cubic feet of commercial low-level waste is disposed of annually in the United States. About seven per cent of the national total volume comes from the Midwest region and two per cent of the national total radioactivity.

Radioactive materials are generated many different ways. They are generated in the generation of electricity using nuclear power; research in hospitals, universities, and laboratories; diagnosis and treatment of disease; and various industrial processes.

To meet obligations of safe disposal created by the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act in 1980 and amendments to the act in 1985, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, and Wisconsin formed the Midwest Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste compact. The commission is composed of one commissioner from each state. Its responsibilities are to develop policies for reducing the amount of low-level radioactive waste produced in the region, to determine the type and number of facilities necessary to manage the waste, and to identify a state or states responsible for those facilities. The goal is to establish a regional low-level waste management system that is an effective combination of treatment, storage and disposal methods.

Siting a low-level radioactive waste facility is very lengthy process. The deadlines being looked at are: February 1987 -- selection of four potential host states; May 1987 -- host state and at least one successor chosen from among four selected in February if no Midwest state volunteers; January 1988 -- Federal deadline for selection of host state and completion of siting plan; January 1990 -- Federal deadline for submission of license application to the Nuclear regulatory commission; January 1993 -- Federal deadline for operating site and assumption of title to all waste or incur financial penalties; January 1996 -- final Federal deadline for operating the site and assumption of title by the commission to the waste.

The commission has considered a number of ways to select the first host state. After careful examination of the options, the commission decided to develop an incentives package to encourage a member state to volunteer.

The facility will have positive direct and secondary economic benefits. The facility will have an annual payroll of about $400,000, and the local purchase of goods and services will be encouraged. The facility will probably be operated by a private waste service company which will pay sales and business taxes. Payroll and taxes will spread through the area and add another estimated $800,000, called secondary economic impacts, to the local economy. Finally, a volume or gross receipts tax could generate an additional $800,000 annually for the host community. These economic benefits will add to the attractiveness of the community for other businesses.

Thursday's forum will not just be a forum for discussing the positive aspects of the project, disadvantages to the proposed waste site will also be discussed. Anyone interested learning more about the low-level radio-

ROOM TO WATCH, room to fish, room to play. New stairs and pathways have been built around the dam in Thief River Falls. In addition to the new steps, pictured center, a walkway lined with trees and protected by a safety barrier from the street, has been created. The Thief River Falls city council passed funding for the project and has gone on record as saying the project should be considered in support of a proposed walkway along the river. The walkway project, for which funds are being collected, was organized by the local chapter of the Zehlians.

Alcohol Seen As Major Problem

DNR Encourages Safe Boating

According to statistics from the United States Coast Guard over 50 per cent of the over 1,200 deaths from boating accidents that happen every year involve alcohol.

In Minnesota last year there were 31 fatalities, up six from the previous year. Kim Elverum of the Minnesota department of natural resources noted however, that 18 of those fatalities occurred after labor day and mostly during the hunting or fishing season.

In addition, Elverum noted that out of all of those fatalities, 26 per cent were alcohol related compared to 52 per cent the previous year. He credits this vast improvement to tough new laws designed to crack down on drivers who operate a boat while intoxicated.

Last year the Minnesota legislature passed a law that sought to prevent more fatalities. The new law directed conservation officers, sheriff or peace officers, who suspect through observation that a boater's abilities to safely operate a motorboat have been impaired by alcohol or drugs, to require a breath or blood test from the boater.

If the boat operator has a .10 per cent or greater blood alcohol concentration he or she is subject to fines and-or the loss of operating privileges or other criminal penalties. Those who refuse the test face up to a $700 fine and loss of boat operating privileges for one year.

So far the new law seems to have had an influence on boat operators, according to Elverum, who is the DNR boating law administrator. Elverum said there were 68 arrests last year. Of those arrested, 42 per cent had prior driving while intoxicated violations. As the new law directs, many of those boating operators who were caught last year have lost their operating privileges. Beginning this year, many of those boat operators who were successfully prosecuted will lose operating privileges for 90 days. Elverum said a list was recently compiled and sent out to all conservation officers and sheriff offices.

Elverum is pleased with the fact that there have been fewer accidents and fatalities. He is also pleased with the new law because it deals with a serious problem, and get the attention of the public.

Most people don't realize the danger involved in drinking and operating a boat. Balance, judgment and reaction times are immediately affected on the water. They are affected in normal situations also, but the problem can be compounded by what is technically called "boater's hypnosis."

Research also indicates one-fourth of all alcohol related boating fatalities are caused simply from falling overboard. When alcohol is being consumed, loss of balance is among the first noticeable problems. An unstable platform can only compound the problem. Such a combination often contributes to a tumble overboard.

Research by the Coast Guard indicates that "four hours exposure to noise, vibration, sun, glare, wind and other motion on the water produces a fatigue, which slows reaction times almost as much as if being legally drunk." Alcohol intensifies the problem.

Because of the intensifying effect of boater's fatigue, less alcohol than normally consumed by a person will cause the same effects as if the person had consumed greater amounts of alcohol. The danger zone for boat operators, according to the Coast Guard, is one drink for a person with a body weight of 130 pounds, two drinks for a person with a body weight of 160 pounds, and three drinks for a person with a body weight of 200 pounds. A drink is considered to be one 12-ounce beer, or a four-ounce glass of 12 per cent wine, or a one and one-half-ounce glass of 86 proof liquor.

The Coast Guard advises boating enthusiasts to limit their alcohol consumption to one drink per hour or less. For each drink consumed, it takes approximately two hours to sober up.

Contrary to what many people may believe, alcohol does not warm the body, it dilates the small blood vessels close to the skin, giving a warm, glowing sensation. But the dilated blood vessels reduce the body's ability to protect the body against heat loss. A tumble into the cold waters of Minnesota lakes and rivers could easily become a fatal mistake.

In 1984, 50 per cent of all boating accidents in Minnesota involved hypothermia -- a serious problem according to Elverum and probably one reason why the department of natural resources is now concentrating on educating the public of the dangers of hypothermia.

Hypothermia is one of the three problems the department plans to emphasize heavily this year. Elverum said the other two common problems include a lack of personal flotation devices, and alcohol.

This time of year can be especially dangerous, Elverum said. While outside temperatures may soar, water temperatures may remain cold for a long time. It takes an especially long time for rivers to warm up. A person can get quite a shock by jumping into the water this time of year. Elverum said the water temperature should be at least 70 degrees fahrenheit before individuals are allowed to swim.

Another danger relative to boating and swimming includes caloric labyrinthitis, or a disorientation caused by water entering the ear. This problem too can be complicated by the effects of alcohol. People with too much alcohol in their blood can become so confused with water in their ear that they will swim down instead of up.

Alcohol intensifies judgment errors. While boat operators may think they operate the boat better with a little alcohol they are actually worse. Studies indicate reduced performance. They also indicate "alcohol reduces inhibitions, causing normally cautious people to try

U of M Sponsors Dairy Tour To Virginia Area

Dairy farmers, DHI technicians, extension educators and others involved in the dairy industry will have a chance to study dairy farm operations and explore dairy marketing options in the state of Virginia on the 1987 dairy study tour set for July 28 to August 4.

The annual tour, sponsored by the University of Minnesota extension service and the department of animal science, provides an opportunity to visit and study the most modern dairy operations in another part of the U.S.

Tourgoers will be informed about feeding, breeding, housing, herd improvement, herd health, calf raising, management and marketing dairy products in another part of the country. Of particular interest will be several different business arrangements, milking parlors and calf raising systems. This year's excursion will focus on about 12 dairy farms located in the Winchester, Harrisonburg, and Richmond, VA, areas.

In addition to visiting dairy farms the group will have the opportunity to travel through and explore some of America's early history such as Washington, D.C., Monticello, Richmond, Williamsburg, Jamestown, Busch Gardens and Mount Vernon. Participants will depart from Minneapolis-St. Paul.

For further details and a brochure call or write Minnesota Extension Service, 405 Coffey Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108, (612) 625-2722 or 1-800-367-5383.

Suggestions Provided for Insurance Claim Action

Following information is provided to assist area residents in the storm or disaster recovery process and in the utilization of their property insurance coverages. The majority of properties rebuilt after any storm are those that were properly insured. Citizens informed on how to file their insurance claims should have no problem receiving prompt, accurate and fair service from their insurance company, according to the Minnesota Insurance Information center.

Immediate Steps for Those with Damaged Property —

(1) Secure damaged property immediately. All property insurance policies require the policyholder to take the necessary steps to prevent further damage to their property. This might include:

— Covering openings in the structure with polyvinyl sheeting or plywood to keep out rain which will further damage both the contents and the structure.

— Removing the personal property to a safe location to prevent theft or further damage from the weather.

(2) Notify your insurance agent immediately that your property has been damaged. Don't assume the agent knows about the damage. Your insurance policy requires immediate notification of the insurance company if there is a loss. Inform your agent about where you can be reached by the adjuster, if you will not be at home.

(3) Keep accurate and complete financial records of all expenses you incur while recovering from the storm.

— If you have to purchase plywood to board up the windows, save the receipts. You will be reimbursed.

— If you incur additional living expenses, because you cannot safely live in your damaged home, be sure to save all receipts. Most of these expenses will be reimbursed (food costs are not considered to be additional).

— As you repair or replace the damaged property, save the receipts. No expense is too small to keep track of and report.

(4) Begin a loss inventory.

— Thoroughly document your loss. Inventory everything that has been damaged or destroyed. Throw nothing away until you have documented its existence. The insurance policy requires proof you actually owned the property being claimed in the loss report.

— Information you should include on your loss inventory:

(a) A description of the item. For example: 19" Zenith color television, model XYZ, Serial number 123456.

(b) The purchase price. You may be able to document this figure with a cancelled check, a receipt or a charge slip.

(c) When it was purchased.

(d) How much it cost to replace.

— Be sure to list everything, no matter how small, that has been destroyed or damaged by the storm. Small items can add up to a significant loss.

— A convenient way to remember what you owned and to determine how much it might cost to replace is to use a general merchandise catalog.

(NOTE: A loss inventory sheet is a lot easier to fill out if you have an inventory of your property that was completed prior to the loss. An inventory form and booklet, "Taking Inventory," is available from the Insurance Information Institute, 110 William Street, New York, New York 10038. A photo inventory is also very helpful. The trauma of a loss is great and the time shortly after a loss can be chaotic. Having a proper inventory can provide the peace of mind that your claim will be complete.)

(5) Photograph the damaged structure and personal property. A series of photographs could prove helpful in adjusting the loss, especially if the structure must be torn down soon after the storm for public safety purposes. If you photograph the damaged area be sure to take the pictures so that all sides of the structure are photographed. That would include any undamaged part, as well as the damaged portions.

(6) Repairs of the structure.

— Deal only with known and qualified contractors.

— Insist on written estimates.

— Insist on references, if the contractor is not well known to you.

— Insist on plans detailing repairs, if there has been substantial damage to the structure.

— Insist that all repairs be done in compliance with the Minnesota Building Code, if it applies to your community. Check with your city's building official to assure code compliance.

— Coordinate any reconstruction activities with the community's building official. These people can be of great assistance to you in solving

BOATING SAFETY us being encouraged by the Minnesota department of natural resources. Fishing season has opened, and increasing numbers of anglers on Minnesota lakes and rivers often result in more accidents. Boating enthusiasts are asked to take extra precaution and enjoy safe boating.

Each child is unique. Though he may look like his mother or act like his father, his particular combination of traits is unlike any other.

Each child needs to know this. He may not be as good an athlete as his brother or as good a student as his sister, but he should be appreciated for the good qualities he has, whatever they may be.

A child develops self-worth from many sources—from parents, grandparents, and teachers. The church teaches him that he is important also, for Christ taught us that he loved each of us just as we are. Let your child know that God loves him—that he is unique and irreplaceable.

Tell him—There is no one like you.

IR Review: 1987 Session Is One Of Broken Promises

Representative Marcus Marsh and Representative Dennis Poppenhagen from the Independent Republican party were in Thief River Falls last week repeating a message carried throughout the state by Independent Republican party members.

Marsh and Poppenhagen, reviewing the 1987 session, said it was one of broken promises.

According to House Minority Leader Bill Schreiber, "The DFL promised no tax increases to the voters last fall. They promised to control state spending. They promised jobs. They promised a highway funding program.

"What did they deliver to the people of Minnesota? They delivered the second-largest tax increase in Minnesota history. They increased spending well beyond the rate of inflation. They killed thousands of jobs. They not only failed to fund highways, but they even robbed the highway program of more than $200 million in MVET revenue and used it to balance an excessive state budget," the House Independent-Republican leader said at a news conference.

Marsha and Poppenhagen echoed that sentiment in an effort to gain support for I-R proposals.

Representative Dennis Poppenhagen, I-R Detroit Lakes, is serving his second term in the Minnesota House of Representatives. He represents District 10A, which encompasses Becker county.

Representative Marcus Marsh, I-R Sauk Rapids, is serving his fourth term in the Minnesota House for District 17A. Marsh served this session on the House taxes committee, judiciary committee, and environment and natural resources committee.

Marsh and Poppenhagen were part of a group of fifteen members of the House I-R caucus to travel to 60 cities across the state last week.

According to Schreiber, the 1987 session was one of the worst in memory. "For the public, it was horrendous. The DFL majorities chose to raise taxes rather than control spending."

Schreiber said the tax increases put Minnesota back in the top 10 in national tax rankings on individual, corporate and sales tax burdens. He called the spending increases "excessive and unjustifiable — like the 10 per cent salary increase for legislators." The DFL's spending priorities, he said, are out of tune with the public and included truckloads of pork-barrel legislation contained in the Greater Minnesota bill and the bonding bill.

"This was a killer session for jobs in Minnesota," according to Sen. Benson. "The state has no business picking the winners and losers in the marketplace. So what did the DFL majorities do? First they raised taxes skyhigh on businesses, making survival even tougher for mainstreet shops and major jobsmakers. Then they piled on heaps of other anti-jobs legislation. And they topped it all off with a so-called 'Greater Minnesota Corporation,' a program that will single out the winners of state development aid and put all other jobsmakers at a competitive disadvantage."

I-R in the House offered positive direction," Schreiber said. They suggested budget limits that would not require any tax increases. They suggested resolving the revenue shortfall problem by controlling spending rather than raising taxes. They suggested responsible ways of attracting jobs. They offered a comprehensive report on jobs growth and economic development for rural Minnesota.

Suggestion For Insurance Claim Action Given

some of the mysteries associated with rebuilding your home.

—(7) Working with the insurance company adjuster.

— Check the identification of any person claiming to be an insurance company adjuster. All insurance company adjusters carry identification.

— You can further check the identification of persons claiming to be adjusters by asking to see their State of Minnesota adjuster's license.

Following a disaster the State of Minnesota, Division of Emergency Services, Department of Public Safety, issues a temporary license to insurance adjusters. If you are in an area that has been involved in a major disaster, be sure and ask to see the temporary license. If the person claiming to be an adjuster does not have such a document refer them to City Hall or the Court House.

— Cooperate with the adjuster in gathering the information needed to process the claim. Your adjuster will be able to assist you in obtaining every dime in coverage your insurance policy provides.

Other Useful Information —

Valued Policy Law

— Minnesota has a valued policy law which says the insured party will be paid the full face value of the policy, on the structure, if it is destroyed.

— The valued policy law applies only to the structure . . . the house.

— The valued policy law does not apply to personal property, additional living expenses, etc.

Fair Claims Practices Act

— Minnesota law defines how all property casualty insurance companies will pay their claims.

— You must receive all the necessary forms returned to you within 10-days of notifying the insurance company of the loss.

— The insurer must notify you of acceptance or denial of the claim within 30 days after you have filed your Proof-of-Loss form, which the adjuster will give you.

— If the insurance company is going to deny a claim it must notify the insured party within 30-business days with the reason for the denial.

— Violations of the fair claims practices act are investigated by the Enforcement Division, Minnesota Department of Commerce, Metro Square Building, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Replacement Cost

— Replacement cost is in place on real property . . . the structure . . . if insurance coverage is 80 per cent or higher of the actual replacement cost, i.e. $80,000 policy on a home costing $100,000 to replace.

— On contents, one half the amount of coverage on the structure is available, i.e. $80,000 on structure will provide $40,000 on contents (personal property). Replacement cost coverage is available at a higher cost to protect contents.

— Antiques, valuables (paintings, collectibles, jewelry, silver, etc.) pose a potential problem if not inventories. It is difficult to determine the actual cash value after the loss. Most consumers schedule these items, paying additional premium and recovering the loss with a minimum of strain.

Earthquake and Flood Damage

— There is no insurance protection for earthquakes unless the property owner has specifically requested an earthquake endorsement.

There is no insurance protection for floods unless the property owner has specifically requested coverage under the national flood insurance program.

Public Adjuster

For further information contact the Minnesota Insurance Information Center, 3100 West Lake Street, Minneapolis, MN 55416.

DNR Encourages Safe Boating: New Alcohol Laws

stunts or enter high-risk situations that a sober person would avoid.

With the first drink, information takes longer to reach the eyes, ears and other senses. It also affects a person's ability to judge distance and speed. The coast guard reports in 1984 that nationwide over $100 million in property damage was the result of boating accidents.

Elverum and others hope that laws like the one passed by the Minnesota legislature will help stem the tide of accidents and fatalities nationwide.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Price And Pain For Freedom

Following editorial comments on the Memorial Day observance were written by Ron D. Johnson, communications director for the Minnesota department of the American Legion:

Memorial Day conveys to Americans the price and pain of the quest for freedom. It is a day to honor the dead and what their service and sacrifice meant for America.

Whether those whom we honor died on or off the battlefield is of little importance. What is important is that each of those who died is a part of America's past; each in some manner has made his or her own contribution to our great American heritage.

The tradition of this day had its origin shortly after the Civil War. Although it was a bloody conflict, sometimes pitting brother against brother, our nation endured. Although we are now in the second century since that first Memorial Day in 1868, patriotic Americans have not forgotten the dead of the Civil War, nor have they forgotten the sacrifices borne by our fighting men and brave women who served in subsequent wars in defense of freedom.

We have hears it said many times that the present is merely a prelude to the future. Applying that same logic, we can conclude that yesterday was the prelude to today. Those to whom we pay homage on this Memorial Day, 1987, from the patriots of early America to the dead of the four wars of this 20th Century, have played their role in shaping the destiny of our nation. Because of their service and their sacrifice, we live and breathe the precious air of freedom.

From them we have inherited a sacred trust. They established and then preserved our freedom through self-sacrifice, personal valor, and unswerving devotion to the causes which were greater to them than life itself.

To be worthy of their trust, it is now for us, the living, to dedicate ourselves to the preservation of our liberties in our time and pass these blessings on to generations of Americans yet unborn.

We can pay no higher tribute to our dead nor render greater service to our nation this day than to instill in others, who seemingly have no special reason for remembering, the true spirit of Memorial Day. This is, in truth, a day for all Americans.

Alcohol Abuse And Women

C. Everett Koop, MD, surgeon general of the United States, writes the following concerning the growing problem of alcoholism and alcohol abuse among women:

Alcohol is so widely and commonly used that we often forget a very important fact—that it is a powerful drug that must be handled with care. Like the abuse of any drug, drinking can be dangerous to your health, safety and emotional well-being. Alcohol can interfere with your judgment, making you more prone to accidents, can increase your feelings of depression and anxiety and can make you seriously ill.

Today, more than 60 per cent of adult American women and nearly 90 per cent of college-age women report that they drink alcoholic beverages. While most of these women do so wisely and without harm, the percentage who drink heavily—ranging from two to eight per cent, depending on age group—is by no means negligible. And as more and more women enter the work force, it is likely that alcohol abuse will increase, particularly among women who seek and land "traditionally male" jobs, in which alcohol often is an accepted part of the noontime meal and of after-work gatherings.

The effects of alcohol abuse on job performance have been well-documented. Excessive drinking by women employees contributes to: fifty per cent of the production problems in the workplace; accidents at a rate three to four times higher than usual; absenteeism two to three times the norm; and the use of health care benefits three to four times higher than those used by working women who don't abuse alcohol.

At the personal level, the effects of alcohol abuse are even more costly. Women who drink heavily when they are pregnant run the risk of having babies with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome—babies that may be mentally retarded and deformed in several ways. Since medical science does not know yet how much a woman may drink without harming her baby, or at what level of drinking harm may occur, I urge pregnant women to not drink at all.

Recent research indicates that women who drink at levels comparable to men suffer more serious consequences. The percentage of women alcoholics who die from suicides, alcohol-related accidents, circulatory disorders and liver cirrhosis is higher than it is for men.

Prevention and early intervention are the keys to reaching women before alcohol problems develop or get out of hand. Excessive drinking, whether done frequently or during occasional "binges," may indicate a potential problem if someone you know depends on alcohol to the extent that she cannot meet home or work responsibilities . . . if she neglects her health or has hurt herself while drinking . . . she probably can't stop drinking by herself and may need professional help. She needs your help, too, and you can provide it not by ignoring her problem or merely expressing sympathy but by assuring her of your concern and of the availability of help. Contact your family physician or local hospital, Alcoholics Anonymous, Al-Anon, local office of the National Council on Alcoholism or Women for Sobriety group.

Quotes And Misquotes

One of the responsibilities that comes with the territory in news reporting is accuracy in quoting people who make the news. For the most part, this often becomes a case of paraphrasing what the speaker means to say, for what sometimes is said is not always what was intended.

People in political circles, from the smallest town council to the halls of U.S. Congress, are fond of claiming they were misquoted when the meaning of what they said is subject to public criticism. Sometimes the claims may be true; most often, however, the quotes are accurate and the speaker either didn't think before he or she spoke or didn't actually say what was intended.

A classic example is the chairman of the Cook County board of commissioners in Chicago. When the board one year voted a pay raise for the commission from $25,000 to $32,000, he said: "These salary raises could be self-defeating. You're going to make your jobs so attractive financially that really qualified people will start running for office."

That's what he said, and that's what was reported. "I was misquoted," he claimed.

The claim of being misquoted is so common that one professional athlete who made a statement he later regretted during a television interview claimed he was misquoted.

That is what you call taking a claim a bit far afield.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Judge: "On what grounds are you seeking a divorce from your husband?"

Wife: "Well, let's just put it this way: he's a Beta and I'm VHS."

There are two ways to be clever: The first is to think of a bright remark in time to say it. The second is to think in time not to say it.

---

A fanatic is a person who is highly enthusiastic about something you are not remotely interested in.

---

Having indulged sumptously on a chicken dinner, the visiting pastor noted a rooster strolling across the farm yard. "What a proud bird that is!" the pastor said admiringly. "He should be proud," one of the farm youngsters piped up. "One of his sons just entered the ministry."

Tidbits From THE Thief River Falls TIMES

by Sharon LaCoursiere

May 27, 1937 Times

Modified Mayhem

— An audience of 1,000 watched "modified mayhem" between Abe Kashey and Johnny Marrs in a wrestling match May 20 at the new city arena. Kashey's blatant disregard of the rules of the game prompted members of the audience to pull him from the ring, while one incited individual hit him over the head with a chair. Kashey then made a quick exit to the dressing room. The Times doesn't say what happened to the person who created "modified mayhem" upon the person of the wrestler, though.

The Mayor Says . . .

— Mayor W.W. Prichard issued a statement today designating next Sunday as Straw Hat Day in Thief River Falls. The Times said "Male residents of the community will be garbed in the height of fashion if they wear straw headgear henceforth, to the end of the warm weather season." Local stores were ready and willing to cooperate with the mayor's edict by stocking a varied array of straw hats. Penney's had Panamas, sailors and pinch front styles in summer colors from 98 cents to $1.98. Oen's was featuring "The Optimo" and "The Sailor," as well as summer caps for those who didn't care whether or not they were in the height of fashion."

Death

— John D. Rockefeller, Sr. died May 23 at his winter home in Ormond Beach, Florida, at the age of 98. Funeral services were held at the family estate in Pocantico Hills, New York. During his lifetime, Rockefeller gave away more than $530,000,000.

Grand Openings

— Sunday night St. Hilaire would be jumping with the grand opening of the new "Do Drop Inn," a dine and dance pavillion. There would be "good orchestra music, no cover charge and fun for all!" Meanwhile, Mrs. Myrtle Hale was opening her "Wel-Come Inn" in a more subdued manner, serving free coffee and doughnuts. The Wel-Come Inn was in the former Bishop Building across from the post office in Thief River Falls, and would feature home-style meals, lunches and short orders, and "clean, sanitary rooms."

Electrocution

— A bolt of lightning struck and killed an entire herd of cattle belonging to Francis Walker of Gervais township in Red Lake county recently. The grade Holsteins, five cows and a heifer, were grazing alongside a fence when the lightning bolt struck them. Mr. Walker said the cattle were not insured.

Remember?

— Do you remember when they used to call the Memorial Day holiday Decoration Day? I see they did in 1937.
